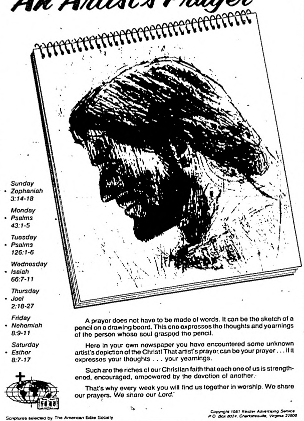
An Artist's Prayer



Sunday • Zephaniah 3:14-18
Monday • Psalms 43:1-5
Tuesday • Psalms 126:1-6
Wednesday • Isaiah 66:7-11
Thursday • Joel 2:18-27
Friday • Nehemiah 8:9-11
Saturday • Esther 8:7-17

A prayer does not have to be made of words. It can be the sketch of a pencil on a drawing board. This one expresses the thoughts and yearnings of the person whose soul grasped the pencil.

Here in your own newspaper you have encountered some unknown artist's depiction of the Christ! That artist's prayer can be your prayer . . . if it expresses your thoughts . . . your yearnings.

Such are the riches of our Christian faith that each one of us is strengthened, encouraged, empowered by the devotion of another.

That's why every week you will find us together in worship. We share our prayers. We share our Lord.

Gov. Quie's Column

As I write this column members of Council 6 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME) are on strike.

This union represents about 18,000 state employees who perform various support services. During the first few days of the strike, about 14,000 employees were striking, leaving a state work force of approximately 16,200 still on the job.

It is unfortunate this strike has occurred. No one — neither striking employees nor management — likes the financial and emotional burdens a strike imposes. However, we must all remember that this is a legal strike and striking AFSCME employees are within their rights.

During the strike I ask for the public's patience.

The state strike committee prepared contingency plans in the event of a strike in order to minimize the disruption of state services and functions.

Obviously, with fewer employees we cannot have a full level of state services, but arrangements have been made to continue all our essential state services.

Commissioner of the Department of Administration James Hiniker, Jr., who is chairman of the strike committee, assures me that the contingency plans have been working well during these first few days. There may be some delays and unexpected problems as nonstriking employees adjust to longer hours and expanded tasks.

However, through reassignment of nonstriking employees and overtime hours, our state hospitals will continue to function. All patients will be fed, clothed and treated.

Our correctional facilities will remain secure. Prison guards, who are classified as essential employees, cannot legally strike.

The Department of Natural Resources is able to maintain near normal services to the public. At this time, all our state parks are open.

State payments to local units of government, school districts and individuals will be made in full and on time.

Similar arrangements have been made for all state departments and agencies.

It is my hope that the strike will be short. The state has made a fair and reasonable offer that is comparable to recent settlements by AFSCME employees in other states. For example, AFSCME employees in Illinois, Iowa, Maine and Pennsylvania have received percentage pay increases at or below our state negotiator's offer.

In addition, our proposal compares favorably to what employees in the private sector here in Minnesota are receiving for similar job responsibilities.

In order to reach agreement, our state negotiator is prepared to continue to meet with union negotiators to work out a settlement. Our state negotiator stands ready to repackage our state's last offer within the context of the money already laid on the bargaining table.

As the strike continues, I ask that strikers and management maintain respect for each other and that the general public bear with any inconvenience during this trying time.

Contemporary Life...
A remarkable new concept that puts you—not the insurance company—in control of your life insurance.
Offers advantages traditional life insurance simply cannot!
FLEXIBILITY. You determine your premium payments: How much—how long—when to pay—or, even if payment is to be made at all. Cash Value can be adjusted up or down. Coverage can be increased or decreased—all to meet changing financial needs.
COST SAVINGS. Two new innovations make Contemporary Life the most cost effective policy you have ever seen:
1. One policy can serve all your life insurance needs—and, those of your family—thus saving issue and administrative costs involved in owning several policies.
2. The Cash Value in Contemporary Life is credited monthly with Current Interest as determined by the Company. Presently this is 9%. Interest credited will never be less than the guaranteed rate of 4%.
TAX BENEFITS: Contemporary Life enjoys all the tax advantages of traditional life insurance—Tax deferred interest accrual and tax free death benefits.
Contact us today, so we can provide you with additional information. You'll be amazed at what a difference Contemporary Life can make in your life.

Cuts And Consequences

Following editorial is from the Wall Street Journal:

From California to Massachusetts, elected officials are learning to live with the Tax Revolt. In some places, the lesson hasn't been easy; witness the Bay State's protracted struggle to adopt a budget, now coming to a head more than a week past the deadline. But the current experience is confounding the liberals' prediction that public support for Proposition 13 or 2½ would wither when those tax cut referenda began to bite. On the contrary, when state legislators have been choosing between cutting their budgets to trying to wriggle out of the tax limits, the tide has been running in favor of making the painful cuts.

In Massachusetts, what seems like a budget feud between two houses is actually an important struggle of principle over implementing Proposition 2½, the property tax limit on local governments which has just gone into effect. Elements in the state would like to see the measure discredited by crisis and chaos, so they could go back to the old ways of liberal free spending and patronage wheeling-dealing. More responsible leaders in the state Senate want to make the transition workable. Although most of the state's cities and towns are adapting smoothly to 2½, some of the larger ones do have a serious cash problem. So Senate Ways and Means Chairman Chester Atkins has been insisting on a budget that cuts back state spending to allow increased local aid.

As a result, Proposition 2½ has been shaking up state as well as local government. State Senator Atkins wanted to end the practice of specifying each and every executive branch job slot in the legislated budget, which gave House and Senate chairmen tremendous patronage power. He would let department heads manage their own personnel. The House rejected this elementary step toward sound management; Governor King offered an irrelevant compromise and was ignored; and so the state budget has been deadlocked.

In spite of the state's traditional disgust with its legislature, Senator Atkins has counted on public opinion to carry his point, and he has been receiving broad editorial support. Ironically, this 33-year-old self-proclaimed liberal originally opposed Prop. 2½. His role is like Governor Jerry Brown's in the aftermath of Prop. 13; no fan of the referendum, the governor nevertheless gave a good-faith effort to making it work, and received a million-vote re-election margin as his reward.

Meanwhile, California itself is supposed to be facing doomsday on Proposition 13, since the surplus that smoothed its own transition has been reduced to nine digits. Instead of chaos, however, the legislature met its constitutional budget deadline for the first time in almost a decade. Its $25.4 billion budget is only 3 per cent higher than last year's, the lowest rate of growth in recent memory. Rather than contemplate tax increases, the legislators made some impressive cuts, breaking the ratchet of automatic cost-of-living increases in many items. Senate Republican Leader William Campbell says this year's restrictions beat anything he could get even under Governor Reagan.

In fact, the issue in Sacramento now is whether to make more tax cuts. The legislature is about to pass a $125 million tax rebate program for "unsecured property," tying up a legal loose end from Prop. 13. And indexing of the state's personal income tax seems to be surviving its most serious challenge. This measure rather than Prop. 13, is the direct cause of the state's budget "crunch;" as currently practiced, it's estimated to have cut fiscal 1982 revenues by $2.5 billion. The present temporary indexing law covers all inflation-caused income increases. In the new fiscal year, it expires, leaving in effect a permanent indexing which covers only part of the inflation. In the early days of the budget debate, there was talk of weakening indexing even further. Yet the state Assembly is now considering a bill to make indexing both permanent and complete.

Reading the tea leaves in these two rather turbulent cups leads us to think there's a lot of political strength left in the taxpayer's revolt. The U.S. Congress may think it is doing things the easy way, making showy cuts in budget growth now in hopes of lessening the public demand for cuts in tax growth later. But the state experience shows that the people want both the tax cuts and the consequences.

Incentive To Save

Following editorial is from the Huron (S.D.) Daily Plainsman:

In the last quarter of 1979, the American savings rate, as measured against an individual's after-tax income, dropped to its lowest level in 30 years — 3.3 per cent. That was the first time it has been under four per cent in any quarter since 1951.

In West Germany, the rate was 14 per cent. There the government adds a bonus to special savings accounts that are frozen for six or seven years.

In Japan, the rate was 20 per cent. The Japanese government exempts from taxes virtually all interest income earned by the average Japanese citizen.

There is no mystery about the decline in American savings. The federal government, through its tax and regulation policies, has given Americans every incentive to go into debt and little or no incentive to save and invest.

In this country investment income is given a special classification. It is called unearned income. And in the higher brackets it can be taxed at higher rates than earned income. That classification is one of the targets of tax reduction legislation now working its way through Congress.

United States tax laws do provide for an exclusion of the first $100 of dividends for each person. Dividends, of course, have already been taxed once and the $100 exclusion has not been increased to keep pace with inflation.

If tax cuts are to be designed to spur productivity rather than to simply feed inflation, they should be designed to encourage rather than discourage savings. Savers should be rewarded rather than penalized.

A part of any tax reduction package should be a generous exemption of investment income for those who elect to save a higher percentage of their income. That is the type of incentive that has worked well in other industrial nations.

A Good Report

According to the Pennington soil and water conservation district, there were about 40,000 trees planted by district personnel in 1981. That's good news in a county where wind erosion last winter and spring was severe enough to make people think a lot more seriously about protecting their topsoil.

"A row of trees on the quarter line or closer will slow the wind down and help to prevent the blowing of precious topsoil," states SWCD conservationist Allan Gustafson. "Trees also provide wildlife habitat which is badly needed."

He adds that new plantings need to be kept weed-free for survival and that cultivation and-or use of approved chemicals is required. Trees not forced to compete with weeds for moisture and soil nutrients will become more vigorous.

Man doesn't seem to be happy unless he is rearranging nature's patterns. So it is that thousands of acres are cleared of trees and then hundreds of thousands of trees are planted to attempt to negate the losses which the initial tree removal helps cause.

Tree planting is a wise investment. Soil should be prepared now in areas where trees are to be planted next spring. A clean seed-bed gives trees an extra head-start. Information on trees and how to draw up a plan for tree planting is available at the county SWCD office on Dale street. You would make Allan and the rest of the staff happy if you stopped in for help and ordered your trees for next spring's planting.

Borrowed Nonsense:

A woman who has just finished a first aid course was seated next to an elderly man in a hot, stuffy church. Suddenly the man slumped toward the floor.

"Put your head between your knees," she whispered, placing her hand on the back of his neck and pushing him vigorously downward. "You'll feel better if the blood can get to your head."

"Please, lady," the man moaned, "I'm trying to pick up my hat!"

"Now that we've struck oil," the Texas farmer told his wife, "we're gonna go into town and buy you some decent clothes."

"Nothin' doing," the wife replied. "I've been wearing decent clothes all my life. Now I'm gonna dress like other women."

"Doctor, how can hypnosis help me lose weight?"

"I put you in a deep trance," the doctor explained. "Then in three weeks I wake you up."

LEGISLATIVE REPORT

by LeRoy Stumpf

STATE REPRESENTATIVE DISTRICT 1B

In my second column summarizing new laws passed by the 1981 Legislature I would like to focus on business and labor. One of the more controversial bills we passed this session falls into that category: workers' compensation.

Actually we dealt with several different workers' compensation bills throughout the session and there was extensive debate over what should be done about escalating insurance costs to business owners. In the end we passed a law slightly lowering current insurance rates, but also phasing out the workers' compensation system by 1985. At that time open competition between insurance companies will be allowed in Minnesota.

Specifically the new law calls for a 15 per cent reduction in insurance premiums, the net effect of that reduction — considering an 11.5 per cent rate increase recently granted by the Minnesota Commissioner of Insurance — will be insurance rates that will, on average, be 5 per cent lower than last year.

Administrative and Judicial reforms were made to speed up the processing on workers' comp claims and to depoliticize the court system. A major judicial change has to do with the elimination of any "liberal construction" of workers' comp law. Disputed claims, under the new law, will be treated like any other civil suit, where questions of law or fact must be decided on a "preponderance of the evidence".

Other features in the new law include changes in the "escalator clause" (a provision in present workers' comp law that allows automatic increases in worker benefits to compensate for inflation), a cap on the amount in death benefits, and a requirement that insurance companies disclose earnings from invested reserves when applying for rate increases.

In another area several laws were passed to protect labor rights. One of them includes new employment and salary guarantees for migrant workers. A person who employs 30 or more migrant workers per day for seven or more days a year through a recruiter must give each worker a statement in Spanish and English setting out the date and place of reporting for work, the date employment is to begin, hours, length of employment, type of crop and operation to be worked on, and wage and payment terms. Employers may be penalized for violations.

Another new law protects Indian-made goods by setting a penalty for anyone selling imitation goods without stating they are not Indian-made.

Public employees now are allowed to hold closed meetings if they are for the sole purpose of considering labor contract negotiations, but the time and place of the meetings and a list of those attending must be made public, the meetings tape-recorded, and the tapes made public once contracts are signed.

In the area of business, small businesses were given a great deal of consideration this session as we worked on laws to help them survive in light of rising operating costs. One new law should be particularly helpful in that it sets up a special tax category allowing commercial and industrial property to be taxed at 40 per cent of the first $50,000 of market value and 43 per cent on the rest. This could result in as much as an 18 per cent property tax reduction for some small businesses.

Laws governing small loans made by industrial loan and thrift companies were revised extensively. Companies can now make loans up to $35,000, make loans by mail, and open on Saturdays. Other provisions in the new law make changes in first and second mortgages on residential loan regulations, interest rates, fees and certain additional charges.

Laws governing registration and regulation of Minnesota's corporations also were revised for the first time since 1933. Modifications will make it easier for small, closely held private businesses to incorporate. Forms were simplified, corporate transactions made easier, and shareholders' access to information made less restrictive.

Besides these new laws I would like to inform you that the Minnesota Conference on Small Business is scheduled to take place in Minneapolis on November 13 and 14. Regional meetings were held during June and July to prepare for the state meeting. The topics of discussion were taxes, regulations, business development and regional affiars. A total of 402 delegates also were selected and they will carry regional concerns to the state conference. Each legislator may also appoint a delegate.

If you have any questions on the conference or any of the new business and labor laws I have summarized here, please feel free to contact me at the State Capitol, St. Paul, 55155. As always I welcome your comments so that I can better represent your interests in the Legislature.

Congressman
Arlan Stangeland

Before Congress begins its August recess, a major decision will have to be made about the shape of tax cuts for 1982 and beyond. Although the final versions of the tax-relief bills have not been completed, the general outlines of the tax bill alternatives are rapidly taking form.

There are many similarities between the bi-partisan Conable-Hance bill supported by President Reagan and the ways and means committee proposal, which is supported by the House Democratic leadership. But a major difference in the area of personal income tax relief exists.

The ways and means proposal will probably only call for a 15 per cent reduction in personal income tax rates over two years, while the Conable-Hance proposal calls for a 25 per cent reduction over three years.

In deciding which proposal to support, I have asked myself several tough questions.

Is any tax cut necessary?

In the last 10 years, federal taxes have increased by 177 per cent. If Congress doesn't act now, federal taxes will automatically increase by another 213 per cent by 1984, an increase of 390 per cent over 13 years.

The average taxpayer now works two hours and 49 minutes every day just to pay his federal taxes. Without a tax cut now, that taxpayer will have to work nearly four hours a day in 1984 just to pay his taxes, even if he receives raises that equal inflation. This cannot be tolerated; we need to cut taxes now.

Why vote for a 25 per cent cut instead of a 15 per cent cut?

Because of "bracket creep" tax increases caused by inflation and mandated increases in the social security tax, your tax bill will increase by at least 22 per cent by 1984. The ways and means committee's proposal for a 15 per cent reduction won't even cover these increases, much less reduce your current tax bill.

Is an across the board reduction fair?

If everyone gets an equal reduction in the rate of taxes they pay, those who pay more taxes will get a larger "dollar figure" reduction in their tax bill than those who pay fewer taxes. But even if the Conable-Hance tax plan is passed, people earning $60,000 a year will still be paying taxes at a rate 4.2 times higher than the rate paid by those earning $15,000 a year.

Another consideration is that people who earn between $10,000 and $50,000 a year pay 72 per cent of the federal taxes every year. Under the Conable-Hance proposal, these people would receive 73 per cent of the tax relief.

The middle class that pays the most in taxes gets the most tax relief.

Won't this tax cut be inflationary?

How can a tax cut be more inflationary by letting people keep more of their own money than by letting Congress spend it? Most people will always spend their own money more wisely than Washington would.

The three-year tax cut will also force Congress to restrain the growth of federal spending. President Reagan compared Congress to a profligate teenager. "It seems harder to get them to stop spending so much by yelling at them until you're blue in the face than by simply cutting their allowance," he said.

This is a clear need for a major tax cut to relieve the heavy burdens on individuals, families and businesses.

The Conable-Hance proposal seems to be large enough to relieve that burden without being inflationary. The bill is fair to all taxpayers and will provide pressure for Congress to pull in the belt on future budgets.

Views On® Dental Health

By Donald R. Goodrich, D.D.S.

WHEN THE TOOTH MUST GO

There is no substitute that can replace the natural teeth for strength, longevity and usefulness. But, there are times when the best decision is to extract the tooth. For example:

1) To relieve overcrowding: Occasionally there are too many teeth in the dental arch. Overcrowding can produce diseases, loosening, crooked teeth and a bad bite.

2) A hopelessly diseased tooth: Occasionally, a general body ill can be cured by removal of such a diseased tooth. Usual cause is waiting too long to see the dentist.

3) Looseness: Tooth loosens as a result of periodontal disease and bone loss. If it is so wobbly with insufficient supporting bone to save it, kiss it goodbye.

4) Appearance: When a tooth is so crooked that it will produce an unattractive smile or bulging lip, it should probably be removed (unless it can be reduced and crowned).

5) An impacted or imbedded tooth (normally the wisdom tooth), if it is a hazard to your oral health, would be extracted.

SOLVING PROBLEMS BEFORE THEY HAPPEN.
Lutheran Brotherhood announces MagniMed... a major medical program with 100% coverage for outpatient surgery and generic drugs.

A major need.
What would happen if you or a member of your family suffered a major illness or injury requiring an extended hospital stay, long term treatment, major surgery or a combination of all three? Are you really covered against such catastrophic costs by your current insurance?

Improving on a good thing.
Lutheran Brotherhood has recently introduced an extraordinary new major medical plan called MagniMed. It's designed to provide quality coverage at an affordable cost. Broad coverage, too. Unlike most other plans, for example, MagniMed pays a full 100% of your outpatient surgery and generic drug costs, after the deductible has been satisfied.

Flexible, million dollar coverage!
Among MagniMed's many other features are these:
• There are a number of deductible options so that you can tailor your coverage to what you can afford.
• There's no limit to the number of days or scheduled amount of benefits provided under the plan for intensive care, and room and board is provided based upon average local semi-private room rates.
• Coverage is provided either while confined in a hospital or while being treated as an outpatient.
• Each covered family member is eligible for up to $1,000,000 of lifetime benefits!

Taking the lead.
Once again Lutheran Brotherhood has spared no effort to provide Lutherans with the very best in insurance benefits ... at a very competitive cost. Once again we're ready and able to help you solve problems before they happen.

Find out now.
Don't wait another minute to protect yourself from the kind of calamity that could happen any minute. And if you already have major medical coverage, it could still be very worthwhile to compare it with what MagniMed offers. Call your nearby Lutheran Brotherhood representative today and find out all about MagniMed!

Citizens' Committee Proposed . . .

School Building Problems Remain

Further acknowledging that school building problems remain in the Thief River Falls school district, members of the board of education were asked by Supt. Robert Block at the regular meeting Monday evening to submit names of individuals to potentially serve on a citizens' committee on building problems.

Supt. Block suggested that individuals selected be contacted as soon as possible to outline intent of the committee with a meeting to be set for mid-September. At that time the group would organize and begin its work toward helping resolve some of the district's building problems.

Jerry Prickett, supervisor of buildings and grounds, distributed a report from Armstrong, Torseth, Skold and Rydeen architectural and engineering firm regarding energy use at the Lincoln high school complex. The report showed that removal of the old Washington building in the summer of 1979 resulted in a 12.5 per cent reduction in fuel consumption and the closing of the 1910 and 1919 building sections further reduced consumption by 19.7 per cent.

The engineering firm report noted that the reduction percentages given assume that nothing else was done to the buildings to reduce energy consumption. "It could be that the energy conservation measures your staff is taking could account for the reduction and not the closing of the building," engineer Tom Peterson wrote in his report to Prickett.

Bid of $59,900 from Prichard Brothers construction company of Thief River Falls for a remodeling project at the area vocational-technical institute was accepted.

Board members were informed that the Children and Parents Learning Together program would be housed at Franklin middle school for the coming school year. Resignation was accepted from Cheryl Swenson as secretary-librarian for the program. Ann Haugen was hired for that position and Christi Halbasch was hired as clerical aide for the program.

Business manager Harry Nelson informed the board that the audit for the previous school year had been completed and that the final report would be ready for presentation at approximately the last meeting in Septmber.

Approval was given by the board to the tentative school bus route schedule (an advertisement listing the schedule and other pertinent opening day information for the 1981-82 term will be published in the Shopper's Guide and August 19 issue of the Times) and the school lunch price schedule. School lunches will be 85 cents for students in kindergarten through fifth grade, $1 for grades six through 12 and $1.50 for adults. Milk price will be 20 cents for students and 25 cents for adults, rolls are priced at 30 cents and reduced meal price for qualifying students was placed at 40 cents.

Hired by the district were John Nagle, school psychologist; Lois Bergland, fourth grade at Washington; and Marcia Sandahl, secretary for the superintendent and board. Resignation was accepted

Tractor, Pickup Pull Is Planned For September 5

Thief River Falls Jaycees have made plans to hold a pickup truck and tractor pull contest on September 5 in Thief River Falls. The event is scheduled to start at 2 p.m. at the Pennington county fairgrounds.

The pull is sanctioned by the Red River Valley tractor pulling association, with the drivers accumulating points to be used in determining overall champions at the end of the season.

Scheduling for the event includes one stock and two modified pickup classes, with 11 tractor classes (seven out-of-field, one limited modified and three open). Total prize money for both is expected to be $2,600, with trophies being given in the out-of-field classes.

It is expected that the entries will include several multiple V-8 engine powered tractors, as well as tractors powered by large displacement aircraft engines. Also participating in the pull will be Don Anderson of Detroit Lakes in his modified jet engine powered tractor. The out-of-field classes will include tractors ranging from 5,500 pounds up to 24,000 pounds.

Entries for the pull will be limited, and entry fee will be $10 per class. Late entries (after September 1) will be $20. The weigh-in for pickups and out-of-field tractors will be held at the Land O'Lakes scale in Thief River Falls between 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. on the day of the pull. Entries can be sent to the Thief River Falls Jaycees, Box 53, Thief River Falls, MN. 56701.

Ticket prices have been set at $4 for adults and $1 for children under 12. All proceeds will go to the Jaycees for use in community events.

The tractor pull will be followed by an amateur fiddler's contest at 7 p.m. at the Thief River Falls city arena.

Subcommittee Hearing Set At Red Lake Falls

Minnesota House Agricultural Products and Marketing Subcommittee will hold a hearing in the Red Lake Falls City Hall at 9 a.m., August 20.

The hearing, one of a series called by Rep. LeRoy Stumpf, (District 1B), deals with House file 1018, relating to commodity research and promotion councils.

"I am pleased the committee will meet in our District," Stumpf said. "The bill under discussion is important to rural areas of Minnesota because it deals with the reorganization of the present structure of promotion councils."

Stumpf urged local area residents to attend the hearing and to testify if they wish.

Treasure Hunt Puzzle Solved; Prizes Awarded

Both treasures hidden during the Jaycee Aquacade this year were uncovered by treasure seekers on the same day, August 1.

The $100 treasure was discovered by Kelly Huttleson and Gordon Shetler, both of Thief River Falls, and Tracy Brewer of Lake Bronson in the chamber of commerce building. It was hidden in the prop area of a Wetbike on display.

Gary Johnson and Mike Anderson, both of Thief River Falls, discovered the $50 treasure hidden on a fire hydrant in front of the law enforcement center near a sign reading, "Water System."

Six Nominees Seek Hospital Trusteeship

Six candidates for trusteeship — five nominated by the nominating committee and one by petition — will be on the ballot for the annual meeting of Northwestern Hospital association to be held Monday evening, September 14.

Clyde Christensen, a former member of the board from 1962 to 1971, was nominated by petition in accordance with by-laws of the association prior to the August 3 deadline. His nomination included a written consent to serve if elected.

Previously nominated by the nominating committee were Evadell Tangquist, incumbent; Fran Stromberg, Silas Hanson, Ken Murphy and Arve Moser. Three trustees are to be elected at the annual meeting. No nominations may be made from the floor at the meeting.

In addition to Mrs. Tangquist, two other board members' terms expire this year. Marvin Ludin has completed three successive three-year terms and is thereby ineligible for reelection. Andrew Skaar has served more than five years, having been appointed to fill an unexpired term and then elected for one three-year term. He has chosen not to seek reelection.

Program arrangements are being made by the hospital for the annual meeting and will be announced at a later date.

Local Man Is Finalist For Teacher Of Year

Minnesota's teacher of the year for 1981 will be announced August 30 at the annual awards and recognition luncheon held in the great hall of the Radisson South, Bloomington.

The luncheon, open to the public, will begin at 1 p.m.

The winner will be chosen by a panel of 19 judges from 13 "Honor Roll" teachers, among them, Cal Lindberg, of Thief River Falls. They were selected from 34 teachers of excellence, who, in turn, were selected from 179 teacher of the year nominees representing 176 school district communities.

Plaques will be presented to honor roll teachers and teachers of excellence for 1981 by the co-sponsors of the 18th annual program, the Minnesota state fair and the Minnesota Education Association (MEA).

In addition to the plaque, the teacher of the year will receive a $500 scholarship from the state fair.

City, County To Study Oakland Sanitarium Use

EXPLAINING her philosophy following the recent Miss Thief River Falls pageant, is Marcy Reierson, of Newfolden, who has already begun to work on one of her goals as queen which involves making people as happy as possible. "Even if you don't win (in the pageant), you're still a winner just for trying," she stated during a recent interview. "You grow as a person in just learning to walk and talk in front of other people."

Appearance by Don Grabanski, member of the Pennington county board of commissioners, during the regular Thief River Falls city council meeting last evening, called attention to future use of the former Oakland Park sanitarium.

Grabanski's discussion last evening developed from a request by the Pennington county board for possible assistance from the city and planners in obtaining grants to open the building. "We need some direction," Grabanski explained last evening. "The building will deteriorate in a year or two and we must either upgrade it or demolish it."

Grabanski further explained that if the building was re-opened, it would be intended to fit into the environment present at Oakland Park nursing home. The board is presently looking at housing for the elderly.

"There is a need for this particular type of housing in the area," he said, "for those who would not qualify for Oakland Park nursing home or Valley Home." Monies needed to upgrade the building could not be handled by the county alone, he indicated.

Various questions must be answered before monies are discussed, Jack Quinlivan, city planner, said. "We must look at the intended use of the building by the county as an intermediate health care facility. We must determine if funding sources are available, and how to proceed with the project. Most importantly, we must find out if there is a need for this particular type of housing as the county has identified," he said.

Following discussion, it was resolved that the planning staff would work with the county on a cost fee basis in developing the project, and necessary questions raised by Quinlivan would be further studied. A unanimous roll call vote finalized the resolution. (Alderman Milan Borsheim was absent from last evening's meeting).

Not Winning Is Still Winning To Miss TRF

by Bonnie Wentzel
Times Reporter

"Even if you don't win, you're a winner," is the philosophy Marcy Reierson carried with her throughout the recent Miss Thief River Falls pageant, an annual highlight of the Jaycee Aquacade.

But Marcy was a winner. And when the touch of the glimmering crown was felt upon her head that evening as she stood on the lighted stage with six other candidates competing for the same title, winning became a reality.

"You can't believe it's really you!" the newly crowned Miss Thief River Falls exclaimed during an interview at the Reierson home. "I felt happy, surprised and honored." She remembers wondering what to do after the crown touched her head and after she was presented a bouquet of roses.

But even if she wouldn't have won the title this year, Marcy feels that everyone who participates in a pageant such as this is a winner just for trying.

"You gain so much knowledge for something (pageant participation) like this," she explained. "You grow as a person in just learning to walk and talk in front of other people."

"And it's good experience for mothers as well as for daughters," her mother smiled as she sat beside her daughter in the family dining room.

Marcy, 22, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Reierson of Newfolden. She has two brothers, Mark, 20, a construction worker who resides in Holt, and Marty, 24, a Soo Line railroad employee who resides with his wife, Gloria and their two children, Paul, 4 and Amy, 2, in Thief River Falls.

The fact that Marcy is the only girl in the family doesn't bother her. "You're maybe sometimes a little spoiled by your mom and dad because you're the only girl," she said, "but my brothers have been great. We help each other out, and the older you grow, the closer you grow.

"Besides," she smiled, "I always used to tell Mom and Dad to order me a sister from a mail order catalog and they never would, so I had to learn to live as the only girl in the family."

Glimpses of sincerity, honesty and a deep concern for people emerged from

MARCY REIERSON, Newfolden, was crowned Miss Thief River Falls for 1981 during the recent Miss Thief River Falls pageant, a highlight of the annual Jaycee Aquacade. Miss Reierson was also the winner in the evening gown division of the pageant, and co-winner of the swimsuit division.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Kohler And Erickson Marriage Vows Spoken

Mr. and Mrs. Kent Lee Erickson are at home in Thief River Falls, at Basswood Trailer court, following an exchange of marriage vows at St. John Lutheran church and a wedding trip to northern Minnesota.

The bride, the former Kristine June Kohler, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Kohler of 225 South Maple. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Leif Erickson of 412 South Markley.

Approximately 250 relatives and friends attended the double ring ceremony that took place at 4:00 p.m., with Rev. Kenneth Wittenburg officiating. Kristi Gerardy, a friend of the couple, served as organist. She played "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," and "Bridal Chorus," for the processional and recessional; and also accompanied Jeff Liden, a friend of the couple, as he sang, "God, A Woman and a Man," "Wedding Song," and "The Lord's Prayer."

Forming the chancel setting were arrangements of daisies on the altar. Pink ribbon bows marked the pews.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, was attired in a gown of white chiffon with a full floor-length skirt that swept back into a cathedral length train. The empire bodice featured an overlay of reembroidered Alencon lace trimmed with pearls. Matching lace outlined the Queen Anne neckline and formed the cuffs on the sheer bishop sleeves. Her tiered veil of bridal illusion, enhanced with lace motifs, fell from a fitted lace headpiece. She carried a cascade of Old English roses and rose buds, accented with white carnations, burgundy tipped spider Cymbidium orchids, babies' breath, greenery and satin ribbon backed with lace.

Kathleen Levi of Grand Forks, N.D., attended her sister as matron of honor. Julie Gilbert, a friend of the couple, was maid of honor, and Kelly Erickson, a sister of the groom, and Linda Mattson, a friend of the couple, were bridesmaids. All wore daphne lustre glo knit gowns in wrap-around style with V-necklines and a cowl back. At the waistline were long self tie belts. The attendants carried lace backed rounded bouquets featuring white carnations, Old English roses, burgundy silk babies' breath, greenery and colored ribbon loops.

Kurt Erickson, a brother of the groom, served as best man. Groomsmen were Dan Vigness, Jaye Johnson, friends of the couple; and James Kohler, a brother of the bride. Serving as ushers were Bruce Levi, Grand Forks, brother-in-law of the bride; and Greg Omdahl, a friend of the couple.

The groom, attired in a white tuxedo, had a double sweetheart rose boutonniere, surrounded by babies' breath, pinned on his lapel. His attendants wore peek-a-boo boutonnieres featuring white carnations centered with a tipped rose bud; and the ushers' boutonnieres were of burgundy carnations, babies' breath and greenery.

The mother of the bride wore a floor-length gown of dusty rose Silesta knit fashioned with a flared A-line skirt and a blouse-on bodice styled in cape effect. Her corsage consisted of three sweetheart tipped roses with white ribbon, babies' breath and greenery. A similar corsage complemented the long sleeved off-white gown, in rose floral design, worn by the mother of the groom.

Special guests were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kohler, Detroit Lakes, grandparents of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Lief Erickson, Sr., grandparents of the groom, and Sarah Samuelson, the bride's personal attendant.

A reception in the church parlors followed with the bride's cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Sorenson, Fargo, N.D., as host and hostess. Joy Kaushagen, Grand Forks, and Holli Drees, Minneapolis, presided at the guest book. Punch was served by Kathy Bottom and Diane Johnson.

Centering the reception table was a four-tiered wedding cake baked and decorated by Mrs. Lowell Knutson, a friend of the bride. The cake was decorated in the bride's chosen colors and topped with the same ornament that graced the cake at the wedding of the bride's parents on June 15, 1956. Mrs. Robert Reeve, a friend of the bride's family, and Mrs. Dean Kronke, Minneapolis, an aunt of the groom, cut the cake. Pouring coffee were Mrs. Norman Eidenschink, Crookston, cousin of the bride, and Mrs. Al Van Wart, Omaha, Neb., aunt of the groom. Beth Strom and Marlene Johnson arranged the gifts.

Relatives and friends attending were from Tulsa, Okla., Fargo, Hankinson and Grand Forks, N.D., Crookston, Detroit Lakes, Harmony, LaCrescent, Frazee, Edina, Park Rapids, Kennedy and Karlstad, as well as the Thief River Falls area.

The bride and groom are graduates of Lincoln high school and both are employed in this city. The bride is employed at First Northwestern bank, and the groom at Thief River Falls Times. Photo, R. L. Nieland Studio, Thief River Falls.

Bonnie Reed-Rod Wentzel Exchange Original Vows

Miss Bonnie J. Reed and Rod Wentzel exchanged marriage vows on Saturday, July 18, at 4:00 p.m., at an outdoor ceremony at Oakland Park, Thief River Falls. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Reed, 824 North Reserve avenue and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Wentzel, 227 Merriam avenue north.

Rev. Roger E. Raebel of St. John's Lutheran church, Red Lake Falls, officiated at the double ring ceremony, which included vows written by the couple: At the organ was Sherry Westman, a cousin of the groom. She played "Trumpet Voluntary," as the wedding party assembled at the altar. During the ceremony, the groom sang, "Morning Has Broken," and "I Will" with Mark Thrall, Fargo, N.D., providing the guitar accompaniment for the last selection.

Forming the background for the bridal party were baskets of orange lilies, babies' breath and greenery. The altar was accented with a floral cross, designed by the groom.

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her parents. She was attired in a gown of white polyester knit with reembroidered lace accenting the gathered bodice, stand-up collar, and Queen Anne neckline. Matching lace formed the cuffs of the bishop sleeves and trimmed the white derby hat, complimented by yellow silk roses and a veil of bridal illusion. She carried a bouquet of yellow sweetheart roses, white Majestic daisies, babies' breath and white ribbon streamers. Her locket was borrowed from her sister, Patty Liden of Grand Forks, N.D., who served as matron of honor and personal attendant. Mrs. Liden wore a yellow spaghetti strapped gown styled with elbow length sleeves and a floor-length skirt featuring a tulip overskirt.

Other attendants were Janice Kotok, Middle River, a friend of the bride; Renee Reed, a sister of the bride; Debi Wentzel, Redwood Falls, a sister-in-law of the groom, and Diann Anderson, Middle River, a friend of the bride. All wore yellow, elbow-length gowns of their own design. They carried bouquets of yellow rose buds and white daisies, tied with yellow ribbon. Their headpieces were wreaths of yellow and white flowers.

Mark Thrall of Fargo, a friend of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen were Mike Liden, Grand Forks, a brother-in-law of the bride; Danny Reed, a brother of the bride, and Kent and Randy Wentzel, brothers of the groom. They wore light brown suits with yellow shirts, brown bow ties and yellow rose boutonnieres, accented with babies' breath. The groom wore all white attire and the best man and the fathers wore white suits with yellow ruffled shirts.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Reed selected a blue gown featuring a floor-length, pleated skirt and a cape effect top edged with a wide off-white lace. The mother of the groom wore a light blue, long-sleeved, floor-length gown with a matching sash tied at the waistline. Like the other flowers at the wedding, their corsages were of yellow roses, white daisies and babies' breath.

Similar corsages were worn by the honor guests, Mrs. Caroline Brunelle, grandmother of the bride, and Mrs. Bethea Menzies, grandmother of the groom.

A reception for 200 relatives and friends followed at the Thief River Falls Country club. Host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Thrall, Grand Forks, friends of the couple. Marsha Larson, a friend of the bride, was at the guest book. Presiding at the gift table were Jane Staudt of Bemidji and Marianne Stark, friends of the couple. Waitresses were Lori, and Marie Kotok of Middle River, friends of the bride. Punch was served at the park by the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Roy.

Centering the serving table was a pillard, four-tiered wedding cake with a flowing water fountain on the bottom tier. The cake was iced in white and decorated with yellow roses and white sugar bells. Topping the upper tier was a pillared gazebo with a miniature bride and groom. The cake was cut and served by Retta Kotok, friend of the couple, and Dorothy Wentzel, aunt of the groom. Pouring coffee were Doris Goulet, great-aunt of the bride, and Donna Menzies of Hamilton, N.D., aunt of the groom. The group "Foolish Pleasure" provided music for dancing.

For traveling on the wedding trip to Canada, to the Kenora, Ontario resort area, the bride wore a blue denim skirt with a red and white blouse.

The bride is a graduate of Lincoln high school, Northland Community college and St. Cloud State university. She is employed as reporter and photographer for the Thief River Falls Times. The groom, also a graduate of Lincoln high school and Northland Community college, received his degrees at the Minneapolis college of Art and Design and Bemidji State University. Dear Readers,

Think of how many people witness a birth and what preparation and anticipation surround this event. It would seem fitting that a lifetime is worthy of some ceremony at its final moment, its final act. Nothing elaborate — the simple presence of another human being is all the dying really need to let them know they are not abandoned.

Respectfully,

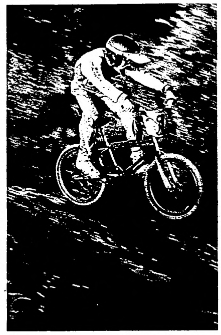
SOMETHING NEW was added to the schedule of activities during the Jaycee Aquacade this year with bicycle motocross racing for youngsters. A course has been established off Oakland Park road and competition was held in several age groups with prizes awarded to the winners. Preliminary heats were run in each age group and heat winners were entered in the final races. This racer leans low over his bike as he takes one of the many jumps built into the track.



ON HIS WAY to a first place finish in one of the heats of bicycle motocross racing during the Jaycee Aquacade recently was this young racer. All that was needed for competition was a bicycle in good condition, protective headwear, long-sleeved shirt and long pants. Spills were surprisingly infrequent, however, as the riders exhibited good control of their bikes.

Larry Vigen Marshall Co. King Agassiz

Marshall county's 1981-82 King Agassiz plaque was presented to Larry Vigen of Goodridge by Don Sargeant, King Agassiz XXI, during the 4-H night program at the county fair July 24.

Vigen is clerk of the District 561 school board, member of Faith Lutheran church and Goodridge VFW and vice president of the Lions club.

As part of the King Agassiz program, he will be involved as a county candidate during the 1982 Red River Valley winter shows in Crookston.

Vigen's family includes his wife Mayvonne and children David, Paul and Leah.

Mister Rogers Has Special School Show

"Mister Rogers Talks With Parents About School," a special for parents of children who are starting school, will be rebroadcast on Wednesday, August 19, at 7 p.m. by Prairie Public Television. The special will be seen on many PBS stations in conjunction with the rebroadcast of five special Mister Rogers' Neighborhood programs for young children who are about to go to their first day of school. Mister Rogers' Neighborhood is televised weekdays at 4 p.m. by Prairie Public Television.

Appearing on "Mister Rogers Talks With Parents About School" with Fred Rogers is Sandy Hill, of ABC's Good Morning America. Rogers is also assisted by Ellen Galinsky, a noted author, educator, lecturer, and expect in the field of child and adult development.

"Most parents know that beginning school can be a difficult and even frightening experience for children," Rogers says. "Often, going to school is the first big experience outside the home, the first time that children are away from their parents for several hours each day."

"Young children frequently have misconceptions about what school really is, what their teachers will be like, how much they will have to know, and who will take care of them," Rogers explains. "For many children, going to school for the first time can mean playschool or nursery school. For others, it means kindergarten or first grade. But for all of them, it means questions to be asked and answered, reassurances to be given and received — and not just for the child, but for the parents, too."

As an extension of the week's programming theme, a free booklet, "When Your Child Goes to School," is available by sending a self-addressed stamped business-size envelop to School, c-o "Mister Rogers' Neighborhood," Pittsburgh, PA 15213.

Date Extended For Volunteer Waste Sites

Minnesota Waste Management board has extended the deadline for the proposal — by landowners, private firms or local governments — of "volunteered" sites for a possible hazardous waste disposal facility from August 21 to September 4, board chairman Robert Dunn announced.

Waste management board — which will select a hazardous waste disposal site by January of 1984 — announced July 23 that the "study areas" for possible hazardous waste disposal sites had been refined from more than 2,700 square miles in 24 counties to approximately 900 square miles in 21 counties.

In searching for a hazardous waste disposal site, the board has also provided guidelines for the consideration of sites "volunteered" outside the study areas.

"Throughout the process of refining and 'narrowing' areas likely to yield safe and acceptable disposal sites the board has acknowledged that other potentially suitable sites may not have been picked up on our initial 'screen' of the state," Dunn said. "Procedures have been set up, therefore, to consider 'volunteered' sites.

"The board expects to propose approximately 20 one-square-mile sites for detailed analysis by September 10," Dunn added.

"In accordance with that siting process we have extended the deadline for the volunteering of disposal sites — previously set for August 21 — to September 4."

Dunn explained that the board will consider volunteered sites submitted by:

—Individuals or private firms proposing sites on land which they own, or which they have options to buy;

—Individuals or firms proposing sites on public lands;

—Counties, municipalities, townships and other local units of government proposing sites on land within their jurisdiction;

—State agencies proposing sites on lands which they hold or on other lands; and —Regional development commissions, proposing sites within their regions by formal commission resolutions.

"The board is not actively searching outside the study areas for possible sites, but is providing landowners and local governments with the opportunity to propose potentially suitable sites outside of those areas," the chairman emphasized. "Our guidelines are designed to ensure that only those persons knowledgeable about volunteered sites will propose them to the board."

Persons interested in volunteering a site as a potential location of a hazardous waste disposal facility can contact Gordon Hester, Minnesota Waste Management Board, 7323 58th Avenue North, Crystal, MN 55428, (612) 536-0816 (outstate 1-800-652-9747).

PILLOW THEATRE company, an international ensemble touring Minnesota this summer, made a special appearance in a parade conducted recently during the Thief River Falls Jaycee annual Aquacade festivities. A special theatrical production was conducted by the six-member group at the Floyd B. Olson park as part of the annual Aquacade celebration.

Methodists To Conduct Survey

United Methodist congregation will be conducting a religious survey in Thief River Falls from August 16-29.

Purposes of the short survey will be to invite people to attend neighborhood Bible studies and-or Christian faith studies, to inform new residents of the many church opportunities available to them in Thief River Falls, and to encourage people without a church home to come and be part of a church fellowship.

The survey is not intended as an instrument to persuade church goers to change churches. All local pastors have been notified of the planned survey and the results will be shared with local congregations.

WAVING GOOD-BYE to Thief River Falls residents as her reign as Miss Thief River Falls drew near was Alice Melgard of Warren. Miss Melgard appeared in the Jaycee Aquacade parade in Thief River Falls recently along with the seven Miss Thief River Falls candidates, and special guest Miss Minnesota of 1981, Elizabeth Ann Ruyak.

Answers from the Bible by Pastor Don Peros

Q. Pastor Don, do you believe in the eternal punishment of all the unsaved or non-Christians?

A. We know nothing positively and absolutely about the future except what God Himself has been pleased to reveal in the Bible. All beyond this is pure speculation, and man's speculation on such a subject is practically valueless. On such a subject as this an ounce of God's revelation in Scripture is worth tons of man's empty speculation. God has clearly revealed in the Bible the fact of eternal punishment for those who persist in sin and in the rejection of Jesus Christ as their personal Saviour.

II Thessalonians 1:7-9 teaches, that when the Lord Jesus comes back from heaven all those that know not God and obey not the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ shall be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord, and from the glory of His power.

Matthew 25:41 & 46 Jesus says to the unsaved, "Depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels; vs. 46: "And these shall go away into everlasting punishment: but the righteous into life eternal."

People are always asking me, how can a loving God, send people to such terrible punishment for ever and ever.

God does not send people to eternal punishment. People send themselves there. God gives them a choice to receive His only begotten Son as their personal Saviour and the only means for their forgiveness of sins or to reject Christ and choose eternal punishment.

John 3:18 says, "He that believeth on Him (Christ) is not condemned: but he that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God.

John 3:16 says, "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life.

The everlasting torment which any one may endure will be simply the inevitable result of his own deliberate and persistent choice of sin.

Farmers Co-Op To Operate M.R. Elevator

Effective August 1, the Farmers Co-op Grain and Seed association of Thief River Falls will be operating the former Grain Terminal association (GTA) line elevator at Middle River.

According to Farmers Co-op manager Alfred Bareksten, the facility will be leased from GTA with an option to buy.

GTA president B.J. Malusky said the move is part of a general realignment taking place in the regional grain marketing cooperative's country elevator operations.

"Railroad abandonments and rising costs of operations are making it necessary for local cooperatives to merge and consolidate for greater volume and financial strength," Malusky said.

"We believe that leasing the Middle River facility to Thief River Falls will benefit both communities and provide even better service to those farmers who had been shipping to Middle River."

Since Middle River is on the Burlington Northern and Thief River Falls is on the Soo Line railroad, Malusky said the combined cooperatives will now have two alternatives when shipping grain by rail.

Bareksten will be general manager of the combined operations and Orin Hunt will remain as manager at Middle River. Bareksten said billings and patronage dividends will be issued from Thief River Falls.

Also Rev. George V. Peterson, 1935-1938; Rev. Isaac Hoyem, 1938; Rev. Roy N. Wiberg, 1938-1941; Rev. H. Val Johnson, 1942-1943; Rev. Leonard Lindholm, 1943-1957; Rev. Eldor Langager, 1957-1963; Rev. John Lind, 1964-1969; Rev. Paul Mann, 1970-1972; Rev. Marden Wickman, 1973-1979; and Rev. Donald Peres, 1979 to the present time.

Since 1887 — well before the church was formally organized — 13 pastors have served in interim capacities. Most recent of these are Jacob Elving, Arnold Forlden, John Terpstra and Allen Fadel, the latter of whom has served three times since 1964.

In December of 1945 the name of the church was changed from Scandinavian Mission church to Mission Covenant church. In January of 1967 it was changed to the present name of Evangelical Covenant church to conform to the denominational name.

The church was incorporated in 1913, affiliated with the Evangelical Covenant church of America in 1920 and the Northwest Mission association in 1929. It was not until 1938 that the English language was used extensively in the services.

From 1944 through 1957 the congregation was involved in tent mission services with the Evangelical Free church and the First Baptist church. When the Mission Covenant church of St. Hilaire merged with the Thief River Falls church in 1965, about 40 people were added to the membership.

In 1977 the church hosted the annual meeting of the Northwest Mission association with delegates from most of the 138 member churches. It was only the second time the conference had been held in the Red River valley.

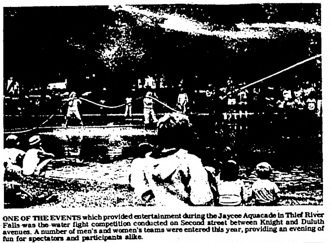
Original church building was located at First street and Markley avenue in Thief River Falls and was built in 1896. A basement and heating plant were added in 1938 and a Sunday school annex was constructed in 1950. The congregation bought three downtown lots in May of 1944 for $2,050. They were later sold to the city and comprise the parking lot south of the U.S. Post office.

In 1958 the congregation voted to build a new church building on the present site at 1425 Third st. E. The building was completed in 1959 at a cost of about $62,000. A parsonage on adjacent property was also built in 1959 for about $14,000. In 1970 the fellowship and educational unit was constructed at a cost of about $75,000. Present valuation of the church, parsonage and educational building is $450,000.

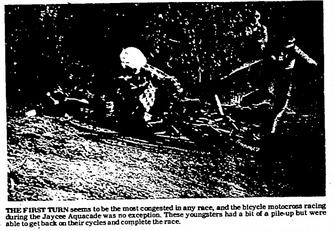
Chairmen of the congregation over the years include Charles Gustafson (who served more than 20 years), A.V. Brodin, David Drotts, Mendell Erickson, Donald Thyren, Marvin Anderson, Robert Swanson, Rodney Brodin and Kenneth Schroeder. Thyren is present chairman and has served for three terms.

Secretaries have been Oscar Soderquist, John Erickson, August Roadfeldt, Hannah Gustafson, J.T. Pohlhammar, O.J. Lundell, Gust Anderson, Fred Lorenson, A.V. Brodin, Mendell Erickson, Nels Holmberg, Kenneth Thyren, Lawrence McDowell, Marvin Anderson, Brunelle Schrotenboer, William Dekkers and Carl Anderson.

Treasurers have been N. Bergvall, August Nordin, Erick Olson, Andrew Eklund, J.V. Hemmingson, John Erickson, M.F. Philstrom, Reuben Styrlund, L.A. Ulvin, Marvin Anderson, James Erickson, David Drotts, Dwight Tangquist, Dr. Donald Goodrich and Carl Reed.



ONE OF THE EVENTS which provided entertainment during the Jaycee Aquacade in Thief River Falls was the water fight competition conducted on Second street between Knight and Duluth avenues. A number of men's and women's teams were entered this year, providing an evening of fun for spectators and participants alike.



THE FIRST TURN seems to be the most congested in any race, and the bicycle motocross racing during the Jaycee Aquacade was no exception. These youngsters had a bit of a pile-up but were able to get back on their cycles and complete the race.

Not Winning Still Winning To Miss TRF

Marcy as she explained her past, present and future accomplishments and ambitions. Her roster of sports and hobbies, just as her high school and college honors, described an interest in herself as well as in others.

Her hobbies include riding bike, baking, skiing, camping, badminton and latch hooking; her sports, broomball, jogging, softball, volleyball and swimming.

A 1977 graduate of Marshall County Central high school, Marcy attended Northland community college, earning her Associate in Arts degree and Bemidji state university, earning her bachelor of science degree in elementary education. She also student taught third grade at Mark Twain elementary school in Thief River Falls.

In high school, Marcy was a member of the national honor society, danceline, District I Future Homemakers of America, office education association, speech team, band, 4-H, was included on the honor roll, and was chosen to "Who's Who Among American High School Students."

In college, she received the tri-community scholarship, 4-H scholarship, was a member of the dean's list and graduated from Bemidji state university cum laude.

This fall, because she wants to be close to "home" to represent the city of Thief River Falls, Marcy has accepted a teaching position in Karlstad, where she will instruct first grade students.

"I hope to visit the nursing homes for one thing," she said, explaining her work as the reigning Miss Thief River Falls. "Especially at Christmas. I want to make people happy and do the best job I can."

Also included in her future as the reigning Miss Thief River Falls will be appearances in Newfolden in September to crown the 1981 queen, Blast to Brooks, Middle River Goose Festival, Grygla Fall Fest, and the Grand Forks UND Potato Bowl, along with special guest appearances in parades and other activities. Her first appearance following the Miss Thief River Falls pageant will be at a tractor pull at the Pennington county fairgrounds September 5.

Marcy, who was also the winner in the evening gown division and co-winner in the swimsuit division, will receive a number of prizes as the holder of the Miss Thief River Falls title. Included are a $750 scholarship, $1,200 travel and expense allowance for related activities, a silver tray, crown, professional hair grooming for public appearances at the Model Hair Shoppe, and a custom made ring from the Jewel Box, before she competes in the Miss Minnesota pageant in Austin next summer.

She plans to use her scholarship money to go back to school to study in the area of special education, she said. Last summer, she was employed at the Bemidji juvenile training center, a job which she came to enjoy with time. "It's slow (teaching) because of the kids' backgrounds," she said, "but it's rewarding because work involves closer relationships with students since teaching is on a one-to-one basis.

Besides working with special education students, Marcy would also like to do more traveling in the future, especially throughout the United States since she hasn't traveled much beyond Minnesota, she said.

There will always remain with Marcy those memories from the evening she acquired the title of Miss Thief River Falls: charm sessions preceding the pageant, tense moments seated before a panel of judges answering questions with little preparation, her lucky number five button sailing to the floor that had to be ignored during a dance routine, the special cake baked by her Mom to "Our number one gal," and finally standing before a crowded auditorium of family and friends as Miss Thief River Falls.

"Everyone helped with the pageant," Marcy stated. "And you need a lot of help. There were so many people who called just to say 'Good Luck'."

For those girls considering entering a pageant, Marcy feels that if girls want to enter they should. "I dreamed of it every year," she said. "Then I decided I had to do it before I was too old. I did, and won."

Marcy's goal in life, she said, is to accomplish as much as she can each day. I'm glad of who I am and where I am. I'm happy at what I'm doing and I want to continue doing the best I can so people remember me when I'm gone.

"The main thing (in a pageant) is to go out and have fun. I did and everything went all right."

City, County To Study Use For San Bldg.

Council members were extended a series of "thank yous" by Jerry Sandstrom, executive vice president of the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce during the meeting, for the city's help in providing $1,500 to the chamber to print brochures illustrating life in Thief River Falls, and for city participation in the recent promotional blitz in Winnipeg.

"The outcome of that visit," Sandstrom said, "was the proclamation by Mayor Robert Carlson of Manitoba Day in Thief River Falls August 3 during which time many Canadians visited the city of Thief River Falls."

In matters following from the last regular city council meeting, John W. Johnson, city tree inspector, appeared before city council members with revised copies of tree regulations to aid in the prevention of Dutch Elm disease as well as to offer information on where and how to properly plant other types of trees. During the last regular city council meeting, the issue was referred to the city attorney for proper wording of the regulations and for further study.

Result of the attorney's study, is a "very good set of regulations," according to Johnson. Discussion of fees for removing diseased trees brought statements by Johnson of taking down the trees at no costs to anyone, regardless if they are on public or private property, and asked for more cooperation on the matter from the city than was presently visible.

Mayor Carlson suggested during the meeting the idea of relief for those potential homeowners who would be unable to pay costs for having their diseased elm trees removed.

Following discussion and a unanimous roll call vote, the tree ordinance was approved and adopted.

In other matters last evening, two-hour parking zones were established from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Arnold Ave. south, from Zeh street north to the railroad tracks, following a request from Ken Froschheiser, chief of police.

Dave Kildahl of the Stewart and Walker Engineering firm, discussed with council the status of the First street bridge widening project.

Kildahl described the request from Pennington county for the engineering firm to continue to process proper advertising procedures for the "opportunity for a public hearing on the project." Period preceding a possible public hearing on the issue would involve a 30-day public notice of the project during which time the public could respond to the project if they desired. No response could mean no hearing, Kildahl indicated. The state decides if a hearing is in order, following public notice of the project. No action was taken by council on the matter last evening.

Meeting was adjourned following the mention of October 22 as the tentative date for a "How To" session for the purpose of discussing use of private and public resources during the present economic depression. Included within the discussion of the tentative meeting in October were possible uses of the old library in Thief River Falls.

Next regular city council meeting has been scheduled for August 25 in the council chambers of the city auditorium.

Reduction in state aids to cities and the financing of city government will be issues for the League in the 1982 Legislative Session.

Wheat Growers President Asks More Controls

Secretary of agriculture John Block's recent announcement that the Reagan administration will not be looking toward any production controls for the 1982 wheat crop has drawn criticism from the wheat growers association.

In a message delivered to Block last week, National Association of Wheat Growers President Jim Billington of Altus, called the current U.S. stocks situation "persuasive evidence for consideration of an "acreage adjustment program."

Billington said that this year's record wheat harvest could swell total supplies to 143 per cent of projected domestic and export utilization and would generate the largest ending stock level in five seasons. "The outlook will be worse if projected exports of 1.7 billion bushels and high estimates of domestic feed consumption are not realized," he said.

The current condition of wheat markets is a "very serious problem which deeply affects the livelihood of all grain farmers," Billington said. He indicated that acreage adjustment is one of the most cost-effective tools that can be used to manage stocks and, in combination with other action, can keep farm prices well above the level that triggers direct payments to growers. "Farmers certainly want to see market prices average above this level, and we trust this is also a goal of current farm policy," the NAWG president said.

Billington told Secretary Block that wheat growers "applaud the administration's commitment to expanding exports," but also pointed out that the burdensome supply situation "cannot be corrected by exports alone." Market-oriented farm policies require responsible supply management actions and "USDA must take into account the need to adjust production to promote a reduction in inventories and market price recovery," he said.

Groups Get Art Grants; Funds Available

Northwest regional correction center, the Goodridge historical society, the Pioneer Memorial home of Erskine and TANK Productions of Warroad involve area residents from all walks of life. What do they have in common?

The answer is art. These organizations are a few of the successful applicants to the Northwest regional development commission (NWRDC) for local arts development grant funds (production assistance) within the last year.

The NWRDC regrants Minnesota state arts board funds in two grant categories. One, the previously mentioned local arts development funds, are for projects or activities that develop or enhance the artists, arts resources, or art audiences within the seven counties of Region I. In fiscal year 1982 there is $14,557 to be distributed in three grant cycles.

The other, sponsor assistance, is a new grant category to be handled by the NWRDC. These funds are available for the sponsoring of arts activities or events in all art disciplines. The activities can range from a performance of presentation to the sponsorship of an artist-in-residence who works within a community or school for a specific period of time.

ON DISPLAY in the lobby of Northern state bank recently were the 57 entries in the embroidery and stitchery competition sponsored by the Thief River Falls community arts council in cooperation with the bank. There were prizes awarded in five divisions and a variety of projects entered in the competition. The show closed last week and entries were picked up by the exhibitors on Monday.

SWIMSUIT division winners named during the Miss Thief River Falls pageant conducted recently during the annual Jaycee Aquacade were Marcy Reierson (left), of Newfolden, who was also crowned Miss Thief River Falls for 1981, and won the evening gown competition, and Tracy Foldesi of Greenbush. Winners in the swimsuit division of the pageant received inscribed pendants.

The grant deadlines for production assistance funds in the next year are September 1, December 1 and March 1.

Sponsor Assistance fund deadline is November 25.

For more information on the grant categories and an application form, contact Pat Scharmer at the Northwest Regional Development Commission, 425 Woodland Avenue, Crookston, MN 56716 (281-1396).

Thief River Falls American Legion baseball team finished the 1981 season Sunday with a 24-14-1 record and a runner-up finish in the District 9 tournament at Moorhead's Matson Field. Only the perennially strong Moorhead Blues, who beat Thief River Falls 7-1 and 4-1 during the course of the four-day, eight-team, double-elimination tournament, stood in the way of an American Legion state tournament berth. Thief River Falls beat Breckenridge 7-4, Barnesville 15-8 and Crookston 8-2 but couldn't overcome Moorhead, a team that has won the tournament seven times over the last eight years.

"If you would have said we'd finish second in the district at the beginning of the year, I would have said great, I'll take it," Thief River Falls coach Nick Drees said this week. "But when you get there and get that close to winning it . . ."

Drees was naturally disappointed in falling short of a tournament title, but he did acknowledge satisfaction in Thief River Falls' post-season tournament play, which started with a come-from-behind 3-2 win over East Grand Forks in the Northwest League Sub District semifinals and was followed by a stunning 6-0 shutout over regular season Northwest League champion Crookston in the Sub District finals played here.

"I was disappointed when we lost, but still, I've got to be satisfied," mentioned Drees, who led a veteran 1980 club to a 27-14 finish in his first year as Thief River Falls American Legion coach. This summer he took a mostly young, inexperienced team and nearly duplicated the record while enjoying a better post-season performance than 1980 when Thief River Falls was the Northwest League Sub District runner-up and did not reach the District 9 finals.

"I said a month ago I thought this team could be better than last year's team, and they proved it," stated Drees.

A pair of Thief River Falls players who really stood out in post-season play were Mark Ludin and Delray Ness.

Lundin led the Thief River Falls offense by collecting 14 hits in 26 at-bats in tournament play, an impressive .538 batting average. He was 9-for-19 in five District 9 games (.473) after going 2-for-3 against East Grand Forks and 3-for-4 against Crookston in the Northwest League Sub District tournament.

"Mark is a streak hitter," noted Drees. "He really hit the ball well for us in the tournament; he hit the ball hard."

Ness, one of five Middle River players on the Thief River Falls team, proved to be club's most effective pitcher down the stretch. In five post-season games the righthander did not give up an earned run in 20 innings of work. Sub District performances included a final inning save against East Grand Forks when he gave up one hit but no runs, and a two-hit shutout of Crookston in the finals when he struck out nine and walked just two. In the District 9 tournament Ness went five innings against Barnesville to get the win, striking out three and walking two while giving up three unearned runs; pitched four innings of no-run, no-hit ball against Crookston, striking out two and walking two in a no-decision performance; and went through three scoreless innings against Moorhead in the finals without walking or striking out a batter.

However, he used up his available innings at that point (12 innings over three days, or three appearances) and Moorhead scored two runs in both of the next two innings to defeat relief pitcher Scott McKeever.

"Delray really developed into a decent pitcher," praised Drees. "He didn't walk people."

Drees said he takes part of the glame for the 4-1 final game loss to Moorhead, feeling he could have used Ness' innings a little more effectively. Thief River Falls win Sunday would have forced a Monday night championship game and Ness would have been alloted another eight innings on the mound.

"It would have been interesting to see what would have happened if Delray would have been able to continue to pitch," reflected Drees. "He had no problems with them (Moorhead) for three innings."

TRF Falls To Moorhead In District 9 Finals

Thief River Falls American Legion baseball team, after surprising regular season champion Crookston 6-0 in the finals of the Northwest League Sub District playoffs, challenged for District 9 honors before losing to Moorhead 4-1 in the Sunday night finals of the eight-team, double-elimination state tournament-qualifying event at Matson Field in Moorhead.

Finishing 24-14-1, Thief River Falls played five games in the District 9 tournament, beginning with a 7-4 Thursday afternoon victory over Breckenridge, followed by a 15-8 Friday night triumph over Barnesville that matched them against the Moorhead Blues in a battle of the tournament's two remaining unbeaten teams Saturday night. Moorhead won it 7-1. Thief River Falls bounced back with another post-season win over Crookston, 8-2 Sunday afternoon to get another shot at Moorhead Sunday night. A Thief River Falls victory would have squared the series at 1-1 and necessitated a title-deciding showdown Mondy night.

But Moorhead won 4-1, giving the Blues their seventh title in the past eight years. Thief River Falls was trying for its first District 9 tournament title since back-to-back crowns in 1953 and 1954.

Moorhead will take a 37-9 record to Ely this week to compete in the 1981 American Legion state tournament.

TRF 7
Breckenridge 4

Thief River Falls spotted Breckenridge a 4-0 first inning headstart before coming out a 7-4 first round winner Thursday, scoring six times over the final three innings to avoid the loser's bracket of the double-elimination tournament.

The first two Breckenridge batters had been retired in the bottom of the first when Thief River Falls pitcher Kevin Sanders issued back-to-back walks to Jim Reiff and Dave Hagstrom. Those walks were followed by a single by Todd Barth and back-to-back doubles by Mike Mertes and Chad Altsatt before Sanders got out of the inning with a strike-out. The Thief River Falls lefthander pitched shut-out ball the rest of the way.

A lead-off single in the second inning by Sanders, along with walks issued to Greg Harder and Delray Ness, led to a run-scoring sacrifice fly by Steve Bengtson for a 4-1 game.

Thief River Falls tied it in the fifth when a single by Dave Kays, an error on a ball hit by Mark Lundin and a single by Jim Hallamek loaded the bases with nobody out. A sacrifice fly by Scott McKeever, an error on a ball hit by Sanders and a sacrifice fly by Harder made it 4-4.

Go-ahead run crossed the plate in the sixth when Ness, Bengtson and Lundin all singled. Two insurance runs crossed the plate in the seventh when McKeever and Sanders led off with back-to-back singles and Harder came up with a two-run double.

Trap Club Championship Shoot Planned Monday

Thief River Falls trap league championship shoot-off, matching the top four finishers in both the first and second half season point standings, will be held Monday at Marshallton Gun Club, site of the weekly league competition.

However, a special four-team shoot-off will take place at 6 that night before the championship field can be determined. Solum Insurance, Auto Body Repair, Peterson-Biddick and Wilson Brothers were first half season qualifiers for post-season shooting, while Northern State Bank and Triple J Trap Co. finished in a first place tie in the recently-completed second half season.

But four teams were bunched in a third place tie: Solum Insurance, Wilson Brothers, Furuseth-Nelson and Hible's Eighth Street Standard. They'll square off Monday at 6 p.m. to determine the final two championship shoot qualifiers. Solum Insurance and Wilson Brothers, although already assured of post-season positions because of their first half season finishes, could qualify again in the shoot-off and thus reduce the championship field to six or seven teams instead of the maximum eight.

In addition to Monday's activity, trap club officials announced that Marshallton Gun Club will feature open shooting tonight (Wednesday); Wednesday, August 19; and Monday, August 24. A giant hunter's warm-up will be held Wednesday, August 26, featuring practice traps, chicken shoots, fun shoots and barbecue pork supper.

North Star Transport Eyes First Place Tie

Tentatively scheduled as a tripleheader tonight (Wednesday), North Star Transport must get through three make-up games to share the 1981 Thief River Falls fast pitch softball league pennant with Action Realty.

Action Realty, after pulling out a big 6-5 victory in a first place showdown with North Star Transport Friday, lost its chance to wrap up the title Tuesday in a 6-4 loss to Schmidts.

North Star Transport, 11-4, can match Action Realty's 14-4 finish with make-up game wins over Schmidts, Popplers and TG Sporting Goods. But one North Star Transport loss in that series will give the title to Action Realty.

In other make-up games, Popplers beat Melvies 7-2 Monday, Coca-Cola outlasted Melvies 13-8 in Tuesday's second game and Schmidts out-scored Melvies 10-7 in a third game Tuesday.

Action Realty 6
N.S. Transport 5

Friday's only game found Action Realty and North Star Transport battling for the No. 1 spot in the league, and in a see-saw game, Action Realty won it 6-5.

Action Realty scored the first run of the contest in the top of the third as Tim Engelstad singled to left and went to third on a base hit by Gordie Peterson. An infield hit by Tom Goddard scored Engelstad.

North Star Transport wasted no time in tying the score as Mike Kvarnlov lofted a one-out, 2-1 pitch over the center field fence in the bottom of the inning.

Action Realty regained the lead, 3-1, in the fifth when Tony Johnson walked and Peterson smashed a long home run over the left field fence.

Once again North Star Transport rose to the challenge with two out in the bottom of the fifth, Kvarnlov and Nick Neibauer singled and Roger Cota hit his fourth home run of the year for the right field fence for a 4-3 lead.

Action Realty came back in the sixth, though, when Wayne Smith was hit by a pitch and Bob Lundbohm beat out a bunt single that also included a throwing error, allowing Smith to score. Del Beito slapped a single to left to give Action Realty a 5-4 edge.

Smith's run-producing single in the seventh gave Action Realty a two-run cushion, with North Star Transport getting that one back on Kvarnlov's third hit of the night in the bottom of the seventh.

Action Realty 4

Schmidts started and ended with a bang in putting a damper on Action Realty's title hopes Tuesday, pulling out a 6-4 upset victory.

Jim Sethre hit the first pitch of the game over the left field fence for a quick 1-0 Schmidts lead. A walk to Howard Dalager and Paul Walker's sixth home run of the season made it 3-0 in a hurry.

Action Realty got a pair of runs back in the bottom of the fourth as Tom Goddard reached base on an error, moved to second on Bob Lundbohm's sacrifice and scored on Keith Charbonneau's single. Charbonneau scored on Wayne Liden's double to left.

Schmidts scored in the fifth when Dalager was safe on an error, advanced to second on a wild pitch and scored on Mark Lundin's ground-out.

Action Realty tied the contest 4-4 in the bottom of the inning as Gordie Peterson drew a free pass and Smith was hit by a pitch. A walk to Goddard loaded the bases and Lundbohm followed with a two-run single.

But Schmidts came back with a pair of runs in the top of the seventh to win it on a wild pitch and Mark Haats' sacrifice fly.

Elks Finish Season With 26-7 Record

Bruce Williams-coached Thief River Falls Elks finished the 1981 season with a 26-7 won-lost record following a win and two losses athe state Babe Ruth baseball tournament for 14-15-year-olds.

The Elks, in an earlier-reported game, opened the 12-team, double-elimination tournament with a 6-5 victory over host Chaska before losing a tough 1-0 decision to Coon Rapids and dropping a 12-1 game to Minnetonka.

Only run scored in the Elks-Coon Rapids game came after a two-out infield error in the third inning. Thief River Falls out-hit Coon Rapids 3-2, but committed two errors while the winners played errorless ball. Losing pitcher Tim Bottem, who walked one and struck out five, was 2-for-3 at the plate, including a double.

The Elks owned a 1-0 lead going into the bottom of the fourth inning against Minnetonka and had retired two batters when five straight errors produced five unearned runs. Minnetonka broke it open with a five-run seventh.

Losing pitcher was Todd Ortloff, with Brian Garceau also seeing mound duty. Minnetonka out-hit Thief River Falls 10-5, with Bottem again collecting two hits. The Elks were charged with all six of the game's errors.

Despite the losses in a tournament dominated by league all-star teams, Williams was happy with the team's performance. The Elks were winless in state tournament trips in 1979 and 1980.

"We had a very successful season, said Williams.

St. Paul Hightower beat Bloomington 8-5 in the tournament championship game.

MSHSL Starts 66th Season Of Operation

Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL) will begin its 66th year of service with the start of the 1981-82 school year. This year the League membership of high schools numbers 512. The total ranks ninth in number of high schools among the 50 states that sponsor interscholastic activities for youth.

League will conduct 27 state tournaments for young men and women in 1981-82.

The 1981-82 MSHSL membership of schools is down by three schools (515 to 512) from last school year. Changes find Immanuel Lutheran of Mankato joining the MSHSL, while three other schools have merged and another dropped its membership. Merging are Edina East and Edina West to be called Edina; Tyler and Russell; and Round Lake and Sioux Valley. Magnolia is no longer a high school. Students in Magnolia will now attend Luverne high school.

CROOKSTON CATCHER Ken Shafer tried to block the plate, but Thief River Falls base runner Delray Ness scored anyway when the ball got by Shafer during Sunday's District 9 American Legion baseball tournament game played at Moorhead. The two teams were meeting in a loser's bracket game for a shot at unbeaten Moorhead in the finals of the eight-team, double-elimination tournament later that night. Thief River Falls beat Crookston 8-2, but fell to Moorhead 4-1 in the championship game.

Slow Pitch Teams Enter Tournaments

Thirteen Thief River Falls men's slow pitch softball association teams are scheduled to compete in district or state tournament play over the next two weeks.

All five Thief River Falls Division I teams will enter the 20-team, double-elimination District 7 Class B tournament at Crookston Saturday and Sunday.

Grouped in the 9 a.m. bracket Saturday, McDonald's-Dallmann Ahtletic will open against Green's Plumbing of Detroit Lakes and Furuseth-Nelson will start with Terry's Mobil of Red Lake Falls. Playing in the 10:15 a.m. bracket Saturday, Swenson Plumbing will begin with the Red Lake Falls Rabbits and the Middle River Merchants debut against Lake Sports of Detroit Lakes.

TRF Merchants, the regular season Thief River Falls Division I pennant winner, receives a first round District 7 bye.

Six Thief River Falls teams — the top three regular season finishers in Division II and Division III — will journey to Crookston for the District 7 Class C tournament August 22-23. St. Hilaire Bears, Consumer's Co-op and A & W Bottling finished 1-2-3 in Division II this summer. First Federal won the Division III title, but three teams were bottled up behind them at 15-9; Popplers-Action Realty, E.T.'s Bees and The Barbers.

A special three-way playoff Monday and Tuesday saw E.T.'s Bees beat Popplers-Action Realty 10-4. The Barbers stopped Popplers-Action Realty 6-3 and The Barbers out-scored E.T.'s Bees 14-5 in eight innings. The results enable The Barbers and E.T.'s Bees to join First Federal as Division III representatives at the District 7 Class C tournament.

Sound Level-Holthusen and First Northwestern Insurance Agency both finished 16-5 atop the Division IV standings (with Sound Level-Holthusen earning the championship trophy based on results of head-to-head meetings) and they will both compete in the new Class D state tournament August 22-23 at the University of Minnesota diamonds in Minneapolis.

Dan McKinnon Named Lakers Hockey Coach

Warroad Lakers have named Dan McKinnon head coach for the 1981-82 hockey season. McKinnon, as a player, was one of the original Lakers — an outstanding defenseman who had a brilliant career at the University of North Dakota back when that school first got into a big time college hockey schedule.

After college McKinnon played senior hockey in San Bernadino, Calif.; Sioux City, Iowa; and was player coach of the old Minneapolis Millers in the Central League. He also played in Hibbing, with the 1955 US National Team and was a member of the United States Olympic team in 1956 when they won the Silver Medal in Cortina, Italy. He was a standout for Uncle Sam again in the World Championship held in Oslo, Norway in 1958.

McKinnon becomes the first non-playing coach of the Lakers since 1966.

"The Warroad Lakers are composed mainly of young hockey players just out of high school and the college ranks," said McKinnon. "I have a strong feeling that I can help this hockey club — there are many little things that happen in every hockey game that can change the outcome.

I believe through the experience I have had I can recognize and take advantage of these situations when they happen. I am looking forward to the challenge and certainly believe I can put out a product that has the quality to meet the high standard of competition found in the CASH League."

Legion Wins Sub District

Delray Ness pitched a two-hit shutout and Mark Lundin went 3-for-4 at the plate as Thief River Falls surprised regular season pennant winner Crookston 6-0 in the 1981 Northwest American Legion baseball league Sub District championship game.

Crookston, unbeaten in eight Northwest League starts this summer, owned 8-2 and 3-1 regular season wins over Thief River Falls, the Northwest League runner-up with a 6-2 mark. Both teams had been assured of District 9 tournament berths the previous night when Crookston blanked Newfolden 11-0 and Thief River Falls came from behind to edge East Grand Forks 3-2.

Ness struck out nine and walked just two while being backed by errorless defensive work. Crookston was charged with six errors.

Lundin began his strong plate performance with a game-opening double in the top of the first. He moved up on a wild pitch and scored on a sacrifice fly by Scott McKeever.

Three errors with two out in the third allowed two Thief River Falls runs to cross the plate. It became 5-0 in the sixth when Greg Harder led off with a single, moved up on a sacrifice by Steve Bengtson and scored on a double by Jeff Cwikla. A single by Lundin scored Cwikla.

Final run crossed the plate in the top of the seventh when Delray Ness walked, stole second and scored on a two-out error.

Lake of the Woods

Donna Hamre, our Baudette reporter, has sent us her comments on her area fishing news:

"Snake and Elm Islands were hot spots even though winds and rains hampered smaller boats along Pine Island, Morris Gap and Wheelers Point. Lighthouse Gap coughed up the largest walleye caught so far this year — a none-pound walleye caught by Scott Bvege of Apple Valley.

"Northerns are fairly active with many nice ones being caught. Fishing should be excellent with weather improvements. The best colors used for fishing tackle this week were flourescent yellow, red-white and gold."

Fishing Information

Highway 56 out of Anoka provided the shortest route to Lake Mille Lac, Minnesota's famous walleye lake, when we used to live in nearby Champlin. Now there are numerous freeways leading fishermen families out of the busy cities and small towns across the state leading to exciting lakes and woodlands bringing new adventures into our lives.

Among those many small towns is Ogilvie, a virtual pipeline of information about all of Kanabec county.

sixth inning when he was roughed up for five runs on two base hits and five walks before being relieved by McKeever.

Thief River Falls fought off the challenge, though, by scoring three times in the sixth on four base hits, a pair of errors and a walk. Ness, Milender, Lundin and Hallamek all singled that inning as Thief River Falls completed a 15-hit assault.

Moorhead 7

Failure to get out of the first inning unscathed was a key factor for Thief River Falls in a 7-1 third round loss to Moorhead Saturday when the Blues scored four times in the bottom of the inning.

After a lead-off single by Scott Wamre, a potential double-play ball was booted away. John Stearns, regarded by some as the tournament's top player, followed with a two-run double, scoring himself on a one-out single by Mark Rice. Brad Schwab and Kent Uggaard also singled to make it 4-0.

Thief River Falls got one run back in the third on a lead-off walk to Delray Ness, a sacrifice bunt by Steve Bengtson and a two-out single by Mark Lundin. But that was all the scoring for the losers, who put men on base every inning except the second and left the bases loaded in the sixth.

Moorhead, meanwhile, got an RBI double from Steans in the fourth, a walk and an error for an unearned run in the fifth, along with a walk and a run-scoring wild pitch for another unearned run in the sixth to move into the finals with a perfect 3-0 tournament record.

TRF 8
Crookston 2

Delray Ness pitched no-hit ball through four innings before being replaced to save on his pitching eligibility (12 innings over three days) in leading Thief River Falls to an 8-2 Sunday afternoon victory over rival Crookston in a battle of one-time losers trying to gain a title shot at unbeaten Moorhead.

Thief River Falls scored twice in the second inning when Jim Hallamek led off with a single and scored on a two-out double by Ness, who scored on a single by Dave Kays.

A walk issued to Mark Lundin, a ground-out, passed ball and a single by Greg Harder made it 3-0 in the third.

The margin doubled to 6-0 in the fourth as Steve Bengtson started with a lead-off double, Ness singled, Scott McKeever reached base on an error, Lundin walked, Kevin Sanders had an RBI single and Harder drove in a run with a sacrifice fly caught by the shortstop Mark Melby.

Crookston got three hits on a run off McKeever in the fifth inning, then added two more hits and another run in the sixth. Melby had an RBI single in the fifth and Tony Sprague drove in a run with a single in the sixth.

Thief River Falls, however, added two more sixth inning runs on just one hit — a single by Lundin, the team's top tournament hitter — and three fielder's choice plays.

Three more shutout innings pitched by Delray Ness in Sunday night's championship game against Moorhead gave Thief River Falls strong hope of forcing a Monday night showdown, but Ness used up his alloted innings on the mound and the Blues got to Scott McKeever for two-run innings in the fourth and fifth to walk away a 4-1 winner.

Thief River Falls actually started with a 1-0 lead by scoring in the top of the fourth when Jeff Cwikla and Steve Bengtson led off with back-to-back singles. A wild pitch advanced Cwikla to third and he scored on an error on a ball hit by McKeever.

Moorhead went ahead in the bottom of the inning on a lead-off double by Tom Hanson, followed by an RBI single by Mark Rice, who scored on a one-out error.

The Blues' margin climbed to 4-1 the next inning in much the same fashion as Scott Wamre doubled to lead off and Gary Thielen singled. There were two errors, a sacrifice and a single by Hanson before the inning came to an end with the bases still loaded.

Thief River Falls, although out-hit 9-3, missed numerous scoring opportunities, stranding nine runners and leaving the bases loaded in the third inning.

Sports Health Forum Slated In Minneapolis

First annual sports health forum, sponsored by American Red Cross, the Institute for Athletic Medicine and the Minnesota State High School League, will be held Friday and Saturday, Sept. 11-12, at the Holiday Inn Downtown in Minneapolis.

Sports health forum is open to physicians, nurses, coaches, trainers, therapists and adult athletes interested in keeping athletes healthy.

Tenley Albright, M.D., an Olympic Gold Medalist in figure skating and a practicing physician, will discuss sports medicine from both her perspectives in a major speech at the forum banquet Friday evening. Vern Gagne, wrestling star and tennis enthusiast, will speak about his experiences as a life-long athlete in a presentation at the Saturday lunch.

The workshops and seminars of the sports health forum feature leading authorities in the field of sports medicine, presenting contemporary information on typical sports injuries and how to prevent and treat them. Topics include nutrition for the athlete, flexibility and warm-up, weight training for all ages, facial trauma and protection, ankle injuries and first aid for fractures and wounds.

Sports resources and programs will be on display during the forum. A sports health film festival will run continuously during the forum, showing audio-visuals related to sports medicine.

Registration fee for the conference is $30 if received by Aug. 21, and $35 if received by Sept. 4. It includes the Friday evening banquet, the Saturday lunch and all materials.

To register for the sports health forum, contact American Red Cross at (612) 871-7676 or 11 Dell Place at Groveland Ave., Minneapolis, MN 55403.

Trail

Mrs. Albert Aaknes, Trail

Cheri and Dale Aaknes of South Milwaukee left on Thursday morning for their home after spending a few days with their grandparents, the Albert Aakneses and the Eugene Asselins at Oklee.

Mrs. Frances Sunsdahl of Tower and Mrs. Jill Sunsdahl of Soudan arrived on Thursday evening at the Albert Aaknes home. On Friday morning they with Mrs. Albert Aaknes, Mrs. Al Radniecki and Mrs. Erwin Provost of Oklee attended the funeral of their sister-in-law, Myrtle Hruby at the Trinity Lutheran church.

Mr. and Mrs. John Eisherner of Thief River Falls were coffee guests at the Aaknes home on Thursday forenoon on their way to the Cities.

Mrs. Gary Hruby and Benji of Fosston were Saturday afternoon visitors at the Albert Aaknes home. They came to get Benji's birthday cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanford Anderson and family of Illinois left on Sunday morning after spending 3 weeks with her mother, Bertha Woods.

The Trail VFW auxiliary met on Friday, July 1. Doris Evje presided with 13 members present. General orders, secretary and treasurers reports were read. Helga Lambert reported that there is still a need for more tote bags in the hospital and rehab. program. 10 yards of material will be ordered. July Fourth food stand was discussed and a schedule of workers set up. At the Dept. convention held in East Grand Forks it was voted to raise the Dept. per capita tax from $1.25 to $2.25. The increase is due to the continued increase in the cost of operating the department. This means the dues for the Trail VFW auxiliary will be $11.00 for 1982 payable after July 1, 1981. Action was taken to send in the $4 for the treasurers bond, also to send the 35 cents per member based on the 1981 membership to the hospital and rehab program. This fund supports our programs at the VA medical center in Minneapolis and St. Cloud and the Minnesota Veterans home in Minneapolis and Hastings.

Announcements of the National VFW convention will be held in Philadelphia, Penn. Aug. 14-20, 1981. This year we again have two themes to work with. The theme for our national president Marion Watson will be "United We Stand For America". The theme for our dept. president Audrey Busse is "Freedom, Thanks to Veterans".

Aux. inspections will begin after Sept. 1. Have your secretary and treasurers books and other materials required for inspection ready before the inspector arrives. Hostesses for the next meeting will be Helen Flateland, Leona Brekke and Helga Lambert.

Brief callers at the Aaknes home were Calvin Kolling of Gully, Bertha Woods, Hilda Opdahl and Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Prevost of Oklee.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Bak of Texas are spending their vacation with their aunt Ada Threstenson. Ada has her trailer home for sale. She will be moving to Bagley. We will miss Ada.

COUNTY BOARD PROCEEDINGS

August 12, 1981
Official Proceedings
Board of County Commissioners
Pennington County, Minnesota
July 28, 1981

Pursuant to adjournment the Pennington County Board met in the Comissioners' Room in the Courthouse in Thief River Falls at 9:00 a.m. July 28, 1981.

Members present: Hoffman, Grabanski, Koop, Stenberg and Tasa. All present.

Discussion of various options open to the Board as a result of the County Auditor's resignation which is to be effective September 1, 1981 was held. Various alternatives were discussed as outlined by the County Attorney.

Commissioner Koop introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

WHEREAS, Pursuant to Order for reviewing the benefits for drainage supplied by Judicial Ditch No. 25-3, the duly appointed Viewers have filed a preliminary report of their findings, and

WHEREAS, As a part of the reviewing report the Viewers have indicated that the County Board should take such steps as are necessary to consolidate Judicial Ditch No. 25-3 and County Ditch No. 25 into one ditch with a common benefited area.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, That the Viewers reviewing the benefited area of Judicial Ditch No. 25-3 shall file their final report on August 25, 1981 and provide information so that the Landowners involved can make comparisons as to the relative benefits assessed for various tracts of land, and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That a public hearing on the viewers' report of benefits be held in the Pennington County Courthouse at 7:30 p.m. on October 5, 1981, and that pursuant to Minnesota Statutes 106.171, the County Auditor be instructed to notify all of the landowners affected by the Viewers report of the hearing on redetermination of benefits and the Viewers recommended consolidation of Judicial Ditch No. 25-3 and County Ditch No. 25.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Hoffman and upon vote declared unanimously adopted.

At 11:00 A.M. the Board met with Lyle Turtle, owner of land in Section 7, Mayfield Township. He asked for cleaning of J-41 Ditch which serves a part of Wyandotte and Mayfield Townships and drains South into the Clearwater River. He also requested permission to work, at his own expense, on the County Road along the South of Section 7 in Mayfield Township to improve drainage. A petition was requested by the Board for redetermination of benefits as well as repair of J-41. The petition will be forthcoming.

The engineer for MR-SR Watershed appeared and asked that the County install a 36 inch culvert through County Road 8 in the first mile of County Road from Polk County between Section 30 and 31 in Numedal Township. The recommendation from the MR-SR Board was requested in writing. The Engineer also presented a proposal for correcting a problem on County Road 14 along Section 16 in Norden Township involving a long culvert and proposed a mutual financial arrangement with the County paying 30 per cent of the cost. The County would also provide traffic control. The Board agreed to pay the billing when received.

Mr. Robert Ulland appeared as representative of consulting firm known as Agassiz Professional Consultants. He discussed the problem of the old sanitarium usage. Probably a single purpose application to HUD would be in order. A fee schedule for the services of the consulting firm was discussed. Matter was taken under advisement.

At 2:00 P.M. the Board convened to conduct a Public Hearing for Redistricting the County Commissioners' Districts as duly advertised and called for. No one appeared in response to notice published according to Law. Commissioner Koop introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

WHEREAS, The Official 1980 Census reveals that a small adjustment is necessary in the alignment of the Pennington County Commissioners' Districts to bring the Districts into conformity with the Statutes, and

WHEREAS, A Public Hearing was held at 2:00 P.M., July 28, 1981, after Notice of Public Hearing had been published and publicized according to State Law.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, That it be proposed that Star Township be removed from the jurisdiction of Commissioner District No. 5 and be attached to jurisdiction of Commissioner District No. 1, thereby providing the adjustment required by Statute, and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That the revised Plan proposed for adoption be filed in the Office of the County Auditor and be effective October 1, 1981, and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That the County Auditor prepare a "NOTICE" that said proposed Plan is on file in his Office according to Law, and publish said Notice in the Thief River Falls Times.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Stenberg and upon vote declared unanimously adopted.

Terry Anderson, Otto Sigerud, Edwin Sigerud and Earl Marquis of Reiner Township appeared with a request for cleaning of Judicial Ditch 13 from the North-South Ditch in Section 12 and the East-West Ditch from Section 13 West to the intersection with the North-South ditch in Section 14, Goodridge Township for a total of 9 miles. Board agreed to proceed.

Commissioner Tasa introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

BE IT RESOLVED, that the County Attorney write to express appreciation to Tom Tobin of the Tobin Law Office in Winner, S.D., and to advise Mr. Tobin that the Pennington County Board is terminating his services immediately.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Koop and upon vote declared unanimously adopted.

The Board then discussed a note from the Public Examiners that indicated that Statutes require that the Veterans Service Officer should be appointed for a four year term when appointed. Commissioner Hoffman introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

BE IT RESOLVED, That the intent of the action of January 2, 1979, in which Myrle L. Carlson was confirmed and instructed to serve additional hours as Veterans Service Officer, was to appoint Mr. Carlson for a four year term effective January 2, 1979, and terminating January 1, 1983.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Stenberg and upon vote declared unanimously adopted.

The Board then continued the discussion of the procedures for filling the position of County Auditor that had been discussed at the opening of the meeting. Moved by Commissioner Hoffman and seconded by Commissioner Koop that the Board advertise for applicants for the Auditor's position with applications to be received until August 17. Motion carried.

Moved by Commissioner Tasa, seconded by Commissioner Stenberg that the meeting adjourn to convene at 10:00 A.M. August 11, 1981.

TRF Republic Flights Not Hurt By Strike

Republic Airlines in Thief River Falls continues to operate two round trip flights daily from this city, according to Irvin Schmitke, Republic station manager in Thief River Falls.

Flights depart Thief River Falls daily at 6:10 a.m. and 2:15 p.m. with arrivals in Minneapolis at 7:53 a.m. and 3:58 p.m.

Eighty per cent or more of the flights are presently operating through the Republic system, as a result of the continuing air traffic controllers strike, Schmitke said. "We can get passengers to their destinations without much delay," he added.

If passengers remain on the Republic system, for example from Thief River Falls to Los Angeles, CA, they will arrive pretty much on schedule, Schmitke said.

"We are able to check the schedules anywhere through the Republic system, and can tell which flights are or are not operating, so passengers will know which flights to take," he said.

An adequate number of seats remain on Republic airlines flights operating out of Thief River Falls, and no one has been turned away from departing on the airline from this city," Schmitke added.

Recent information pertaining to the strike explains the pinch felt by airlines and solutions to ease this pinch. Republic Airlines has made an appeal to its employees to take 15 per cent of their September pay in stock to help the airline with its cash flow problems. Republic, based in Minneapolis, lost more than $3 million in the first three days of the strike by the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization (PATCO) members an Associated Press story stated.

Unions representing Republic employees are considering the "temporary" plan which is supposed to last a month, depending on the length of the strike.

WENDY RUSTAD, Oslo, was named first runner-up in the Miss Thief River Falls pageant conducted recently during the annual Jaycee Aquacade celebration. As first runner-up to Marcy Reierson, who was crowned Miss Thief River Falls for 1981, Miss Rustad will receive a $275 scholarship and a silver tray. Miss Rustad was also the winner in the interview division of the competition. Second runner-up in the pageant was Mary Gentry of Middle River.

2nd Hospital Walk-A-Thon Set August 22

Northwestern hospital's second annual "walk-a-thon" steps off Saturday, August 22, with registration at 9:30 a.m. and departure time at 10 a.m. The 15-mile trek will start at the hospital, winding around the city and end at Oakland park for the hospital family picnic and complimentary lunch for all walkers.

Pledges secured by the walkers will be used to support community health education workshops requested by participants at the May health fair in response to an evaluation of the fair. Topics for the workshops this year will include the management of diabetes, exercise and fitness for senior citizens, and women's health issues. A portion of the pledges received will also go toward the development of an employee fitness program at the hospital.

Pledge cards are available at the hospital admission desk or in stores around town where there is a walk-a-thon poster. Pledges may be made on a per mile basis or for a total amount.

Gift certificates donated by Dallmann Athletic will be given to the oldest walker, youngest walker and the walker collecting the largest amount in pledges. Pledges may be designated for community health workshops, employee fitness program or "as needed". In addition to the gift certificates, walkers will receive, on a first come first serve basis, a t-shirt with the walk-a-thon emblem.

Hospital staff members are working up to the walk-a-thon with a series of mini-walks every Tuesday and Thursday. "If the mini-walks are any indication, hospital walk-a-thon organizers can expect a great turnout for the event," stated Steve Young, walk-a-thon chairman. "This year the hospital department with the greatest percentage of employees participating, or in case of a tie, the highest average pledge per employee, will win the new 'Aching Toe Traveling Trophy'.

"Competition is stiff," Young added, "and no doubt hospital staff members will be knocking on the doors of friends and neighbors for a pledge to support their efforts on behalf of community health promotion.

Course for the walk-a-thon will be mapped out and instructions given at the time of registration. Rest stops will be set up every three miles with refreshments and a check-in to log the number of miles walked. The route will be patrolled by hospital personnel to assist walkers between rest stops.

State Traffic Death Toll Is Down From '80

Minnesota's traffic death toll at just past the mid-year point of 1981 is down from last year, according to public safety commissioner John P. Sopsic.

Through July 13, preliminary figures of the department of public safety show that the overall traffic death toll was 346 compared to 364 during a comparable period of 1980.

Motorcycle deaths were down while the pedestrian total was up. The 1981 motorcycle count was 42 compared to 52 a year earlier. Fifty-one pedestrians had been killed compared to 42 in 1980. There were three bicycle deaths compared to nine a year earlier.

Sopsic attributed the reduction to compliance with the 55-mile-per-hour speed limit and conservation of gasoline by motorists. "It is too early," he cautioned, "to pat ourselves on the back and say that we have done enough to reduce traffic deaths."

Sopsic suggests that drivers are taking a sophisticated approach to safety. "The impact of injury and death has a very real effect on life and society. Better driving habits on the part of Minnesota motorists reflect this sophistication," Sopsic said.

If Minnesotans continued to show reduced traffic fatalities at the present pace for the entire year, the overall result could be under 800 fatalities for 1981. The only time during the past decase when that goal was achieved occurred in 1975 when the total was 777. That year there were 72 motorcycle deaths and 121 pedestrian fatalities.

DOUBTER

She's young, she's beautiful, but she doesn't believe in God. At least, she doesn't think she does.

Shocked? Lots of young people today and a good many older ones aren't all that sure of the "old religion." They don't want a panacea. They want something of substance, a truth to live with.

That's why the Church has risen to meet the challenge. There's a new tide in today's church, a reality as old as the centuries but as new as the future.

You owe it to yourself to investigate.

CAR CARE CORNER

To avoid an accident, make sure your tires are properly and evenly inflated. Too much air will affect your car's ability to hold the road the way it should. Too little makes for harder steering. Uneven inflation results in steering problems and instability.

To avoid a painful loss of money, many car owners are investing in service contracts to extend their auto warranties. One service contract company—America's oldest—offers coverage on almost all makes and models of automobiles, new or used. New car coverage is offered by this company, American Warranty, for five years or 50,000 miles and its benefits include a toll-free number for authorization of covered repairs anywhere in the U.S. or Canada, a rental car allowance of $16 per day to a total of $96 and, for a $25 fee, transference of the remaining coverage to the next owner of your car. To learn more about this protection available at your auto dealership send a self-addressed stamped envelope to Amy Warren, Suite 1200, 9841 Airport Blvd., Los Angeles, CA 90045.

To avoid damaging your car when you clean it, use floods of water from a hose without a nozzle. A high-pressure jet may drive in grit which can scratch your car's finish. Don't wash the car with household detergents. They may contain bleaches which can be unkind to the paint. Use a weak solution of car-washing detergent instead. Dry the car off with a Turkish towel or a wetted and squeezed-out square of chamois. Dry it gently.

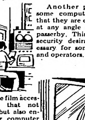
All sleep drugs now available, the August Reader's Digest warns, are to some extent addictive, lose effectiveness fairly soon, and may be potentially lethal.

It's a Fact!

Operators who spend hours concentrating on computer screens find the glare results in uncomfortable—possibly even detrimental—eye strain. Overhead lights and sunshine pouring through windows only compound the visual stress.



Another problem with some computer screens is that they are easily readable at any angle by the casual passerby. This reduces the security desirable and necessary for some companies and operators.

Now, there are film accessories available that not only cut glare, but also ensure privacy for computer terminal readouts. The films—from 3M's Data Recording Products Division—are shatterproof and abrasion resistant. They can be cleaned with ordinary household solvents or detergents.

What Price For Equity?

Among the most severe critics of the way legislation intended to aid the handicapped is being misused is Fenton Jameson, a business consultant who is himself disabled.

"The rehabilitation act of 1973 was passed by Congress to give the handicapped greater mobility," he writes. "Instead, thanks to a rigid bureaucracy that seems bent on enforcing the letter rather than the spirit of the law, it is costing the taxpayer incredible sums, cutting down on services already extended to the handicapped, and threatening a backlash of public sentiment against those it is supposed to help."

Locally the community has been and is being faced with the regulations regarding accessibility in public buildings — specifically the county courthouse and the public schools. There are plans for expensive elevators in an addition to the courthouse and new school construction plans have been wrapped around standards for handicapped accessibility.

It would seem that "handicapped" in most of these cases has been synonymous with "wheelchair", since most of the "standards" involve ramps, elevators, wide doors and cooridors, special restrooms, etc.

In the August issue of Reader's Digest, Jameson documents his charges.

The department of transportation (DOT), yielding to activists among the handicapped, mandated that by 1989 "50 per cent of all buses used during peak riding hours would have to be equipped with hydraulic lifts for wheelchair passengers,". he writes. "Subway and rail systems would have to provide elevators or other devices to guarantee accessibility."

To this Mayor Edward Koch of New York City has commented, "It would be cheaper and more sensible to transport the handicapped by limousine."

The mayor has a point. "In Spokane," Jameson writes, "transit officials maintain that each one-way trip for a wheelchair user on an accessible bus will cost the city $186. In Rochester, N.Y., the comparable figure is $250. In Milwaukee it's — hold on to your hat — over $1,000 per trip!"

In Vail, Colo., where a survey revealed no handicapped potential bus riders, the city still had to spend $168,000 for buses with hydraulic lifts. DOT turned down a request for an exemption on the grounds that it might set a precedent.

Further, Jameson charges the present regulations are likely to cause service cutbacks for everyone, including the handicapped. Omaha, Neb., for example, will have to cut its fleet of 15 lift-equipped vans for the elderly and handicapped to two or three because it needs the money to finance the mandated lifts for all public buses. "The rule is self-defeating," says Jerome Erdman, executive director of Omaha's Metro Area Transit.

These excesses do little to endear the plight of the handicapped to the public's heart. "If society still wants to help the halt, the lame and the blind — and I trust it does — then we should proceed rationally," Jameson suggests.

The U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia has already ruled that DOT's mandates have gone beyond original legislation, and the Reagan Administration has said it favors returning authority to communities in determining how best to transport the distbled.

As the New York Times has pointed out, "The handicapped have a right to respect and reasonable assistance, not to an unlimited claim on public funds in the name of a dubious principle."

Poor Don't Feat Probes

Following editorial is from the Wadena Pioneer Journal:

The Reagan administration has suggested a computer to keep track of welfare benefits and control waste and fraud. And the reaction of the welfare bureaucracy is reacting with predictable actions by attacking the president and his program. That's typical of bureaucracy when it feels threatened.

Everybody knows welfare is out of control, but the bureaucracy won't admit it. Instead it attacks the Reagan administration as malicious and uncaring. The poor, it is being said by the welfare bureaucracy, will be sitting ducks and will be shot down if government [illegible] better track of how it spends its welfare money.

The poor, however, seldom complain when government seeks ways to improve the handling of welfare. They have nothing to lose. It is not the poor who benefit from the abuses of welfare as much as those who are not-so-poor or even well off.

Some of the well off have pushed their way into the welfare lines when they ought to be taking care of themselves. Others have vested interest in jobs and contracts. All have plenty of reason to fear anybody who takes a searching look at the programs in which they are involved.

Whether names are named and programs are examined to see if they can be improved matters a great deal to the great welfare bureaucracy. Mere talk about changing things frightens it to death.

Controlling Inflation

Following comments are from the Chamber of Commerce of the United States:

If you are still in doubt whether President Reagan's tax program — an across-the-board cut of the same percentage amount for all taxpayers — is likely to expand the federal deficit and fuel inflation, Secretary of the Treasury Donald T. Regan has an answer that may end your doubts.

First, though, bear in mind that many of the program's critics only a few years or months ago denied up and down Pennsylvania Avenue that federal deficits had anything to do with inflation.

In a recent address in Washington at the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, Secretary Regan gave this answer to a question from a listener:

"There is no evidence anywhere that anyone can demonstrate that a tax cut, per se, is inflationary. If a tax cut results in a deficit to a budget, whether in the United States, Germany, or Japan, the matter is inflationary or not depending on how that deficit is financed.

"Let me give you an example. When Prime Minister Suzuki of Japan was here I held an economic breakfast for him over at the Blair House. I couldn't believe what I was hearing. I had to ask the interpreter to go over the anwer that he gave to a question of mine when I asked him, 'How large is your deficit?' And it turns out that the Japanese deficit in the budget is one third of the entire budget. Now we will have a budget in 1982 of about $700 billion. On that same basis, we would have a deficit of about $230 billion. As it is we are projecting a deficit somewhere around $30 or $35 billion.

That being the case, why doesn't Japan have real inflation? When it has a deficit as large as that. And why don't they tax their citizens more to cut that?

"They finance their deficit out of their pool of savings. The rate of savings in Japan is over 20 per cent. In the United States, in 1980, it was 5.6 per cent. In the first quarter of this year it was 4.7 per cent.

"So it's the treatment of that deficit. Here we print money. We monetize our deficits. In Japan they don't do that."

Back in the early part of this century, a fiery crusader by the name of Gen. Jacob Sechler Coxey — leader of Coxey's Army — marched on Washington, exhorting the nation simply to print money and build roads to create jobs. Hardly anyone but the newspapers took him seriously. What happened? Did Coxey's Army rise again?

Energy Control

Solutions to the energy problems of the country are only as far away as the nation's children. Here are what several South Carolina school children in grades one through six suggested in helping solve the energy crisis:

+Make summer clothes with cold scenes on them and winter clothes with desert island scenes.

+Eat more carrots so that we can see better with less light.

+Find out if tulip bulbs give off heat.

+Dip everything that is made into stuff that glows in the dark.

+Have radio stations play all the music faster in winter so that everyone will move around more and keep warm.

+Let people wear swimwear everywhere during the summer, provide free suntan lotion and build a swimming pool on every block.

One youngster felt the best way to deal with energy problems was to ignore it. He suggested: Give free earplugs to everybody and if anybody complains about the heat or cold, nobody has to listen.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Refused in his request to the boss for a bigger paycheck, the employee persisted. "Then how about," he suggested, "paying me the same amount but a little more often?"

Hints For Homeowners

SAVE A WATT

Homeowners have been besieged all winter long with messages and guidance on the necessity and methods of saving energy. By and large, the subject was oil conservation, and the nation responded admirably to the extent that imports fell significantly and storage tanks are now close to overflowing.

While we've exercised control in the use of oil and gasoline, how about that other fuel—electricity? A recent estimate places the national kilowatt-per-hour rate for this year at 5.6¢—a 49% increase over the last two years! Result: more stress and strain on the household budget.

What can be done directly to reduce home electricity consumption? We know, of course, that conservation readily results from the controlled and more efficient use of major appliances such as clothes washers and dryers, dishwashers and air conditioners. Lighting too is an obvious factor and just as controllable—that's why we have on/off switches!

But consider also the savings that come from use of fluorescents, which give soft and cool light, last longer than regular incandescent bulbs, and draw less current. New small diameter circular tubes that adapt to standard lamp sockets are available in hardware stores.

Or install dimmer switches. They're ideal where full 100-watt power is needed for reading or, at the mere turn of a knob, a lesser degree for general illumination and consequent kilowatt savings. The experts at Cooper Tools note that with a Crescent screwdriver in hand the wallbox "switch to a dimmer" can be made in minutes. Just remember to first de-fuse the circuit.

Just as we learned successfully to "think oil", it's time to "think kilowatts". And that's a double-barreled shot at the high cost of fuel, 'cause in the main it takes oil power to generate electricity.

Washington Report

Sen. Dave Durenberger

Minnesotans
Lead The Way

In the last few weeks the U.S. Senate has taken some historic steps that are going to shape our country during the rest of this century. I know that most of the readers of this column are familiar with what we've been doing in Washington because most of these stories have been headline news.

But the news you read is coming from the national wire services and they often miss the Minnesota angles that I see every day on the floor of the Senate and in the committee hearings. You'd be surprised — and, if you're like me, proud — to know how Minnesota people and experiences contribute to forming national policy.

An issue of importance to every state in the country — the severance taxes some states impose on their energy resources — come up for congressional review for the first time since the U.S. Supreme Court ruled on Montana's 30 per cent tax on coal. The Senate Subcommittee on Intergovernmental Relations, which I chair, held two days of hearings on state energy taxes.

The problem we as a country face in this area is one I call fiscal disparities — the flow of energy dollars from consuming states, like Minnesota, to producing states. The U.S. Department of Treasury estimates that by 1983, $9.4 billion will flow annually from the states that don't have energy resources to those that have. In 1980 alone Minnesota electricity consumers paid $16 million in coal severance taxes just to Montana.

Among those who testified at my hearings were Minnesotans Jim Oberstar, 8th District congressman; Mayor Morris L. Lanning of Moorhead; and Mayor Ralph H. Possehl of Breckenridge. They and other Minnesotans have joined me in the forefront of this issue.

Mayor Possehl pointed out the problem for border cities like Breckenridge and Moorhead that are in direct competition with sister cities in neighboring energy-rich states. North Dakota can afford to lure businesses with tax breaks. The result, in what Mayor Possehl called "a report from the western front," is the loss of businesses, including a $35 million sunflower crushing plant.

Mayor Lanning pointed out that if the purpose of the severance tax is to offset the cost of mining and processing, then affected communities in other states should share the revenue. Moorhead, for example, is being cut in half by the increasing number of coal-carrying trains.

Mayor Lanning summed up the feelings of everyone with his conclusion: "In general, I do not like having to come to the federal government for assistance, but our situation is such that there is only so much we can do for ourselves as a city and as a state. This issue certainly falls in the purview of federal responsibility."

He's right and you can bet that more will be heard from those of us in Minnesota who care about this issue.

The U.S. Senate finally followed the lead of Minnesota and gave American families control of their earnings and their government when it made the historic decision to index inflation out of the tax system. The 57-to-40 Senate vote to eliminate "bracket creep" came on the Armstrong-Durenberger amendment.

Indexing means that cost-of-living pay increases stay in your pocket instead of going to Washington in higher taxes. Minnesota was one of the first states to index its tax system and it has paid off for working families. Minnesota workers will keep $4 billion of earnings which otherwise would be taken in taxes in the next four years thanks to Minnesota's indexing.

Unfortunately, while they've been saving in Minnesota, the federal government has been taking more and more of the dollars you earn. That won't happen if the House of Representatives follows the lead of Minnesota and the U.S. Senate and agrees to indexing.

A Minnesota newspaper reporter, Steve Dornfeld of Knight-Ridder Newspapers (St. Paul and Duluth), testified before a Senate subcommittee recently on the need to maintain a strong Freedom of Information Act. That's the legislation that opens our government to the people.

It's an important safeguard in our democratic system. While all of us have to be concerned with national security — for example, we can't open our country's necessary secrets to those who would use them against us — I think we can and must free the hands of the American public without tying the hands of our country's intelligence community.

These are just a few of the many areas in which Minnesota ideas and leaders have been shaping national policy. The list could go on and on, but I think you get the idea — we in Minnesota have a lot to be proud of.

THE IRRESISTIBLE NO-BAKE PIE

Looking for a great dessert recipe in the no-bake category? As creative a baker as you may be, this Raspberry-Nectarine Pie will add to your reputation and pleasurable eating, too. It's a light, refreshing menu-completing treat that makes the most of seasonal fruit—fresh nectarines. Somehow it makes any family or company occasion that much more special. Talk about a fluffy pie filling! A luscious mixture combines thawed frozen whipped topping with prepared raspberry flavor gelatin and, of course, chopped fresh nectarines. Chilled in a pie shell for about two hours, the filling is ready for fresh sliced nectarine garnish before serving. Happily, this recipe uses a complete 8-oz. container of thawed frozen whipped topping. That's reason enough to bring home a 16-oz. container of frozen whipped topping on your next marketing trip. The best of bakers rely on a staple that enhances a variety of seasonal fruit recipes.

RASPBERRY-NECTARINE PIE

- 1 package (3 oz.) Jell-O raspberry flavor gelatin
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 2/3 cup boiling water
- 2 cups ice cubes
- 1 container (8 oz.) or 3-1/2 cups Cool Whip non-dairy whipped topping, thawed
- 1 cup coarsely chopped peeled nectarines
- 1 teaspoon grated orange rind (optional)
- 1 baked 9-inch pie shell, cooled

Dissolve gelatin and sugar completely in boiling water, stirring 3 minutes. Add ice cubes and stir constantly until gelatin is thickened, about 2 to 3 minutes. Remove any unmelted ice. Using wire whip, blend in whipped topping; then whip until smooth. Fold in nectarines and rind. Chill, if necessary, until mixture will mound. Spoon into pie shell. Chill 2 hours. Garnish with additional fruit, if desired.

Views On® Dental Health

INFANT'S FIRST HOME CLEANING

Home dental care should really begin before baby has a single tooth. Plaque can form on the gum pads just as it forms on the teeth. While mother cleans her baby from top to bottom every day, she sometimes forgets that juice, formula, cereal, milk and so on, leave debris in the mouth. A piece of gauze can be used to wipe the gums after the last feeding of the day, and this may help to reduce gum inflammation which is especially important as the child begins teething.

Many dentists feel that plaque-caused inflammation of the gums is a factor in teething difficulties, and if plaque is removed regularly, the teething process will be more comfortable. The cleaning, of course, is to be continued after the first teeth appear.

One technique that has been used successfully is for the parents to sit on chairs facing each other, and while one parent supports the legs, the other holds the child's head softly in his or her lap and gently wipes the teeth with gauze from behind the head.

Eggplant Cake Is Wonderful–Not Weird!

What's egg-shaped, deep glossy purple and star ingredient in such dishes as moussaka (Greeks love it) and ratatouille (French adore it)? Americans enjoy it, too! Eggplant, of course. Now the handsome vegetable, which arrived from the Orient about 1,500 years ago, is making dessert news! No one would ever think the strange plant would combine so deliciously with instant pudding and pie filling in a cake, but together they make an incredibly moist and fine textured pudding cake. There's a mellowing of flavors when the baked cake is covered and stored overnight. It brings out the cinnamon and other spices in the cake batter. Dust the cake with confectioners sugar and take it to the table (or picnic) in style.

GARDEN EGGPLANT PUDDING CAKE

1 package (2-layer size) yellow cake mix or pudding-included cake mix
1 package (4-serving size) Jell-O vanilla flavor instant pudding and pie filling
4 eggs
1/2 cup sour cream
1/4 cup oil
2 cups peeled and grated eggplant
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1/8 teaspoon cloves
1/8 teaspoon salt

Combine all ingredients in large mixer bowl. Blend; then beat at medium speed of electric mixer for 4 minutes. Pour into greased and floured 10-inch fluted tube pan. Bake at 350° for 50 to 55 minutes or until cake springs back when lightly pressed and cake pulls away from sides of pan. Do not underbake. Cool in pan 15 minutes. Remove from pan and finish cooling on rack. Sprinkle with confectioners sugar, if desired.

In high altitude areas, use large eggs, add 2/3 cup all-purpose flour and 1/3 cup water; increase sour cream to 3/4 cup and reduce oil to 2 tablespoons; bake at 375° for 55 to 60 minutes. (With pudding-included cake mix, use 3/4 cup flour and 1/4 cup water.)

Today's nuclear reactors can only use a special type of uranium as fuel. This type of uranium is contained in just seven of every 1,000 pounds we mine. Fortunately, most of the remaining uranium can be used in a new type of reactor now under development — the breeder reactor.

The Clinch River Breeder Reactor Plant is the important next step in the development of American breeder technology. The project, explain the experts at Westinghouse, represents a unique combination of government, public utility and private industry in an organization which would be difficult to duplicate.

Clinch River is the most economical U.S. demonstration breeder plant and the only one which can be operating before 1990. If the Liquid Metal Fast Breeder Reactor is to be available for use early in the next century when it may be needed, it is important that Clinch River be built now.

Small Grain Harvest Advancing Rapidly

What appears more and more to be a very good small grain harvest in the Times area is continuing at a rapid pace as absence of rainfall makes threshing operations possible on a daily basis. Wheat and barley yields and quality have been generally good to excellent in Pennington county, according to Terry Courneya, county extension director.

"There are areas where excessive moisture has been a problem and some fields are still too soft for harvesting equipment although the crops are ripe," Courneya said. "But the barley harvest is virtually completed and I would guess a fourth of the wheat has been combined as many farmers worked throughout the weekend."

The extension director said barley yields ran from 75 to 80 bushels per acre in most areas with the quality generally good. Proven yields of up to 100 bushels were reported on one farm. Yields were lower in areas where mid-June rains were excessive. Some late barley was stained and yields in the wet areas were down to 50 to 55 bushels per acre.

Hard red spring wheat has been excellent with yields up to 50 bushels per acre, test weight of 60 to 62 pounds per bushel and 13 per cent or higher protein content. Wheat delivered to elevators in the community has been plump and had good color, Courneya said.

As greater numbers of farmers acquire grain drying equipment, the number of acres being straight combined is increasing. Most of the wheat is dry enough for straight combining this year with moisture content only a percentage point or two above safe storage levels. Good chemical control of broadleaf weeds has also contributed to the ability of farmers to harvest their crops directly by combine.

While oats was once a major crop in Pennington county, the acreage planted to that crop is now comparatively small. Courneya said the fields he has seen look good but that he has heard no yield or quality reports.

Second cutting of alfalfa hay has often yielded quantity equal to the first cutting and considerably better quality due to the dry weather. There appears to be an abundance of hay locally for livestock producers, but good markets reportedly exist in other parts of the state where winter kill of alfalfa was a problem.

Sunflowers look good throughout most of the county. There has been some incidence of sunflower midge in the southwest, primarily on ground where sunflowers have been planted within a year or two after a previous sunflower crop. At least two or three other crops between sunflower crops on a given field are recommended to avoid serious midge problems.

Phil Bergland, manager of the ASCS office, said Pennington county has 218,401 acres of crop certified for this year out of 297,249 cropland acres in the county. The cropland acres include all land capable of producing crop except wasteland and permanent pasture.

Acreages certified this year include 51,143 acres of barley, 100,676 acres of wheat, 36,851 acres of sunflowers, 21,533 acres of oats, 6,134 acres of corn and 2,065 acres of other crops, including flax and specialty crops.

Assessed Valuations Are Up In Pennington County

by David Berg
Times Reporter

A visit to the office of Pennington county assessor Gerard DeHaan to gather a little data can prove to be a major undertaking. DeHaan explains that the office has recently received a new computer and all of the data from the old one has not been programmed into it yet.

So, while data may be scattered, it is available, and DeHaan is willing to help find it. He explains that not all of the figures on the various charts were calculated on the same basis, but is generally able to account for differences.

Pennington county contains over 385,000 acres valued at approximately $318,291,729. This figure is up 38.5 per cent from 1980, according to DeHaan. He says that the market value placed on real estate by his office is about 70 per cent of its actual value, which would place the total value at about $397,864,661 if everyone in the county were able to sell their property at the going rates.

While it all may seem confusing, the information available can be used to give one a better understanding of the way the county varies from one township to another. DeHaan notes that the townships vary in size. Eight — Bray, Sanders, Rocksbury, Smiley, Kratka, Highlanding, Star and Hickory — contain about 36 square miles each; seven — Numedal, Norden, North, Silverton, Clover, Goodridge and Reiner — contain about 27 square miles each; and six — Polk Centre, Black River, River Falls, Wyandotte, Mayfield and Deer Park — contain about 24 square miles each.

The townships of North and Rocksbury lose acreage to the city of Thief River Falls, but they and the township of Smiley gain in market value due to the increase in commercial and residential property near the city. DeHaan stated that while average value per acre in these townships is about $575, the land might bring closer to $2,000 per acre if sold. He explained that such land would be assessed retroactively for two years at the actual value upon sale.

DeHaan explains the relatively poor market value on lands in Polk Centre and Mayfield, Hickory and Deer Park by pointing out locations of large concentrations of government land which is tax exempt, wetlands, woods and brush. He also has data showing that people in Polk Centre and Mayfield townships haven't built as many new houses.

It can be noted that the three cities of Thief River Falls, St. Hilaire and Goodridge maintain about 38 per cent of the total estimated market value of the county and 80 per cent of the value of the buildings. The township of Rocksbury holds better than 10 per cent of the building value, and nearly 20 per cent of the total market value.

The average price per tillable acre is highest in Rocksbury at $583.63, second in North at $572.58, and third in Silverton at $565.75. Price per tillable acre is lowest in Hickory at $321.11, Deer Park at $343.94 and Star at $361.71.

Total value of agricultural property is highest in Rocks-

CONSISTENT PERFORMANCE on two days of North Country Appaloosa club Territory I horse shows in Thief River Falls won high point trophies for John Marshall of Grand Forks, ND, in the youth 13 and under category. John's sister Kathy was runner-up in the category. Separate shows were held on the two days with different judges making decisions each day.

Judge 109 Horses In Appaloosa Show

With 109 horses and more than 300 entries each day, the North Country Appaloosa Horse club held its Territory I shows at the fairgrounds horse show arena Saturday and Sunday, August 1 and 2.

The club has arranged for separate shows on successive days to reduce travel as members compete for yearly point totals. Francis V. Johnson of Chesterfield, MO, judged the Saturday show with Dick Graham of Rapid City, SD, judging the Sunday show.

Several Thief River Falls area riders performed well in the overall competition although not winning championship trophies. Rona Broten of Thief River Falls tied with Kari Dittmer of Fargo, ND, as rider of the high point performance horse Saturday, but lost the championship under tie-breaking rules of the club which gives preference to the horse scoring higher in games competition.

Mark Thune of Thief River Falls was reserve champion high point youth in the 14-18 age category Saturday and Valerie Sand of Goodridge was reserve champion high point youth in that category Sunday.

A listing of champion and reserve champions includes the following:

Valley Home Events Reported By Ella Overum

Nine residents at Valley home observed their birthdays during the month of July, according to a report provided by Ella Overum, the Home's news reporter.

Residents observing their birthdays and the dates were Sigval Ordahl, July 2; Florence Dahlin and Tillie Baker, both on July 3; Mabeline Furr, July 11; Eckard Lane, July 13; Regina Kveno, July 15; Mabel Johnson, July 18; Sena Swenson, July 28; and Nellie Peterson, July 29.

All were honored jointly at the monthly birthday party that included mocha bars and ice cream, provided by the home together with contributions from Mabel Johnson, Florence Dahlin, Tillie Baker, Sena Swenson and Eckard Lane. The program featured Alvira Peterson, who played several selections on the auto harp, and Alvida Saulte, who gave the devotions. Birthday cards with cash gifts from the Home were given to the honorees, as well as birthday cards from the Catholic Daughters.

It was noted that on the date of their birthdays, Mabeline Furr and Nellie Peterson served cake to all the residents.

Sunday morning devotional programs during the month were given by Larry Myhrer, The Trochmanns, and Willie Waterworth and a group of singers from Newfolden. Speaking at the Thursday afternoon church services were Rev. Don Peres of the Evangelical Covenant church, Intern Gary Jorgenson of Our Saviours Lutheran church, Rev. James L. Hagemeister of the Assemblies of God Tabernacle, and John Gram of the Evangelical Free church. Rev. J. Hovland and Rev. Berton Hushagen of Trinity Lutheran church were in charge of services on Wednesday, July 15, and Rev. Hovland offered communion to the residents on July 22. Sunday afternoon services are by Rev. George DeWall and family of the Bible Baptist church. Mass was offered weekly by the priests of St. Bernard's Catholic parish. On Tuesday mornings, Judith Wold or her sister, Alice Hanson, visited the Home and led Bible study; and on Sunday mornings, Bob Hackett was in charge of the Bible class. Tuesday evening services were led by the Don Johnson family, the Lowell Trochmanns and Norris Trochmann and Laurie.

Special programs were given by the Sunshine Singers of the Viking Covenant church with Ann Hanson as pianist; Ray Husker, who played the guitar and sang at the bandstand as the residents ate cookies and drank coffee; and the Winds of Peace team composed of Paul and Becky Abel, Mrs. Abel's sister and brother, Toni and David Dahlin, and Gary and Sherry Hauter. The team recently returned from Brazil where they had spent several months in missionary work.

Also visiting the Home were members of the Priscilla circle of Trinity Lutheran church, who served various sweet breads with the afternoon coffee, and Mrs. Joe Laverdure of Fargo, Odessie Vraa's niece, who served lunch in the kitchenette to a group of friends.

Outside activities for a number of residents were trips by transit bus to the Pennington county fair, to the Jaycee Aquacade parade, and to the Art in the Park at the L.B. Hartz park.

July activities concluded with "Hobo Daze" on July 31 with the residents participating in a number of contests. To correspond with the event, residents and staff wore hobo attire; and the prizes awarded were wrapped and tied in hobo style on sticks.

Contest winners were Hilda Johnson, Clareice Sundberg and Lloyd Flint in bowling; Chester Keef and Carl Ryan, pool; Orville Grimm and Earl Yonke, shuffleboard; Joe Pletchett, croquet; and Caroline Strand, blackout bingo. Joe Pletchett was selected hobo king; Minnie Wahlhaug, hobo queen; Joe Havlik, ritziest hobo, and Clarice Sundberg, grubbiest hobo.

The dinner at noon was served in hobo style on pie tins. In the afternoon, lunch was served in the Park. Providing entertainment was Melvin Swenson of St. Hilaire, who sang several hobo songs and told numerous anecdotes.

The monthly bowling game with residents of Oakland Park Nursing home was held July 8 at Valley Home with the Valley Home team winning.

KITCHEN KARNIVAL

Featuring recipes from the Kitchen of

Mrs. Frank Hible
rural Thief River Falls

Zucchini Pancakes

Larger size zucchini, peeled and chopped in blender until the blended zucchini reaches the 2 cup measure. Add buttermilk (about 1½ cups) until the mixture comes up to 2 cups. Add following ingredients and blend:

1½ cups flour
2 eggs
¼ cup or less cooking oil
1 scant teaspoon soda
1 rounded teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar

Mrs. Hible stated that this is her won original recipe. She uses the larger zucchini and does not remove the seeds. Regarding the amount of flour used in this recipe, Mrs. Hible said that if a thinner pancake is desired, she adds a little water; if thicker, she adds more flour. She also stated that the amount of flour used depends upon the maturity of the zucchini as a young zucchini is more moist and requires more flour than a mature zucchini.

The Hibles have resided in Numedal township since 1934. They have three children: Mrs. Christ Haugen, Mora; Ben at Bemidji, and Roger, who farms nearby. They also have 14 grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren. Mrs. Hible is active in the Numedal homemakers club and the women's group of the Oak Ridge Lutheran church, where they are members.

B. McKenzie Attends NDSU Speech Camp

NDSU
1981

Bruce McKenzie, son of Kenneth and Nancy McKenzie, Newfolden, recently participated in the second annual North Dakota State University high school speech camp.

Camp emphasized competitive forensic speaking events, including interpretation events such as prose, poetry, drama, humor and dramatic duo and public speaking events such as extemporaneous speaking, oratory, informative, broadcasting and speech to entertain.

Morning classes for the more than 30 participants focused on selection and preparation techniques, while afternoon sessions consisted of coaching time, videotape rehearsal sessions and individual preparation and rehearsal.

A tournament ended the activities with awards going to the top speakers in each event.

As a sophomore last year, Bruce was the first to represent Newfolden at the state level in speech competition since 1973. The outcome of that event was his participation in camp this year where he placed in two of three categories entered — second in extemporaneous speaking and third in oratory.

Vance Lefrooth's Tour of Sweden, Norway and Denmark

On May 25, Vance, Adrienne, Margaret, Vanette, Loyal and Vance Jr. left Winnipeg for Oslo, Nowary. At Oslo they rented a bus and drove to Boros, where they visited with Helge and Brita Lofstrom and their two daughters, Lillian and Leila and their families. The Lofstroms showed them around Boros and Malmo in southern Sweden. There they boarded a hydro-plane to Denmark. They spent the day and part of the night sightseeing in Copenhagen. They spent some time in Tirali Park which is really beautiful. They then returned to Malmo where they stayed over night and the next day took a canal boat tour around the city, then back to Boros. Loyal and Vance Jr. were the center of attention most places they went because they wore their cowboy hats and people always stopped and looked and said "American or Cowboy".

From Boros they drove to Frovi where they met their cousins Gunilla Malstigen, her husband Jon Eric and their children, Maria and Johan. There they went sightseeing around to Oribro-Lindesberg and Nora and later on in the day they ate lunch along the lake. They stopped at an old time fiddlers concert where they were dressed in the Swedish costumes.

Loyal, Jon Eric and Vance Jr. went fishing a few times and Vanette, Vance Jr. and Jon Eric went birdwatching. The kids had a good time there.

From Frove they drove north to Umea where they stayed with another cousin Margit and Ingvar Ederonn. They took them all over Umea and to Ov Nyland, the place the Mostroms were from. They saw the house where E. Victor Lefrooth was born and then went on to another cousins, Margit's sister, Bertha and her husband Alfonse. They drove to Vannos where they visited cousin Inger and Sorren Kock and their two children Hoken and Staffou. Margaret has been writing to both Inger and Gunilla for the past two years, so meeting them was really something special.

On their way to the Arctic circle they stopped at Lycksele to see the zoo then on to Arjeplog where they toured a Lapp museum and on to Jak Kvik in Lappland where they stayed in a cabin in the mountains. They went on to the Arctic circle where the lakes were still frozen over and there was snow on the ground, but it sure was beautiful. The yellow flowers were peeping through the snow all over. They drove on as far as the Norwegian border, there they turned around and headed back for Skelleftea and met Vance's cousin Helge Nordberg, then back to Umea where their base was.

From Umea they drove to Agnas where they stayed with Malin Persson and Sara. They visited with Per Olaf Persson, his wife and son. There they enjoyed a trip to their lake cottage where Loyal and Vance Jr. went fishing with Jerker. While visiting at Malins, two cousins from Canada, Helge and Hilding Mikaelson also visited there. The word got around that the Lefrooths were in Sweden, so they had calls from people saying they were related to them. Come and visit us, they said but they just didn't have enough time to visit all. A cousin Jual Lundquist visited the Lefrooths while at Perssons.

They left Agnas and went to Fredricka where they visited Jerker Persson and his family, from there they drove to Vilhelmira where they visited Enfrid Lundquist, his family and other members of the Lundquist family from there. They drove to Dorthea where they saw the church where Selma Englund (Adrienne's grandmother) was confirmed. Going on to Stromlund, they stayed with Erik Lofstrom and they also visited with Johan Bolins (Elsie LeFrooth's uncle and aunt), then on to Fransta where they visited Henny Paulson, Amanda Johnson's sister and her brother Otto. They took the Lefrooths on to Vispari where they saw the house Gust Johnson grew up in. They really enjoyed their visit with Henny, she made them feel so welcome. Again there was not enough time to visit very long, leaving there they drove back to Frove again and stayed another day with Gunilla, another cousin. Marianne Mostrom visited with them there. Then, going back, they drove through Karlstad, but didn't stop to visit relatives there.

Once back to Oslo they went to Frognen Park where they saw the sculptures of Vigland, here they met some American kids touring and one of them was a Fincher girl from Viking.

On their flight home they stopped at London, England, Toronto, Canada and landed at Winnipeg on the 20th of June.

Jeff Donaldson, Kristy Opheim, Lowell and Mike Lefrooth were there to meet them.

They report a wonderful time. Everyone was so friendly and happy to see them. They met so many new relatives but it was good to get back to the good old U.S.A.

Mr. and Mrs. Orton Brekke of Karlstad visited Irene Larson Thursday evening.

Hulda Stromberg visited Irene Larson Saturday afternoon.

Saturday night drawing winners August 8 were Elmer Henrickson and Art Nelson, winning the two five dollar certificates. Joyce Storeby was called for the $40, but she was not present so it will go up to $45 next Saturday evening.

Keep Distance Between Car And Car Ahead

Minnesota law enforcement agencies, including the Minnesota state patrol, have received numerous complaints recently about drivers following other vehicles too closely, according to public safety commissioner John P. Sopsic.

State law requires drivers to maintain a "reasonable and prudent" distance, taking into consideration the rate of speed of other vehicles, traffic volume and weather conditions.

Rear end collisions are often caused by failure to follow these suggestions, said Col. Roger Ledding, state patrol chief. Ledding recommends that drivers observe the rule of thumb for minimum safe following distance called the "two-second rule."

To use the two-second rule, choose a fixed object on the road ahead, such as a sign post, overpass, tree or bridge abutment. When the vehicle ahead passes that object, start to count, "One thousand one, one thousand two." If you reach the same object before you finish saying "one thousand two," the distance is too close and should be lengthened by a slower speed until the recommended distance is achieved. If road conditions are poor, the following distance should be increased to four or five seconds.

Ledding also said motorists should be continually alert to traffic conditions ahead. If it is determined that traffic well ahead is slowing, a driver is more capable of adjusting speed and avoiding a sudden and severe braking action that might cause rear end accidents.

Suggested following distances for representative speeds, according to the two-second rule with good driving conditions, are: 30 miles per hour — 90 feet; 40 mph — 120 feet; 50 mph — 150 feet.

Kidney Patients Not Helped By Saving Labels

During the past several weeks, the National Kidney foundation of the Upper Midwest has received many phone calls from people who have been saving universal product codes, tops of pop cans and cigarette wrappers in response to a rumor that these can be redeemed for free dialysis treatment for kidney patients. The Kidney foundation is not sponsoring such a program and has been unable to find any organization that does.

Since 1973, the federal government has paid for 80 per cent of the cost of dialysis and 100 per cent of the cost of receiving a kidney transplant. This has relieved the kidney patient of the great costs involved with the treatment of kidney disease. Private insurance usually covers the remaining expense.

"It is heartening to know that so many citizens are filled with concern for those less fortunate than they. Unfortunately, collecting anything will not help anyone," stated foundation executive director Peggy McGrew.

"If anyone really wants to help kidney patients, he or she can do so by signing an organ donor card that will help secure much needed kidneys for transplantation or by becoming involved in activities sponsored by the Kidney Foundation of the Upper Midwest.

Those wishing further information can contact the foundation at (612) 645-8605.

Stock For Pay Plan Accepted By Republic

Union leaders representing Republic Airlines employees have offered the company a "stock-for-pay" plan for the month of August. The unions proposed that employees take common stock in place of 15 per cent of their August salary. The company has accepted the offer and indicated all management personnel also will participate.

According to Republic's unions, the proposal demonstrates the confidence of the employees in Republic.

The stock payments will reduce Republic's cash outlay by an estimated $6 million. (The price paid for the common shares will be the closing price on Aug. 31.) The program involves August salaries only and the stock payments will apply to September paychecks. Republic will issue the stock certificates in September.

"This program will help conserve cash flow which was affected by the first days of the air traffic controller strike. Traffic now is operating at a near-normal level," said Daniel F. May, Republic president.

Horseshoe Pits Are Built By Golden K Club

Members of the "Golden K" Kiwanis club of Thief River Falls have recently completed construction of three horse shoe pits for the use and enjoyment of all Thief River Falls and area residents. The pits are available free of charge at any time and are located to the east of the water tower in Lions park on Nora street.

The pits are constructed to official specifications of size and distance, and are readily adaptable for ladies' use.

Work was done under the supervision of Edmund Doeling, a retired engineer and a member of the club. All of the work was done by members of the club. Some of the members who donated work were Quentin Jones, Klem Gigstad, Ray Bren, Web Maves, Dennis Wegge, Christ Saustad and Kenneth Halldin.

Arrangements for the pits were made with the park board and with the cooperation and help of Clarence Breiland of the park department. Some of the materials were donated by the park department and by the Home Lumber company. Benches have been placed near the pits by the park department for the convenience of players and spectators.

Golden K Kiwanis Club is made up entirely of retired persons and meets every Tuesday morning. Any retired person may join.

Three Strikes And Out

News media in Minnesota has been filled for weeks with stories about strikes, the three most extensively covered including the major league baseball strike, the state employees (AFSCME) strike and the air controller strike.

Regardless of which strike was under discussion, the attitude of the public was one of disgust with the strikers. Primarily the public was turned off by the seemingly unreasonable positions presented.

As of now, two of the three strikes have been settled. Baseball players and owners reached a compromise after making a mockery of the 1981 season but cutting out its heart with nearly two months of gameless bickering. State employees went back to work after a percentage increase in double figures was granted — well in excess of similar settlements elsewhere.

Only the air controller strike — of the big three walk-outs — remains underway at this writing. It is an illegal strike, the walk-outs are in violation of an oath of office, and in effect they have quit their jobs because a strike is against the law.

Not as many people are affected by the air controller strike because not everyone can afford or has occasion to fly. But everyone can recognize the implications of violating the law and ignoring an oath. The government is entirely proper in not giving an inch and in considering the strikers as voluntary quits, entitled to treatment as such.

Hazard Of The Trade

Every now and then in this newspaper business a writer would like to dig a hole and pull it in after him. Such was the case Wednesday when this writer identified Thief River Falls' teacher of the year as Cal Lindberg instead of John Hustad in a story on state teacher of the year competition.

How can a person explain a mistake like that? He can't. He can only cower in embarrassed silence, speaking only to apologize for the blunder.

Both Cal and John are capable young teachers who have been local teacher of the year selections. But Cal earned the honor several years ago and John is presently among 13 finalists for state teacher of the year consideration.

That finalist status is no small recognition. There were some 179 local winners from 176 school districts nominated in the first phase of the competition. This list was trimmed to 34 "teachers of excellence" — an elite group in itself. Then 13 of those elite — including John — were advanced to "honor roll" status. From the 13 a group of 19 judges will select the state's teacher of the year.

Making a mistake in attempting to localize a state-wide story (there were no names mentioned in the release we received) is one of the hazards of the trade. A number of people called the error to our attention, and we're glad they are observant and caring readers.

At any rate, we apologize for the error. And John, when you get that top state award, we'll try our best to get it right!

No Lone Ranger . . .

Following editorial is from the Worthington Daily Globe:

One of these days someone is going to have to get the nation's Korea War veterans organized for a protest. In all justice, they never had their turn.

Like the Vietnam war veterans, the GI veterans of Frozen Chosen came home one at a time. There were no committees to greet them, no banners unfurled, no parades.

Like the Vietnam war veterans, the Korea Fleas were cheated in the distribution of an array of veterans' benefits which might be imagined. Veterans of World War II, as an actual example, were entitled to keep their government life insurance policies and they were mailed dividends — some hefty bonus checks — each year. Insurance companies objected; Korea War veterans did not receive the insurance dividends.

Like the Vietnam War veterans, the Korea Korps never knew the sweet taste of victory. They fought against the armies of China. In total, 54,000 of the young Americans were killed. Their total casualties, dead and wounded, exceeded 157,000. Through some days they fought in intense, tropical heat. Summertime temperatures on the Korean Peninsula may reach 100 degrees. In other days they fought in sub-zero cold. Winter temperatures in Korea reach 30-below zero.

Then one day the young soldiers were told there was an armistice and combat ceased — there never was so much as a letter that said, "Thank you." That armistice came 28 years ago this month, July 27, 1953.

The sacrificial efforts of the Korea veterans are not even credited with being a part of some war. At the time it was called a police action. ("According to reports, about 54 thousand American men were killed as they walked their beats during a recent police action . . ."). To this day, as another example, the Nobles County Honor Roll of military dead lists men and women who gave their lives in the World War II and in the Vietnam War. The dead from Korea are listed under "Korea Conflict."

The nation's memorial to Korea is M-A-S-H. The Korean war has been reduced to a television situation comedy.

It seems often there is not much that is different between the experiences of the U.S. soldiers in Korea and the U.S. soldiers in Vietnam. It somehow just never occurred to Korea veterans that they could or should cry out, call for additional benefits, ask for recognition, sue for damages, undertake hunger strikes, negotiate for privileges, or goad other Americans a decade after their war to organize parades and community honors for them.

There was a social stigma attached to self-pity in those long ago Korea police action - conflict - picnic days. When a young veteran would sob, an old veteran would say sternly, "Quit feeling sorry for yourself . . . you're not the Lone Ranger, buddy; everybody who ever was in a war had a hell of a time."

Zipping Into Place

Following editorial is from the Wheaton Gazette:

Remember a few months back when we had all the hallabaloo about the nine-number zip code? The voice of the people was heard loudly and clearly. They stood definitely opposed to tacking another four numbers onto the already difficult-to-remember five digit zip code in effect nationally.

Congressmen also stood tall and made grand speeches about running the government for the benefit of the people. Certainly the U.S. Postal Department wasn't going to cram its ideas down the throats of the American public.

And so, with speeches flying and with Congressmen stomping and waving and making a grand show of defense for the public, we learned, simply, that the nine-digit zip would not come into being. The idea was being set aside.

Then a few weeks later we learned that . . . well, maybe with all that new jazzy equipment purchased by the P.O. folks, maybe the nine-digit zip would be used on a limited basis — purely voluntarily, of course.

And then last week the mail boxes of the public were packed with a little message from the friendly folks at the P.O. The piece was titled, "Introducing ZIP+4". The sheet tells how under the old zip system, that is the five number system, only the destination post office was identified. Now with added numbers, we are going to see identification right down to areas, blocks and in some instances even to specific apartment buildings. Fantastic!

There are two things that bother me about this. The first is that I have a devil of a time remembering zip numbers for area towns the way things are — that is the 5-digit numbers. I'll never be able to sort out the 9-digit jobs. And the second is that it seems to me that mail was delivered a whole lot faster in the pre-zip days than it is now. It used to be possible to mail a letter in Wheaton and have it delivered in Tenney or Tintah the following day. Now you can count on it taking two days. Add another four digits and I figure maybe a week — with luck.

I guess there's one other thing that bothers me about what's happening. That's the quiet way we are getting exactly what every Congressman around promised so faithfully that we would not be forced to accept. We are getting the 9-digit zip.

But it's only on a voluntary basis, you say. If you don't want to use it, you don't have to. Be serious. You know and I know that within a brief period of time that "it will never happen" 9-digit zip turned into a "use it if you want" 9-digit zip, is definitely going to become "you WILL use it" 9-digit zip.

So much for the voice of the public.

Borrowed Nonsense:

"If there is one among you who considers himself perfect," the minister challenged, "let that person stand." When a man slowly rose to his feet, the minister asked, "Do you consider yourself perfect?" "Oh, no, sir," the man replied. "I'm here as a stand-in for my wife's first husband."

Gov. Quie's Column

The Need For Responsible Waste Disposal

Everyone who wears clothing, rides in an automobile or truck, uses a television, radio, computer or digital watch contributes, at least indirectly, to Minnesota's hazardous waste problem.

When these and numerous other products are manufactured, caustic, toxic and inflammable by-products such as chemicals, acids or solvents are produced. About 150,000 tons of such hazardous waste products are generated in Minnesota each year.

Most of that waste, about 57 per cent, is now being dumped along highways, in ditches and in sewers. This is an illegal and highly unsafe method of disposal, exposing us to dangerous fumes and poisoning our water supply.

Minnesota must find a safe way to manage its hazardous waste, keeping two basic concerns in mind.

First, we ought to recycle and recover as much of the waste as we can. According to waste management experts, the volume of Minnesota's hazardous waste can be reduced about 90 per cent through recycling, neutralization or incineration. The 10 per cent that remains needs to be disposed of at a hazardous waste disposal facility.

Second, the waste disposal site or sites must be chosen with fairness and wisdom, in a manner which is sensitive to the conerns of our people. To help ensure a careful search, the Legislature passed, and I signed, the Waste Management Act of 1980. The act established a nine-member board to prepare a statewide hazardous waste management plan and to select sites for hazardous waste disposal and processing facilities.

In this column, I would like to highlight the Waste Management Board's progress in selecting one or more waste disposal sites.

Potential Hazardous Waste Sites Narrowed

On July 23, the Waste Management Board narrowed its search for a waste disposal site to about 900 square miles of land in 21 Minnesota counties. By August 27, the board expects to eliminate all but about 100 square miles of the possible disposal sites. On September 10, the board will recommend 20 one-square-mile sites as "candidate areas." These will be examined through soil borings and other on-site inspections. In addition, the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency will study the possible environmental effects of sites in those areas.

By March of 1982, the board will have narrowed its choices to six, with a final selection scheduled for January 1984. State law requires the board to select at least one site, although it could select more.

The state will lease the site to a private company that will build and operate the facility. Disposal of waste at the site may begin in 1985 or 1986.

Using Public Land For A Waste Disposal Site

Since all of us are part of the waste disposal problem it would be preferable if we could all share the burden of solving it. This could be done by placing the disposal site on already publicly-owned land.

I have always said that we should first consider using public land for a hazardous waste disposal site. The state owns 5.2 million acres or about 10 per cent of the state's land area. Hopefully part of that land would be a suitable disposal site.

As the board proceeds in its selection process, it will continue to eliminate lands — public and private — with sensitive groundwater aquifers in the surrounding area, unsuitable soils and nearby wetlands, lakes and streams. These areas, as well as our productive farm lands, must be protected.

Citizen Input Important Part of Site Selection Process

Minnesota needs a hazardous waste disposal site.

However, many citizens are reluctant to have the facility built near their homes.

The Waste Management Board is committed to locating the best possible disposal site in the fairest manner. Numerous public hearings have been held across the state during these three stages of the selection process and will continue as the choices narrow. The opinions and concerns of citizens are an essential part of the selection process and will receive genuine consideration.

Some people may not be entirely happy with the final choice or choices. Nevertheless, the site must be located somewhere. If we benefit from a product, we are responsible for its harmful by-product.

By selecting a hazardous waste disposal site in a careful fashion, informed by public opinion, the Waste Management Board will contribute considerably to Minnesota's well-being.

LEGISLATIVE REPORT

by LeRoy Stumpf

STATE REPRESENTATIVE DISTRICT 1B

This week I would like to tell you about new laws in the area of health and welfare. Under this category comes special legislation for senior citizens, juveniles, the disabled and handicapped, as well as the entire citizenry.

Health and welfare issues met with a lot of debate during the 1981 season because of budget restraints. It took a great deal of research and study to determine how we could maintain aid to those in need, yet not spend money that wasn't available. In the end we managed to do that better than most of us thought possible. Restrictions were placed on several assistance programs to cut costs, but not the extent that anyone needing help will be left out.

The Health, Welfare, the Corrections Appropriations bill passed totals $1.55 billion. New restrictions were placed on general assistance, but it will still be available to battered women, displaced homemakers, mentally ill people, people with language barriers, or for those in emergency situations for a limited time only. Continued aid is offered to crime victims and nursing home residents as well.

Income requirements for Medicaid were lowered, but a married couple with only one spouse living in a nursing home can still maintain $10,000 in assets and be eligible for assistance. In other cases the amount was lowered to $4,000.

In a move to make nursing homes more responsive to individual resident needs, we passed laws eliminating two State Health Department regulations which prohibited double beds in nursing homes for married couples and lock on residents' doors.

Senior citizens non-profit groups or associations are now exempt from property taxes. And cities may extend the individual senior citizens special property tax assessment defferal to people who retire due to permanent or total disability.

Senior citizens and the disabled are among groups of people counties are now held responsible for. The new community social services act lists these groups and establishes a new formula for distributing community social services to them. It also provides minimum state funding levels and requires local aid.

The act prohibits counties from reducing funds for the care of mentally retarded, epileptics, or emotionally disturbed children during 1982.

A legislative task force was established to study epilepsy and cancer is now a reportable disease in Minnesota. The State Health Department will collect information on possible occupational, environmental, military, and lifestyle exposure for cancer and birth defect victims so that eventually cancer may be discovered and prevented.

Insurance companies are prohibited through a new law from refusing coverage to women for conditions related to DES, except for previously diagnosed cancer. Another new law requires prescription drugs sold in Minnesota to carry an identification number, company name, or some other unique mark for quick identification in emergencies.

Abortion was, as usual, a topic of concern at the legislature as we passed a law stating it is legislative intent and public policy in Minnesota to favor childbirth over abortion. Before the bill was passed it was amended to give Health Maintenance Organizations an option as to whether or not they want to provide abortion services. Exceptions can be made in cases where a mother's life is in danger.

Another new abortion law requires doctors to notify the parents of a minor girl requesting an abortion. That notification must be in writing and be sent 48 hours before the abortion is scheduled to be performed. Exceptions are made in cases where the abortion is to save a girl's life, her parents have already provided written permission, or where she is a victim of sexual abuse or neglect. The new law does not give parents authority to stop abortions.

A safety law passed for children of a different age requires parents or guardians transporting children under the age of four in motor vehicles to use special child passenger restraints. Law officers are authorized to stop any vehicles carrying unrestrained children and can issue a verbal or written warning.

If you have any questions about this or other new laws in Minnesota, please contact me by writing Representative LeRoy Stumpf, Route 1, Box 47, Plummer 56748, or phone 465-4274. As always I welcome your ideas and inquiries on any issues before the state.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

Let Christians remember that William Penn, founder of the state of Pennsylvania, was put in prison seven times. He came to New Jersey, Delaware, Pennsylvania. It was Penn's land and offered full religious freedom to all.

This is what is now being taken away by the State of New Jersey.

Judge O'Conner must not be confirmed, may God's people pray, may the preachers inform their people, may the protest be made to the President, to Senator Strom Thurmond and by every citizen to other citizens. There is no time for delay. The senate will confirm her sometime in September, they say, following the hearings. The Senator from Tennessee, Howard Baker, has even said the confirmation will probably be unanimous.

Go into action!

Sincerely for God and Country,
Emma Westby

Answers from the Bible by Pastor Don Peres

Q. Pastor Don, why does God allow so much suffering in the world?

A. This is one question that I get asked most to answer from the Bible. Just recently I have had several similar questions asked relating to the same question.

Suffering is difficult to talk or write about, for it is not something that can adequately be examined outside the realm of experience. It is only when one has passed through a crisis event that one can truly comprehend what it means to suffer.

Pain has many faces. There are as many invisible hurts as there are visible. One can suffer physically, mentally, emotionally, psychologically, and spiritually. Many of you know the reality of cancer, strokes, heart attacks, birth defects, auto injuries and terminal illnesses. But loneliness, rejection, depression, insecurities, disappointments, and lack of love can be just as crippling.

Suffering is one of God's ways of speaking to us, of awakening us to our need of Him, and calling us to Himself. If our suffering leads us to God, it has become a blessed and precious friend.

God wants to help us when we suffer. He can give His presence for comfort, His power for endurance, His purpose so that we might gain insight into our situation. And He can produce within us valuable qualities that will strengthen and mold our lives.

I Peter 5:10 says to the Christian, "After that ye have suffered awhile, God will make you perfect, stablish, strengthen, and settle you."

Psalm 119:71 David the psalmist said, "It is good for me that I have been afflicted; that I might learn thy statutes."

Psalm 119:75 says, "I know, O Lord, that thy judgements are right, and that thou in faithfulness has afflicted me."

Job 2:10 says, "What? Shall we receive good at the hand of God, and shall we not receive evil?"

Only God can diagnose our problem accurately and will show us how to solve it; and when there is no solution, He will give us grace to live with it. Only God can answer our question, Why? And when there is no answer, give us His peace and grace to live with the unanswered.

One of the promises that has meant so much to me is found in Romans 8:28. "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are called according to His purpose."

Here are a few verses that you can look up in the Bible that will help you to understand the purpose of suffering for the Christian: Hebrews 2:10, Hebrews 5:8, Romans 8:18, II Corinthians 12:8-10.

If you have any questions that you would like to have answered from the Bible, please write Pastor Don Peres, Box 129, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.

Review Softball Predictions

In reviewing preseason predictions published in The Times by Thief River Falls men's slow pitch softball association spokesman Randy Dallmann, it was discovered that he guessed just one of the four division winners correctly.

Order of finish in each of the divisions, and Dallmann's predictions, were as follows:

Division I — 1. TRF Merchants; 2. McDonald's-Dallmann Athletic; 3. Furuseth-Nelson; 4. Swenson Plumbing; 5. Middle River Merchants. Dallmann's predicted finish — 1. Swenson Plumbing; 2. TRF Merchants; 3. Middle River Merchants; 4. McDonald's-Dallmann Athletic; 5. Furuseth-Nelson.

Miscellaneous

+Ric Otto, coach of the Detroit Lakes American Legion baseball team, told Ralph Anderson of the Detroit Lakes Tribune that much of the blame for the team's collapse the last part of the year should fall on his own shoulders. "Early in the season I was satisfied to win rather than force the kids to play better and we just didn't work hard enough to improve the various aspects of the game," Otto confessed to Anderson. "Looking at it now, I guess I'd have to say that I really didn't do too much with the talent we had and consequently I am unhappy with the job I did with the talent this summer." A numer of players on this year's Detroit Lakes team were members of the 1980 District 9 championship team, but the 1981 club lost to Glyndon 8-5 and fell to Ada 3-1 in the Norman-Becker-Clay (N-B-C) Sub District playoffs.

+East Grand Forks American Legion baseball coach Dave Aker, who watched his team lose three one-run games to Thief River Falls this summer, including a 3-2 contest in the Northwest League Sub District playoffs semifinals, told Warren Strandell of the East Grand Forks Exponent that an 18-13 finish was better than the .500 year that he had predicted, but he expects a much better showing in 1982. "I think we should be able to win 25 games next year," said Aker. "After sitting down at the end of the year and thinking about the season, I guess I have to be happy. You can always say that you could've won a few more games here and there, but before the season started I said I thought we'd be a .500 team. The number of graduates this year is one of the smallest that we've had in a few years and I was impressed this year by the younger players that we had. I think we can win a lot of games next year." Among next year's returnees will be Brad Buck, the team's top pitcher who had a 2.38 earned-run average, along with four of its top five hitters: Jim Stallmo, the team-leader with a .402 batting average; Todd Christiansen .390; Rob Schneider .354; and Tim Roche .351.

Deer Permits Increased For 1981 Hunters

Restrictions on antlerless deer hunting and two relatively mild winters have boosted the state's deer population and resulted in an increase in the number of antlerless permits available to hunters this season, the DNR announced.

This year, 84,405 permits will be offered compared to 66,765 available last year.

Officials said deer hunting licenses and copies of the 1981 regulations are now being sent to county auditors for distribution to license agents.

Hunters were asked to read the regulations carefully to make sure they select the time and place they wish to hunt.

September 15 is the deadline for hunters who wish to apply for a permit to take an antlerless deer during the 1981 firearms season.

A drawing will be held to select successful applicants, who will be picked at random through the use of a computer.

TRF Teams Are Eliminated In District 7 Class B Tournament

Defending champion Swenson Plumbing of Thief River Falls reached the semifinals of the 1981 District 7 Class B men's slow pitch softball tournament Sunday before bowing out of the 20-team, double-elimination event that advanced both finalists — the Red Lake Falls Rabbits and Lepier, Inc. of Fosston — to the state Class B tournament this weekend in Coon Rapids.

Five Thief River Falls teams participated in the District 7 Class B tournament at Crookston, but only Swenson Plumbing made it through the first day of the two-day affair.

Swenson Plumbing shut out the Red Lake Falls Rabbits 6-0 in a first round start, but rest of the Thief River Falls men's slow pitch softball association Division I teams met first round losses, with Green's Plumbing of Detroit Lakes blanking McDonald's-Dallman Athletic 5-0; Terry's Mobil of Red Lake Falls downed Furuseth-Nelson 4-1 and Lakes Sports of Detroit Lakes out-scoring the Middle River Merchants 17-13.

In the second round, the TRF Merchants, who had received a first round bye, fell to Aho & Sons of Detroit Lakes 23-16, Furuseth-Nelson was ousted by Anderson Trucking of Detroit Lakes 13-4, Middle River Merchants were eliminated by Toupin's Chalet of Warren 11-10 while McDonald's-Dallman Athletic stayed alive by beating Don's IGA of Bemidji 10-1.

Saturday's competition was completed when Swenson Plumbing, after receiving a second round bye, crushed Lake Park 15-0 and Ulen sidelined McDonald's-Dallmann Athletic 11-6.

Swenson Plumbing started Sunday by beating Aho & Sons 14-9, but lost to Lepier, Inc. 5-4 before being eliminated by the Red Lake Falls Rabbits 21-7.

Lepier, Inc. finished unbeaten yesterday by ending the Red Lake Falls Rabbits' march through the loser's bracket with a 9-4 championship game decision in ten innings.

Six Thief River Falls teams will be in Crookston this weekend for the District 7 Class C tournament, including the St. Hilaire Bears, Consumer's Co-op, A & W Bottling, First Federal, The Barbers and E.T.'s Bees.

Two other Thief River Falls teams — Sound Level - Holthusen and First Northwestern Insurance Agency — have earned berths in the state Class D tournament Saturday and Sunday at the University of Minnesota softball fields in Minneapolis.

TAG APPLIED BY Hardees seconded baseman Dale Warne was too late to get The Barbers base runner Kevin Brown, who advanced an extra base on a second inning overthrow during Division III action in Sunday's Thief River Falls men's slow pitch softball association playoffs. The Barbers won the high-scoring game 18-17.

Applicants should indicate whether they will accept any other date if none of their choices are available.

At Thief Lake the reservation system will be in effect through October 19, but after that date stations will be available on a first-come basis. The system will be in effect at Lac qui Parle for the entire season but the area will be closed when the quota of geese has been taken.

Ducks Unlimited Reports On Waterfowl Projects In Canada

Rainfall and cool weather have finally returned to sate the parched prairie marshes, ponds and potholes of Canada where over 70 per cent of the continent's waterfowl are produced.

But while the welcome change in weather has farmers across Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan fairly dancing, it is a case of too little too late to improve this year's waterfowl production picture, according to Ducks Unlimited, North America's largest private preserver of waterfowl.

The rain, reported DU Executive Vice President Dale E. Whitesell, has broken a three-year stranglehold of drought, which culminated this year with the driest prairie spring ever recorded. The return of moisture has raised both prairie pond counts and optimism for next year's hatch, but as far as this year is concerned the damage has been done. "All the evidence we have points to a substantial decline in waterfowl production for 1981," Whitesell said. "Since water was not abundant when the birds returned in the spring, many decided to forgo a breeding attempt."

Whitesell explained that while this year's fall flight will likely be reminiscent of the low period experienced during the drought of the 1960s, the continent's game managers will have an opportunity to make some good out of the situation. "These extreme condition," Whitesell said, "will give game managers an excellent opportunity to evaluate the effectiveness of the tools used in their profession."

Some of those tools, according to Whitesell, are waterfowl hunting regulations, and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS) is entering the second year of an experimental plan designed to find their real value. Under the plan, regulations such as bag limits, shooting hours and season dates and lengths have been set and will remain constant for five years. After that period, game managers will compare vaiable and cyclical conditions, such as

NHF Day Is Planned For September 26

President Ronald Reagan has praised America's 55 million hunters and fishermen for "their efforts on behalf of conservation" and designated Saturday, September 26, 1981, as national hunting and fishing day (NHF).

September 26 marks the tenth anniversary of national hunting and fishing day. Since the day was recognized by Congress in 1972, it has earned the support of each President.

In his statement for national hunting and fishing day, President Reagan pointed to the important role sportsmen have played in conservation. "To ensure that future generations could enjoy America's wildlife, hunters and fishermen helped found the conservation movement," said the President.

"Since then," he said, "America's wildlife has staged a dramatic comeback. Elk, deer, antelope and wild turkey, which had been reduced to small and scattered populations, have been restored to healthy and abundant numbers."

"The restoration of wildlife populations," President Reagan said, "has been due to wildlife management and habitat restoration programs financed largely by sportsmen's contributions." He also pointed out that these sportsman-financed programs "benefit hundreds of non-game as well as game species."

The President noted that hunters and fishermen have provided more than $5 billion for conservation through special fees and private contributions.

President Reagan concluded his statement by urging all Americans to join the hunters and fishermen in their efforts "to ensure the wise use of our natural and wildlife resources."

Over the past decade, national hunting and fishing day has continued to grow in both size and impact. Millions of sportsmen and non-sportsmen participate each year in more than 2,500 separate national hunting and fishing day activities at sportsmen's clubs, schools, shopping centers and wildlife management areas across the country.

Additional information about National Hunting and Fishing Day is available from NHF Day, 1075 Post Road, Riverside, CT 06878.

Possibility of a first place tie in the final Thief River Falls fast pitch softball league regular season standings still exists, but when the situation will be resolved is still up in the air.

North Star Transport inched closer to Action Realty Wednesday by taking both ends of a split doubleheader: blanking Popplers 4-0 and getting by upset-minded Schmidts 2-1.

That put North Star Transport at 13-4 for the year, with one game remaining against TG Sporting Goods. Action Realty is assured of a first place tie after finishing 14-4. The problem is trying to get North Star Transport and TG Sporting Goods together, with several conflicts likely to postpone the meeting for another week yet.

Rest of the 1981 league schedule was long ago completed.

Al Erickson pitched a two-hitter as North Star Transport wins the all-important first step in their march to a possible league title tie by beating Popplers 4-0 in Wednesday's doubleheader opener.

North Star Transport scored the only runs needed in the bottom of the first inning when Roger Cota reached base on an error, went to second on a wild pitch and scored on Bruce Johnson's double to left-center. Tom Neibauer singled to right to score Johnson for a 2-0 lead.

Neibauer singled to right with two out in the third and scored on an error on Bennie Johnson's double to center.

Final run came in the fourth when Mike Kvarnlov and Nick Neibauer singled, with an error on Neibauer's hit allowing Kvarnlov to score.

Mitch Dicken was the only Popplers hitter to solve Erickson: he had both Popplers hits.

After taking the first step with the left foot in game one, North Star Transport took step two in its title march with the right foot in Wednesday's doubleheader nightcap as Marty Brown hurled a four-hitter in beating Schmidts 2-1.

Dennis Bakke's two-out solo home run in the top of the first inning gave North Star Transport a 1-0 lead. Schmidts tied the contest in the bottom of the third when Jim Sethre led off with a double to left, advanced to third on a wild pitch and scored on Paul Walker's ground-out.

The game remained tied until the top of the sixth when Roger Cota singled to center, advanced to third on a pair of ground-outs, and scored the winning run when Tom Neibauer's fly ball was dropped.

Schmidts made an effort to tie the game in the bottom of the sixth when Mark Haats singled with one out and Mark Lundin's hot smash was turned into a quick pitcher-to-shot-to-first double play.

Bald Eagle Survey Counts 13,709 Birds

National Wildlife Federation has announced that its third annual midwinter bald eagle survey in the "lower 48" states, taken during the first two weeks of January, 1981, resulted in a count of 13,709 eagles — an increase of five per cent over last year's count.

The survey was taken between January 2 and January 16 by nearly 4,000 counters from 45 state and wildlife agencies, seven federal agencies and 150 local conservation groups.

William S. Clark, director of NWF's Raptor Information Center, estimated that of the 13,709 eagles counted, about 70 per cent were migrants from Canada and Alaska which fly south when cold weather and frozen waterways interfere with their search for food. "The contiguous 48 states have a resident population of around 4,500 birds," he said, "but eagle counters may have actually surveyed only between 2,000 and 3,000 of the residents." He noted that coverage by eagle counters in 1981 was comparable to coverage in 1980, which explained the similar results. There were 35 per cent more eagles counted in 1980 than in 1979, mainly due to better coverage last year.

Considered to be the most complete midwinter bald eagle count available, the NWF survey provides eagle experts with data on where the birds are distributed during the winter and what kind of habitat they need to survive. "As we accumulate data from our annual bald eagle surveys, we will be able to better understand the needs of these birds," Clark explained. NWF's Raptor Information Center, established in 1976, serves as a clearing house for data on eagles and other birds of prey.

"The annual survey is taken during the winter in order to increase our knowledge of bald eagle numbers and distribution at that time of year, when the numbers of birds found in the lower 48 are at their peak," Clark said. "During January survey conditions are ideal because eagle movements are at a minimum."

According to survey coordinator Mike Pramstaller, an NWF raptor specialist, the state of Washington reported the biggest 1981 midwinter eagle populations, with 1,611 sightings. Other states with high numbers of eagles were Missouri with 955; Florida 920; Idaho 756; Utah 742; and California 711. No eagles were sighted in either Vermont or West Virginia. Pramstaller pointed out that at least one pair of eagles is thought to reside in the latter state. Surveyors failed to spot the pair, however. There were eight eagles spotted in Minnesota in the 1981 survey compared to the 16 sighted in 1980 and three in 1979. Because of duplicated sightings by survey teams, state counts must sometimes be revised, he said. Last year's reported census total of 13,127 was later revised to 13,046.

For this year's survey every state had a regional coordinator, who was responsible for organizing the coverage in his area. In most cases the coordinator was an agency biologist who was knowledgeable of the eagles in his area. In five states — Idaho, Neveda, New Mexico, Texas and Pennsylvania — there was a significant increase in eagle counters this year.

Weather conditions had a definite effect on survey results, Pramstaller emphasized. Cold weather was probably responsible for the increase over 1980's count in the number of eagle observations in Connecticut, New Hampshire, Pennsylvania and Maryland. Eagles are much more concentrated in certain areas during the cold weather, as they congregate near unfrozen water sources. In the region west of the Appalachian Mountains, weather was mild and dry, so the eagles were more dispersed and survey-taking more difficult. In Missouri and Utah, for example, eagles were counted in low numbers at traditional concentration areas. In both states about as many eagles were counted this year as last, but they were more dispersed.

There was a major change in distribution this year in the region along the Mississippi river from Minneapolis to Dubuque, Iowa where bald eagles increased by 151 over the 1980 figures. A concurrent decrease this year of 194 bald eagles in Illinois away from the Mississippi suggests that the extremely mild weather encouraged the eagles to remain further north along the river, Pramstaller pointed out.

In the western U.S. bald eagle numbers were up in the intermountain regions of Idaho, Utah and New Mexico. The larger number tallied in New Mexico may be largely attributable to more extensive coverage in 1981. However, bald eagle numbers were up 75 per cent in Idaho. Coordinators from that state felt that although there was increased coverage in 1981, there were significantly more birds present this winter. Counts in Utah, which were hampered by extensive fog, may have resulted in increases comparable to Idaho under more ideal survey conditions. Elsewhere in the West, bald eagle numbers were similar to last year except in Nevada, where increased survey effort yielded more birds, and in Oregon, where eagle numbers were down by 106.

The 1981 midwinter survey data is now being entered into NWF's computer for analysis and easy retrieval. "One of the major uses of the survey data," said Clark, "is to provide state and government agencies as well as independent researchers with the most current and comprehensive information in wintering bald eagle distribution." The Raptor Information Center distributes standardized results of the survey to all cooperating agencies annually.

Bald eagle was adopted as the national symbol by the Continental Congress in 1782. While the decline of bald eagle populations is due mainly to habitat loss, use of DDT and other pesticides during the 1950's and 60's seriously impaired the bird's reproductive process. Use of these pesticides was largely outlawed in the 1970's.

Clarak feels that the bald eagle is making a comeback, "especially in the Chesapeake Bay and Great Lakes regions." Habitat loss continues to be the long-range problem, however. "That's why it's important to have the valuable data our eagle midwinter surveys provide," Clark emphasized. "Finally we are getting a feel for what habitat is essential to the birds."

the recent drought and fall flight numbers, against the fixed background of stabilized regulations to determine the real impact hunting harvests have on waterfowl breeding populations.

"U.S. waterfowl hunting regulations have traditionally fluctuated to match these varying conditions, and the positive-negative impact such rules have on waterfowl populations has been under question for about as long," Whitesell said. "With the FWS' plan, many of those questions can finally be answered."

Whitesell added that while some interest groups are opposed to the FWS' continuation of its experiment with stabilized regulations, the current weather cycle is tailor made for the plan. "Now that water has returned, game managers have two different weather factors to work with," Whitesell said. "These, coupled with more varied conditions that will doubtless be encountered over the course of five years, will give wildlife managers a firm grasp on how to apply the tools of their trade for the best benefit of the continent's wild ducks and geese."

Fish, Wildlife Service Issues News Reports

More than 400 Atlantic salmon have began their spawning runs up the Connecticut river this spring. The number represents the largest run since restoration efforts began in 1965, according to Galen Buterbaugh, associate director of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service for fishery resources.

All salmon, shad and herring spawning runs stopped in 1814 on the Connecticut river with the construction of mill pond dams. In 1974, after removal of a number of dams one salmon finally returned on its spawning run. The next year three returned, and by 1978, 90 salmon were counted running the river. Last year, the number was 175.

Shad and herring runs have also resumed in the river. The shad run is expected to at least equal last year's record of 376,000, and the herring run is expected to exceed half a million.

Restoration efforts for the salmon are guided by the technical committee for fisheries management of the Connecticut Basin, which includes fishery experts from several of the New England state agencies, the National Marine Fisheries Service, and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. The huge restoration task included removing or circumventing dams and other obstacles to migrating fish, drastically reducing pollution, and releasing large numbers of smolts and fry in the headwaters of the river. Major hydropower companies also have contributed significantly to the restoration effort, Buterbaugh said, by providing access at five mainstem dams for the fish to reach their traditional spawning grounds.

Importer Jailed

Owner and operator of one of the oldest and largest bird import operations in the U.S. was sentenced June 5 to serve one year in prison and fined $18,000 by Judge James W. Kehoe in U.S. District Court in Miami, Florida.

Bert R. Slocum, owner of the Quality Bird Co. in Miami, was one of five persons found guilty recently of multiple violations involving the importation and quarantine of birds. His wife, Louise V. Slocum, was fined $1,000 and placed on two years probation. The other three included his son, Ray, and two employees, Franciile Miller and Doris Fuller, who were placed on probation for two years.

Slocum, his son, and the two employees were found guilty of conspiring to enter and maliciously breaking into a U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) quarantine facility; removing birds, mainly parrots, from U.S. Customs custody which had been exposed to exotic Newcastle disease; and mixing them with healthy birds at Slocum's warehouse. Slocum was also found guilty of presenting USDA with a fraudulent claim for $290,383 for diseased birds that had to be destroyed, after having exposed the birds to the disease.

The case was built on the investigative efforts of a Miami-based government task force comprised of special agents of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, the USDA, the U.S. Customs Service, and an attorney from the Justice Department's wildlife section.

Endangered List

U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has accepted a petition from Dr. Warren B. King of the international council for bird preservation to add 77 species of birds to the worldwide U.S. list of endangered and threatened wildlife and plants. The list presently includes 213 foreign and native endangered birds.

Birds now under consideration occur all over the world and include 19 species from the United States and territories. Most are forest-dwellers threatened primarily by habitat loss and introduced predators such as the feral pig and mongoose. Some, like the Amak song sparrow from the Aleutian Islands in Alaska and the serpent eagle from Madagascar, are very rare and according to the petitioner, may be extinct. Others, like the flightless Guam rail, are unique. Among the species nominated by Dr. King are parrots, parakeets, turtle doves, hummingbirds, owls and hawks.

Interior agency is seeking additional data and comments on the petition, which is based on data compiled by Dr. King for the 1978 and 1979 Red Data Book, published by the International Union for the conservation of nature and natural resources, headquartered in Switzerland. Under the Endangered Species Act, anyone may petition to have a species added, deleted, or reclassified. The petition must be supported by substantial information to warrant review by the Fish and Wildlife Service. The service will make an independent evaluation of the status of the 77 bird species after a full review of the comments and additional data received during the public comment which ends September 9, 1981. Notice of review and acceptance of the petition was published in the May 12, 1981, Federal Register.

Forest Service Personnel Is Covering BWCA

U.S. Forest Service is the agency to contact for information on the Boundary Waters Canoe Area (BWCA), not the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

DNR said that from the number of calls received from the public regarding BWCA regulations and other matters relating to the wilderness area, there apparently is confusion over which agency has jurisdiction.

Information on the BWCA can be obtained from the Federal Information Center in Minneapolis (phone 612-349-5333; or the U.S. Forest Service in Duluth (phone 218-727-6692).

Here's how Chiropractic treats Back Problems

Persistent or recurring aches in the lower back and limbs may suggest a possible lower spinal or pelvic problem. This often requires a structural correction of the cause in order to relieve the condition. Although drugs may hide the pain temporarily, the spine and sacroiliac must be aligned to their proper position for normal function.

The doctor of chiropractic has made a special study of conditions related to the sacroiliac, spine and nervous system. He seeks to not only locate the problem and give relief from symptoms, but also to correct the fundamental cause as well as offer preventive, rehabilitation, and maintenance counsel.

Minn. Wheat Growers Upset By User Fees

Minnesota Wheat Growers have come out in opposition to the implementation of user fees on the Nation's waterways. User fees are being proposed to recover or repay operating, maintenance and construction costs on inland, coastal and Great Lakes navigation systems.

Richard Kruse, Sr., a farmer and Wheat Grower member from Breckenridge, testified at a field hearing in St. Paul recently before the Senate Subcommittee on Water Resources. Kruse is also a member of the Minnesota Wheat Research and Promotion Council and is a member of the National Association of Wheat Growers' Transportation Committee.

"A major portion of the nation's wheat production is grown in areas which are a long distance from points of ultimate consumption and Minnesota and the Dakotas are perhaps even worse off than most," Kruse told the subcommittee. "Our producers must bear the cost of huge freight bills, sometimes over 30 per cent of the value of the crop, in order to move the commodity to its point of utilization or export," he said.

Kruse indicated that David Stockman, the director of the office of management and budget, was recently quoted as saying that the implementation of user fees will result in a three to nine cent a bushel increase in grain prices. Kruse said this demonstrates Stockman's lack of understanding of American agriculture. "The farmer is a price-taker," Kruse stated. "His prices are determined by the market place and he pays the freight to move his grain to the market. Therefore, in a surplus supply situation as we are now facing, the user fees will not increase prices by three to nine cents, but rather will increase transportation costs by three to nine cents, resulting in lower prices received by the producer for his product," he said.

Kruse also told the subcommittee that competition is a key to holding transportation costs down. Therefore, any increases in the cost of waterway transportation will be mirrored by increases in the cost of other transportation modes as well.

According to Kruse, user fees to recover the full cost of construction, operation and maintenance of the U.S. waterway system could also result in making the U.S. producer less competitive in the world marketplace, to the benefit of other exporting countries. He also quoted a recent study by the Agricultural Council of America indicating that for every $1 in agricultural products exported, a total of $2.05 in benefits accrue to the U.S. economy. He emphasized that as public waterways benefit the entire public, the costs should be borne by the public.

Kruse concluded his statement by saying that the implementation or increase in waterway user fees carry with them far greater ramifications than many supporters may believe. He urged the subcommittee give full and objective consideration to the impact of user charges on not only agriculture, but the entire economy, and to reject any attempts to implement cost recovery user fees on the Nation's waterways.

Thief River Falls, Minnesota
July 6, 1981

Chairman Ken Wiebolt called the meeting to order at 7:30 p.m.

Discussion was held on visitors and delegations requesting time for presentations to the Board. The Superintendent asked the Board to notify him before the meeting if any of them knew of anyone wishing to make a presentation inorder that they be included on the agenda. Any unannounced presentations will be left to the end of the meeting so as not to interrupt procedure.

Frank Hamerlinck, Lincoln High School Principal, asked the Board for a recommendation regarding athletic team members staying in homes rather than hotels during out-of-town overnight trips. The Board recommended they stay in hotels with the Principal using his discretion concerning the total amount spent on these trips. The problem of supervision was the main concern in making this recommendation.

The alumni award is presented for outstanding achievement.

Ralph Engelstad Receives Sioux Alumni Award

Ralph Engelstad, former Thief River Falls native and a contractor who acquired a parcel of Las Vegas strip real estate in 1971 and eight years later opened the 1,500-room Imperial Palace hotel and casino on the site, will be the recipient of the highest and most prestigious award presented by the University of North Dakota alumni association, the "Sioux" award.

The new facility is scheduled to open in early 1982 with the first showing of more than 300 rare motorized vehicles.

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT NATURAL GAS

IT'S A FACT: Inter-City Gas Corporation and Minnesota's primary natural gas supplier (Northern Natural Gas Co.) are on record as being opposed to any accelerated deregulation or decontrol of natural gas. . . . Since it would require an act of Congress to enact accelerated natural gas decontrol, immediate decontrol or deregulation does not appear likely.

GEE, I DIDN'T KNOW THAT!

Natural gas prices have traditionally been less expensive than other fuels and energies because natural gas requires no huge capital investment in generating facilities, refinery equipment, long distance rail or tank truck hauling; nor does natural gas necessitate numerous, costly local storage systems . . . Natural gas flows uninterrupted via pipeline from gas well to burner tip at efficiently low maintenance costs.

Senator Says State Needs Access To Oil

Senator Dave Durenberger told a Senate committee recently that the United States could manage a sudden shortfall of crude oil if the country makes preparations to manage a shortage.

Durenberger's statement came at a two-day hearing of the Senate energy and natural resources committee. The hearings were looking at different proposals to deal with a cut-off of imported oil.

Present legislation which authorizes the federal government to allocate oil supplies in an emergency is due to expire at the end of September. The administration is urging Congress not to re-authorize the legislation, the emergency petroleum allocation act, saying that the marketplace will work without government involvement.

Durenberger pointed out that Minnesota is dependent on independent refineries and farm co-ops for 80 per cent of its oil supply. Those suppliers don't have access to world markets of crude oil. Without some guarantees that those suppliers can get crude oil, Minnesotans and other Upper Midwest states would be the first to suffer in a crisis.

Durenberger agreed that the old legislation was inadequate, but said new measures to deal with a shortage were necessary. He urged the committee to support the bill he and Senator Mark Andrews of North Dakota recently introduced.

The Durenberger bill would guarantee access to supplies for independent refineries and co-ops; would allow states to allocate their supplies to meet spot shortages; would guarantee that certain industries — especially farming and other critical industries — supplies during a shortage; and establishes a nationwide supply of oil in private refineries and the strategic petroleum reserve.

Waterway Fees Would Affect Grain Prices

Senator Rudy Boschwitz says the Reagan administration should consider its tack in developing waterway user fee proposals. The new proposals, according to Boschwitz, will cost some midwestern grain farmers up to 10 cents per bushel to ship to New Orleans.

"Either the farmer is going to accept this increase — which would result in less farm income — or it will be passed on to the purchaser," Boschwitz said. "This additional cost will affect our competitive edge in the world."

In a statement submitted to the Senate subcommittee on water resources, meeting in St. Paul, Boschwitz indicated strong reservations concerning the administration plan to allow the corps of engineers to recover 100 per cent of operation and maintenance costs through the imposition of license fees, lockage fees and congestion fees.

"This proposal is too general and leaves too much discretion with the corps of engineers," he said. "There are a lot of important unanswered questions: How much will these user fees be? How will they be allocated? How will they impact food prices? How will they impact competition among modes of transportation?"

4-H Livestock Auction At State Fair

Minnesota Livestock Breeders Association will conduct a public auction of 4-H market livestock at the 1981 Minnesota State Fair, August 27 through Labor Day, September 7 beginning at 12:30 p.m. Labor Day in the Swine Barn's east show ring.

About 40 lambs, 50 steers and 70 hogs will be auctioned. All are purple ribbon winners and represent the best in the 4-H livestock show. Buyers must pay on site or make arrangements for later payment.

At the 1980 State Fair 4-H market livestock auction, the grand champion hog was purchased by Iowa Pork Industries of South St. Paul. Union stockyards of South St. Paul bought the grand champion lamb and the top steer in the 4-H market livestock show was purchased by O & S Cattle Company, also of South St. Paul.

This will be the second consecutive year that the 4-H market livestock auction is conducted at the State Fair. In previous years, the auction was conducted during the latter part of September at the fairgrounds.

Loan Servicing Top Emphasis For FmHA

Russ Bjorhus, newly appointed state director for Farmers Home administration (FmHA), stated today that the major emphasis of FmHA during the present administration will be on loan servicing.

FmHA is one of the largest credit sources for farmers in the state, but because some of its farm and home borrowers are high risk, extra loan supervision is required.

"Strong emphasis will also be directed at reducing loan delinquency, because in the past FmHA has been too liberal in lending money and too many loans are in default," Bjorhus said. "With the possibility of decreased allocations through 1982 there will be increased emphasis on directing available funds to where they will do the most good.

"Some people will not be able to get a FmHA loan to buy a farm or to buy a house, because either they will not have the security needed or the repayment ability to handle the loan," he added. "This is a tough decision for our county supervisors to make, but FmHA has a responsibility to the taxpayer and also to the borrower. It doesn't help a person to make him or her a loan that can't be repaid."

Bjorhus said that in spite of the current tight FmHA money supply he was optimistic about adequate rural credit in the future, but he said "sound loans are the key to successful FmHA credit programs and we must operate on that basis. This is a great organization and I am looking forward to working with it and the rural people of this state."

"Everybody is Somebody in Thief River Falls"

THIEF RIVER FALLS TIMES 20¢

Volume 70 (USPS 627-360) Thief River Falls, Pennington County, Minnesota Wednesday, August 19, 1981 Number 64

STILL ADJUSTING to her three new brothers, Joshua, Jeremy and Jason, born June 15 to Mr. and Mrs. David Haglund of Thief River Falls, is Erica, the Haglund's two and one-half year old daughter. Lori Haglund, the former Lori Molstad, and her three sons were all back home within two weeks from United hospital in Grand Forks where the babies were born.

PROUD PARENTS, Mr. and Mrs. David Haglund of Thief River Falls, are adjusting well to their triplets — Jeremy, Jason and Joshua — who were born June 15 at United hospital in Grand Forks. The stack of diapers resting beside them is approximately the quantity the babies require in one day. Although Jason and Joshua are identical, Lori has no trouble telling any of the three apart, she said. Their personalities are all different.

Haglunds Adjust To Lead Role In 'Our Three Sons'

by Bonnie Wentzel
Times Reporter

Most of us are somewhat familiar with the television show, "My Three Sons." If Lori and David Haglund could begin their own television show, they could legitimately call it "Our Three Sons."

"It's a boy" was announced three times June 15 at United hospital in Grand Forks — two days after Lori, the former Lori Jo Molstad, discovered that she was going to be the mother of triplets.

She had not gained any more weight than usual — 55 pounds, which was 10 pounds less than she had gained with Erica, the Haglund's two and one-half year old daughter. And there is no history of triplets in either Lori's or Dave's families.

The first of the three boys, Joshua, who weighed four pounds and two ounces, was born at 4:35 p.m.; the second, Jason, weighing four pounds and one ounce, at 4:40 p.m.; and the third, Jeremy, weighing four pounds and 13 ounces, was born at 4:55 p.m.

Lori was referred to the Grand Forks hospital because the babies appeared to be small and United has an intensive care nursery facility. The babies, she said, arrived six weeks early, but she and her sons were all home two weeks after delivery, with no complications since that time.

"I didn't know whether to laugh or cry," Lori said, as she recalled the day she learned she would be having three babies rather than one. "Dave and I had joked about having twins," she said, remembering her husband's first words when he was told — "But we only have one crib!"

A baby book helped the couple name their three sons. The fact that all of the names begin with the letter "J" ties in with the fact that the middle names of both David and Lori also begin with that letter.

"It sounded better to have them all begin the same," their mother smiled.

Lori hasn't had to "mark" her sons to identify them, like was done in one episode of "My Three Sons" when small dots were placed on the babies' feet, she joked, even though Jason and Joshua are considered identical.

"Their personalities are all different," she said.

Jeremy, the largest of the three, "eats constantly," Lori said. He's bigger, has longer red hair, and cries louder. "He always lets you know when he's hungry," she said. He also smiles, tries to talk and is more alert than the other two.

Although Jason and Joshua are identical, their cries are different, and Lori is able to tell the babies apart by the shapes of their heads.

Dave's concern over the cribs before the babies were born has been resolved — the Haglunds now have three; just as they have three car seats to fit into the station wagon they decided to buy earlier than they had formerly planned. Three birth records and three tiny sets of footprints hang above the cribs in the babies' bedroom.

Actually, when the Haglunds do any traveling, they have room for no one but their own family, Lori explained. Erica has her own car seat in the front seat with Mom and Dad, while the back of the vehicle is reserved for "Fella," the family's English Springer Spaniel.

"It takes a while but you get used to it," Lori said, referring to the time that must be allowed to dress, feed and care for three babies instead of one. A family trip lies in the near future, when the Haglund's will travel to the Grand Forks clinic to have their three sons' eyes examined.

"We adjusted and now it just seems normal to do things with three rather than with one," she said.

Through the generosity of various organizations, family members and other local residents, the family has been able to obtain clothing, diapers, sleepers and blankets for their sons. A shower hosted by Lori's sister, Shelly and a friend, Deb Quamme, was a tremendous help. "It seemed like we opened gifts for hours!" Lori said.

The large demand for diapers was eased when the Haglunds counted the 10 dozen they had received from friends. Going through 30 diapers and 30 bottles per day is not unusual. "You have to keep up with it, though," Lori said. "I must have folded at least 46 diapers yesterday!"

Lori's sister, Shelly, stays with the Haglunds to help out during the night — the busiest time. When the babies first arrived in their new home, Lori's mother, Mrs. Clayton Molstad, helped out. Other than that, both Lori and Dave

Former Airport Manager Hurt In Plane Crash

Harvey Deterling, former manager of the Thief River Falls airport, is recovering in a Mankato hospital from injuries received when the spray plane he was piloting crashed near Fairmont Monday.

Now owner of Fairmont Flying service at the Fairmont airport, Deterling sustained a severely lacerated and fractured lower leg and burns on his arms and face when his plane hit a power line and crashed in a corn field. He was treated initially in Fairmont and transferred to Mankato the same day, with surgery performed on the injured leg Monday evening.

Deterling was reportedly able to free himself from the plane's safety harness and crawl away through the mud. The plane reportedly sustained fire damage

Negotiations On Local Teacher Contract Friday

Negotiations between the School District 564 board of education and the district's faculty will continue Friday at 11:30 a.m. in the Lincoln high school library. At the end of the last meeting, the two groups were approximately 11 per cent apart in reaching a settlement on a two-year contract.

At a negotiating session held August 11, the board made a total offer including all areas of base salary and fringe benefits which would have amounted to an increase of $397,379 or $1,827 per teacher for 1981-82 and $364,133 or an average of $1,674 per teacher for 1982-83.

According to Supt. Robert Block, the increases offered would amount to 9.87 per cent the first year and 8.23 per cent the second year. Also included in the proposal was the dropping of some of the language which the board had previously preferred included in the master contract.

Negotiating team of the Thief River Falls Education association, representing the district's teachers, took the offer under advisement. At the next meeting for negotiations, held August 14, the TRFEA offered a counter proposal which, Supt. Block said, would provide a total increase of 30.7 per cent over the two-year contract.

At the same meeting, the board countered with addition of $65,220 to its package of base salary and fringes, contingent upon the TRFEA dropping several requests in contract language. Among these were provision for a minimum of 175 days of pay in the teaching contract and a request for district-paid dental insurance.

The board also presented its preference for clarification of contract language on grievance policy and unrequested leave. These suggestions and further attention to the financial package will be addressed at the meeting to be held late Friday morning.

Workshop Opens 1981-82 School Year Here Monday

With Thief River Falls public schools scheduled to open for classes on Wednesday, August 26, teachers and others involved in special programs will be involved in pre-school workshop sessions Monday and Tuesday.

After reporting to their assigned buildings at 8 a.m. Monday, faculty members will gather at Lincoln high school cafeteria for the only full group session of the workshop. Welcomes will be given by school board chairman Ken Wiebolt, Thief River Falls Education association president Mike Lehrer and Mayor Bob Carlson to open the session.

Review of school health programs will be presented by Marcia Stanislawski, school nurse, at 9:30 a.m., followed by introduction of the staff. At 10 a.m. Dr. Leo Ruberto, director of special education, will discuss that phase of education in the local school system.

Supt. Robert Block, who joined the local school system this summer, will give an overview of the district and its educational programs and goals at 10:15 a.m. Teachers will then return to their assigned stations for individual preparations for opening day.

On Tuesday the workshop will again get underway at 8 a.m. in all schools. A number of meetings with building principals and other special activity departments are scheduled throughout the day.

Classes for all students will begin Wednesday at 8:25 a.m. at all schools except Lincoln where classes start at 8:33 a.m. Students new to the district who have not registered for classes should contact the guidance offices at Lincoln high school (grades 9-12) or Franklin middle school (grades 6-8), or the principals' offices at the elementary schools.

Approximately 15 positions on the faculty and administration were not officially filled as of this morning, according to Mrs. Avis Hoium, personnel director for the district. The staff is expected to be virtually complete by Monday, however, particularly in classroom areas. Interviewing is being conducted this week. Hiring is not official, however, until school board approval is given to the contracts.

Two employees are returning from Sabbatical leave this year. Terry Soine returns to his post of assistant principal at Lincoln and Lucille Nyland returns as an instructor in special education, being assigned this year to Knox elementary school. A new staff person, school psychologist John Nagle, will have his office at the school district service center.

At Franklin middle school Sandra Harris has been hired to teach science in grades six, seven and eight and Don Stanislawski has been hired as a long-term substitute in the English department.

At Mark Twain elementary school Donna Wucherpfennig will be involved in pre-school special education and Suzanne Steidl in work with the multiple handicapped.

In the area vocational-technical institute, Alan Swanson will instruct data processing occupations and Nancy Shanahan has been added as a senior cosmetology instructor.

New faculty members at Lincoln high school will be David L. Peterson in mathematics and William Poole in English.

Knox elementary school will have Janna Dostal working with speech therapy in the special education department.

Newfolden And Viking Schools Open August 26

Marshall County Central schools will start the 1981-82 school term at Viking and Newfolden with a full day of school on August 26.

Students in the elementary schools will start the new term with new reading and spelling materials and a few new teachers, according to Supt. Gene R. Busch.

Marilyn Jensen has replaced retired Goldie Johnson as first grade teacher in Newfolden elementary, and Doug Haven will be the fifth grade teacher, replacing Barbara Johnson who has resigned. In the Viking elementary three teachers will be new to the system. Lova Hodny will be the first grade teacher replacing retired Clarice Bren. Terryl Heck replaces Beth Ryden who has left to teach in Kennedy. Replacement for Lyle Haraldson as sixth grade teacher is Matthew Havumaki. Haraldson will teach in Middle River.

New high school staff member will be Linda Larison as home economics instructor, replacing Ruth Milsten who retired.

"Due to a reduction in state funding, the local school board has initiated an increase in student fees and charges," Supt. Busch said.

The high school towel fee, which is voluntary, has been increased to $5 per athletic season and $5 for physical education classes. A charge of $50 for drivers education has been initiated.

Admission for athletic contests has been increased to $1 for students and $2 for adults. Season tickets for all athletic contests will be on sale in the high school office at $15 for adults, $25 per couple and $5 for students, the same as last year. Senior citizens may pick up free season passes during school hours in the high school office.

"The school district will not be carrying physical education, playground or athletic insurance this year. Parents are strongly encouraged to purchase some type of insurance for injury at school and for athletics," Supt. Busch added.

"Due to the reduction of federal support for the school lunch program, the cost will be increased to 80 cents for students and $1.50 for adults. A 15-cent charge will be made for the voluntary milk program in the elementary school. High school students will pay 15 cents for additional milk with their meals. Application forms for free and reduced meals will be mailed next week," Supt. Busch said.

A reduction in the number of bus routes will mean a change in pick-up times for some students this year. It was necessary to reduce the transportation system with fewer students attending the schools than last year. Time of pick-up and bus number will be sent to each family this week. Any new families in the school district should contact the school for transportation information.

MRS. SHARON KNUTSON, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Swanson of Goodridge and former Pennington county 4-H member, was promoted to the rank of professor at the University of Minnesota by the board of regents effective July 1. Sharon, who lives in Ada, has been a member of the Norman county extension staff for 17 years. She has served as county extension director for the past five years and was the first woman appointed to the county director position in Minnesota. Grain Harvest Catches Up To 5-Year Average

Small grain harvest during the past week has caught up with the five-year average, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. Combining of some small grains is ahead of average. With virtually no rainfall last week in the important northwest, west central and central districts, harvest conditions were ideal.

Soil moisture situation is rated three per cent very short, 12 per cent short, 61 per cent adequate, and 24 per cent surplus.

Spring wheat is 87 per cent swathed, 12 per cent ahead of the five-year average, but three per cent behind last year. Combining is complete on 50 per cent of the crop, one per cent behind the five-year average and five per cent behind last year. The oats harvest stands at 99 per cent cut and 78 per cent combined, compared to the five-year average of 89 per cent and 72 per cent and 1980's 95 per cent and 79 per cent.

Swathing of barley has reached 98 per cent, ahead of both last year and the five-year average. Combining has been completed on 84 per cent of the crop, 11 per cent ahead of the five-year average, but one per cent behind 1980.

Good growing weather throughout most of the week pushed development of corn and soybeans along fairly well. Corn is 82 per cent in milk which equals the five-year average and is behind 1980's 93 per cent. An estimated 26 per cent of the crop is in dough compared to five per cent last week and 41 per cent for a five-year average; five per cent is in the dent stage compared to seven per cent last year and 13 per

GTA To Delay Decision On Feed Plant

Plans by the Farmers Union Grain Terminal association to construct a feed plant in northwestern Minnesota have been tabled until early winter, a spokesman for the company responded in answer to a call from the Times on Tuesday.

The spokesman said that plans are still underway for construction of a major feed facility in the area, but the decision was made about 10 days ago to table a definite decision until a later date.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Lonae L. Brown And Duane A. Dicken Wed

Miss Lonae Leah Brown and Duane Arthur Dicken, both of this city, exchanged marriage vows recently at an ecumenical ceremony at Trinity Lutheran church. Officiating at the four o'clock ceremony were Rev. Berton Hushagen of Trinity, and Rev. James Bernauer of St. Bernard's Catholic church.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Leo Brown of Bentley, N.D., and Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Dicken of this city.

Ida Nordvall was the organist. She played "Evergreen," as the prelude, and accompanied Paul Mortenson as he sang, "Ave Maria," before the wedding party assembled at the altar. Mr. and Mrs. Don Adamson, friends of the couple, sang "Annie's Song," as the processional; "Wedding Song," "The Rose," and "For Baby, For Bobby." Providing flute accompaniment for "Evergreen," and "Annie's Song," was Clark Dyrud of Moorhead, a friend of the couple. For "The Rose," Dyrud played the violin.

Seven branch candelabra and vases of white gladioli, blue carnations and babies' breath graced either side of the altar. Serving as acolyte was Gary Braun, Dickinson, N.D., a cousin of the bride.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, was attired in a Victorian gown of white organza and Chantilly lace. The fitted bodice featured a sheer yoke trimmed with irridescents and edged with a lace ruffle. Venice lace complemented the mandarin collar; and matching lace appliques enhanced the bishop sleeves, the wide cuffs, and the multi-ruffled bouffant skirt that flowed into a chapel-length train. Her walking-length veil fell from a derby hat, trimmed by the bride with rose-patterned lace. She carried a white lace fan, trimmed with light blue ribbon, light blue roses, peach star flowers, babies' breath and peach ribbon. Cascading from the fan were light blue rosebuds tied with ribbon.

Beth Nordick of Crookston, a friend of the bride, was maid of honor. Other attendants were Renae Kimball and Maureen Stockert, Bismarck, N.D., sisters of the bride, and Deoorah Ernst, a friend of the bride. Their identical light blue gowns, belted at the natural waistline, were topped by jackets of matching sheer with lace trimming the high necklines and short sleeves. In their hair they wore combs with peach baby roses and babies' breath. They carried cream colored lace fans trimmed with brown, peach and light blue floral ribbon, light and dark peach roses, blue star flowers and babies' breath. Cascading from the fan were cream satin bows.

Flower girl was Tanya Kimball of Bismarck, N.D., a niece of the bride. She wore a light blue short-sleeved satin dress trimmed with lace and topped by a matching jacket. She carried a natural wicker basket filled with roses and star flowers in peach and blue, babies' breath and cream satin bows.

Bruce Engel of Virginia, a friend of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen were the groom's brothers: Dr. Robert Dicken, Richard Dicken and Donald Dicken of this city. Serving as ushers were Stewart Bjorgan of St. Paul and Stuart Anderson of Detroit, Mich., friends of the groom. The groom wore all white attire, featuring a white long-tailed tuxedo and white ruffled shirt. His attendants wore medium brown tuxedos with dark brown trim, light blue pleated shirts and medium brown bow ties. Their boutonnieres were peach rose buds accented with a blue star flower, a sprig of babies' breath and a peach bow. The groom's boutonniere was a blue rosebud with a peach star flower and babies' breath.

The mother of the bride was attired in a long-sleeved, floor-length gown, belted at the natural waistline. The mother of the groom wore a light blue, long-sleeved gown with an accordion pleated floor-length skirt. Their identical corsages, backed by small cream-colored fans, were of floral ribbon, three blue roses, peach starflowers, babies' breath and peach satin bows. Their flowers like all the flowers at the wedding, were made by the bride.

Honor guests were Mrs. George Netteland, grandmother of the groom; Mrs. Angeline Buarkle, New York Mills, godmother of the groom; Edward Buarkle, godfather of the groom, and Mr. and Mrs. Fran Forster, Richardton, N.D., godparents of the bride; Kay Jesch, Thief River Falls, and Gloria Mellmer, Dickinson, N.D., the bride's personal attendants.

A reception in the church parlors followed. Centering the serving table was a four-tiered wedding cake, baked and decorated by Eunice Severts, a friend of the couple. The cake was iced in white and decorated with blue trim and peach roses. On the square base that supported the cake was a flowing water fountain. Topping the cake were a miniature bride and groom under an arch of peach roses and blue starflowers. At its base were three small blue fans, matching the fans that decorated the second tier. The cake was cut and served by Lavina Forster, godmother of the bride; and Edna Peterson, Minneapolis, aunt of the groom.

Roxann Abraham registered the guests as Connie Dicken, a sister-in-law of the groom, and Faye Janssen served the punch. Members of the Martha circle of Trinity Lutheran church, were in charge of serving.

The wedding supper, hosted by the parents of the bride and groom, was held at the American Legion club.

Following a wedding trip to Glacier National park in Montana, the couple is now at home in Thief River Falls at 704 North Main. The bride is a graduate of St. Mary's high school at New England, N.D., and the North Dakota School of Science at Wahpeton, N.D. The groom is a graduate of Lincoln high school and Concordia college, Moorhead. Both are employed in this city at Northwestern hospital. Photo,. Hofstad Studio, Plummer.

The event was celebrated with an ice cream social featuring several flavors, such as banana, fresh strawberry, vanilla and fresh peach. Honor guest throughout the day was resident Ray Welch, who was born July 4, 1923.

During the month several groups visited the residents, presented programs and served lunch. Among them were the Elizabeth circle of Zion Lutheran church of Oklee, the Thief River Falls Women's Christian Temperance union, and the Lois circle of Trinity Lutheran church.

Several residents attended group outings such as the Norwegian Folk program, Art-in-the-Park with the Newfolden Women's Volunteer group assisting the residents, and the Pennington county fair with the residents assisted by the Boy Scouts, headed by Scoutmaster Jim Hoks.

The Home's annual picnic and hobo day was also noted in July. The day began with the decorating of wheelchairs, walkers and canes with streamers, facial tissue flowers, and helium filled balloons donated by McDonald's. The picnic dinner was served by the staff, dressed in hobo attire. Special entertainment was provided by Melvin Swenson of St. Hilaire, who played the guitar and sang several selections with a hobo theme.

Members of the cosmetology class visited the home for the last time, until fall, giving permanents and styling hair.

Residents observing birthdays in July and the date of their birth were Mabel Moss, July 1, 1907; Ray Welch, July 4, 1923; Mabel Swanson, July 11, 1902; Louise Aamodt, July 15, 1897; Mathilda Hoffman, July 16, 1886 and Florence Oberg, July 16, 1910.

CORRECTION

Correction has been received regarding a recent news account of the American Lutheran Church Women (ALCW) convention attended by Geneva Overum, Myrtle Solberg, Bernice Trochmann and Ida Rupprecht. The convention was held in San Antonio, Tex., and not Minneapolis. Since the first report, mailed from Minneapolis, stated the convention was held "here", it was assumed the meeting had been held in that city.

Bemidji State To Close Bald Eagle Center

The Bald Eagle Center, Bemidji State University's center for Environmental Education, is to be closed in September according to BSU President, Dr. Rebecca Stafford, as a result of recent reevaluation of its use.

This re-revaluation, started in 1980, pointed out that expected costs for operation and repair of the Center are climbing at a time when budgets are being curtailed or experiencing demands for many other competing uses. Recent tornado damage would require extensive repairs and subsequently, large costs. In most cases, rehabilitation costs exceed the replacement value of the buildings.

Originally designed for temporary use, they have already been in use five years past their expected useful life span of ten years. Forest Service officials pointed out that the recent wind and storm damage resulted in only a small part of the deficiencies noted. Most deficiencies are associated with the temporary nature of the buildings.

Deer Park Club Begins Project For Youngsters

Goodridge youths were given the opportunity to demonstrate their flower planting and flower care skills this summer through a community service project sponsored by the Deer Park garden club.

Taking part in the project were Danny and Eddy Cullen, Sherman and ElRay Jones, Rodney and Darwin Boutain, Bruce Jones and Duane Olson.

Boys were judged Tuesday on their projects arranged along Main street in Goodridge, by Mrs. Richard (LaVonne) Radniecki and Mrs. Fred (Evelyn) Lundeen. Such factors as originality, overall appearance, use of color and cleanliness of the plots were considered when judged.

Boys involved in the project were supervised by club members including Dorothy Svanjord, Lauretta Stucy, Ethel Wiseth, president, Mary Kusmak, Lois Swanson and Norma Hanson.

Project was developed, according to Mrs. Wiseth, to acquaint youngsters with the planting and care of flowers to enable them to appreciate the plants and their individual work with them. As a result, it is hoped vandalism to plants will be eliminated, she said.

Prizes will be awarded to all winners during a September Lions club meeting, during which time slides will be shown of all winners and their flower beds.

Donating prizes for the project will be the Lions club, village council, Jaycees, Goodridge creamery, Consumer's Co-op station and Haugen's Standard, with individual donations from Orvin Sunsdahl, Lloyd Wiseth, Orlando Chervestad, Brad Nelson, Kory Chervestad, Vance Wiseth, Kurt Wiseth and Dick Radniecki.

First, second and third place winners will receive ribbons as well as prize money, with the first place award donated by the Lions club, second by the Jaycees and third by local farmers. Grand champion ribbon and prize money will be awarded by the mayor of Goodridge.

All boys and their supervisors will also receive a free meal at the Trapper 'n Trader, from donations given.

Class Of 1931 Holds Reunion After 50 Years

Sixty-two persons, including 34 classmates, attended the Lincoln high school class of 1931 golden anniversary reunion recently at the Best Western inn of Thief River Falls. The event started with a 20-mile bus trip from 1 to 4 p.m., permitting the classmates to check old scenes, view new developments and tour the school.

Upon returning to the Best Western, the group was led in singing the school song and rhythm and blues songs from the 1930's by Frank Kiewel of Little Falls. Hors d'oeuvres and free refreshments were provided from 4 to 7 p.m. as the group socialized prior to the evening banquet.

Class president James Newland of Grand Forks presented greetings at the banquet and introduced three former teachers in attendance. They were Blanche (Greenland) Larson and Ruth (Fletcher) Legvold of Thief River Falls and Dr. Andrew Grinley of Grand Rapids. The invocation was given by Stella (VeVea) Sande from Grand Forks and names of deceased classmates were read by Frank Kiewel.

Dr. Melvin Wedul of Winona was master of ceremonies and Supt. Art Hafdal of Alexandria distributed 15 prizes made or donated by classmates. Among the prizes were books by an author classmate, plaques, advent rolling pin, Thief River Falls historical book, wild rice, dolls and other items. Singing was led by a group of classmates with Ruth (Bessler) Jensen at the piano.

A tape sent by former Supt. Morris Bye from Arizona was played to the group. Registration room had a large bulletin board with pictures, letters and clippings relating to the class. Recordings of music from the 1930's and 1940's were played.

On Sunday a group of about 30 attended a picnic at Oakland park, the final event of the reunion. Members of the reunion committee were Clarence Offerdahl, Fosston; James Newland, Grand Forks; Walter Steinhauer, Holt; Gloria Bugge, Harriet Liggett, Eleanor Christofferson, Gladys Stenberg, Harold Jorstad, Howard and Avis Holum, Thief River Falls.

handle the three babies themselves, which is a full-time job. Dave is presently employed as a mechanic for ITS Auto Center in Thief River Falls.

He doesn't mind getting up at night to feed or change his sons, he said. And caring for them has improved since the first time he was "left alone" with all three of them while Lori was at her shower. "I just wasn't ready for that yet," he smiled. "I had to call Lori and ask her for advice."

Lori relaxed calmly in the family's new home at 1014 Sommerset Drive in Thief River Falls during the interview, while Joshua rocked in his swing, Jeremy and Jason lay fast asleep in their cribs, and Erica sat contentedly on the floor paging through a magazine.

The scene is quite near to normal, according to Lori, who explained that two of the babies usually eat, sleep or get up at the same time, although all three take their turns awakening at least once during the night.

The babies are rapidly gaining weight, according to Lori, and have grown from their length at birth which was 19 inches for Jeremy, 18 inches for Joshua and 21 inches for Jason.

"We feel lucky," the Haglunds agreed. "They're healthy babies. We really have no complaints."

"The only one bad thing about it is that I'm getting behind on my housework," Lori smiled.

Ag Committee Will Discuss Use Of Ag Land

Chairman Steve Wenzel of the Minnesota House agriculture committee said he has scheduled committee hearings beginning in September on legislation which will seek to preserve Minnesota's agricultural land and prevent further conversion of farmland to non-farm purposes.

The House agriculture committee chairman also announced the formation of a bipartisan citizens task force on agricultural land preservation, in cooperation with the Minnesota Project, a non-profit research organization. This task force will work with and assist the committee in obtaining a consensus for enacting a strong and effective farmland preservation law in the 1982 session of the legislature.

Rep. Wenzel said the House agriculture committee will work closely with and hear the recommendations made by the joint legislative committee on agricultural land preservation and conservation, chaired by Sen. Myrton Wegener. Sen. Wegener and Rep. Henry Kalis, vice chairman of the joint legislative committee, will be carrying this legislation in the 1982 legislative session.

"The problem both statewide and nationally is serious. We face a potential food supply disaster within the next 20 years unless farmland conversion is stopped," Rep. Wenzel said.

Wenzel charged that pressure exerted nationally by industrial and real estate development, highways, power plants, dams, airports and shopping centers has destroyed 30 million acres of productive cropland in the last 10 years alone. The current rate of farmland destruction is 12 square miles per day or over one million acres annually in the United States.

The Little Falls legislator stated that approximately two million acres of Minnesota farmland have been destroyed since 1967 and currently 100,000 acres of farmland a year are lost to non-farm use in Minnesota. Because of the greater losses that have occurred and are occurring in other states, future pressure will be great for Minnesota to preserve its farmland for crop production. Wenzel said one-third of Minnesota's farm income comes from crop exports and "adequate crop production depends upon a consistent, dependable supply of agricultural land.

"The leading cause of farmland loss is unplanned suburban development caused by real estate companies and developers who encourage leapfrog or scattered development. This not only takes farmland out of production, but also hastens the conversion of surrounding agricultural land," Rep. Wenzel said.

Wenzel also said many federal government programs have encouraged farmland destruction by loan and subsidy policies for residential, commercial, and industrial development.

They included the farms of Leonard and Veronica Boucher, Brooks, founded 1879; James R. Cyr, Red Lake Falls, founded 1876; and Donald Schirrick, Red Lake Falls, founded 1881.

A certificate and plaque will be awarded to those applicants whose farms are at least 50 acres in size and have been in continuous family ownership for at least 100 years.

PIC Plans To Continue Aid To Unemployed

Minnesota Balance of State Private Industry council (PIC), Inc., is two years old this month and plans on continuing its efforts to help unemployed people enter job training and employment.

The council consists of business and community leaders in 51 rural Minnesota counties who develop and finance programs of cash reimbursements and tax credits to employers for hiring and training workers. The council is financed by the federal Comprehensive Employment and Training act (CETA).

For the period ending September 30, the PIC allocated $1.06 million of its $1.44 million annual budget. Of this, $255,201 was spent on activities which would generate new jobs or give technical information to expanding businesses. Projects which reimbursed employers for on-the-job training costs totaled $806,908.

Pete Connor, personnel manager, Owatonna Tool Co., chairs the council. Betty Walton of Thief River Falls is a council member.

Employers interested in learning more about council programs should contact Ray Beauchamp at the Thief River Falls CETA Center, 318 Knight av. N., or call 681-7350.

RLF Publisher Uses CETA To Hire Workers

Red Lake Falls "Gazette" publisher and vice president Keith Axvig is a self-made newspaper man and prefers to hire people without journalism experience as reporters.

"If I can hire people without a journalism degree or experience and train them in my own way, I find they develop into better newspaper people," Axvig said.

Axvig himself began his journalism career without formal training, and now uses the CETA program to hire and train new employees. Mark Parenteau is an example.

Axvig hired and trained Paranteau as a reporter for the "Gazette" under an on-the-job training contract through the Crookston CETA center. CETA paid half of Parenteau's wages during training and Axvig paid the other half, the usual procedure in CETA contracts with all employers.

Thirteen months after hiring him, Axvig named Parenteau editor and assistant manager of the "Gazette".

"I needed a job. Keith was willing to give me a try and I'm happy he did," Parenteau said.

After deciding to move Parenteau to editor, Axvig once more turned to CETA for help. He applied for and received funds from the Minnesota Balance of State Private Industry council (PIC), which is financed by CETA. The PIC provides funds to local employers for upgrading or retraining their employees. The PIC then financed further training for Parenteau.

"I hired Mark as editor because he is young and he is sharp. He also lived nearby and knows the area," Axvig said.

As editor, Parenteau said he is getting to know new areas of journalism as well. In addition to doing page layout, photography and selling advertising, Parenteau is responsible for assigning and editing reporters' stories and writing some of the stories himself. The "Gazette", a weekly newspaper with a circulation in Red Lake county of about 2,000, is staffed by eight persons.

Since hiring Parenteau, Axvig, who owns several newspapers in northern Minnesota, has hired two more CETA employees — a reporter and a secretary-bookkeeper — through on-the-job training contracts.

Parenteau himself was involved in hiring a new reporter to fill his former position. Not surprisingly, he and Axvig agreed to hire a former city clerk who has no journalism experience.

CETA information is available by calling 681-7350 in Thief River Falls.

Thirteen Area Students Make UND Dean's List

Supplemental Food Program Grants Sought

Minnesota department of health is now seeking grant applications from local health agencies wishing to participate in the supplemental food program for women, infants and children (WIC), according to state health commissioner George Pettersen, M.D.

Agencies applying for the grants should represent areas not already served by WIC, Dr. Pettersen said, and those interested in starting local WIC programs should contact the department in writing as soon as possible.

WIC provides nutrition education and supplemental foods to eligible persons, referring them for additional health services when needed. The services are available to pregnant women and women who have already given birth, nursing women, and children under five who have been found to have special nutritional needs. A qualified health professional must determine who is eligible, based on a "nutritional assessment." Participants must also meet a family income requirement, and reside in an area served by a local WIC program.

Agencies applying for the grants should be able to administer the program, as well as provide health services to women, infants and children.

Grant applicants must meet both federal and state requirements for the awarding of WIC grants. Several factors will determine the order in which agencies are to be considered for grants:

—First consideration will go to public agencies in the Community Health Services system, which can administer the program as well as provide health services.

—Second priority will go to private, non-profit agencies that can both provide health services and administrate the program.

—Third priority will go to non-profit agencies, public or private, that must contract with an outside agency either to provide health services or to administrate the program.

—Fourth priority will go to non-profit agencies, public or private, that must contract with a private physician to provide health services to certain WIC participants. These may include women, infants, children or members of families whose income exceeds the health care eligibility standards of the local agency.

—Fifth priority will go to non-profit agencies, public or private, that must contract with a private physician to provide health services to all program participants.

The need for the program in the applicant's area and the availability of funds from the U.S. department of agriculture will also be considered in awarding grants.

Application materials are available from the State WIC Administrator, Minnesota Department of Health, 717 Delaware St. S.E., Minneapolis 55440. For further information call Greg Smith at (612) 296-5436.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor,

For weeks now regular gas has been $1.25.9 at the Holiday station in East Grand Forks, $1.35.9 at Holiday in Thief River Falls.

You can buy regular gas many places in Grand Forks, ND, for $1.24.9; regular gas in Fargo for $1.19.9. Two weeks ago we bought regular gas in Duluth for $1.20.8.

I think the oil people in Thief River Falls think we are bush batty enough that we will take this. I guess we are, if we continue to buy our gas in our home town.

Thank you,
Frank Armstrong

4-H Club Picks On Litter And Arthritis, Too

Papa Bear 4-H club picked up 35 bags of litter in their clean-a-thon August 8. The members took bags marked "I'm making every litter bit help fight arthritis" and picked up trash along two miles of county road 62 in Smiley township.

Before starting out to collect the trash the club members called on people to pledge an amount per bag of litter that the individual member taking the pledge could collect. The total amount of money that will now be collected for the Arthritis foundation is $250.

Every member will receive a certificate of appreciation from the Arthritis foundation. Each participant who collects $25 or more in redeemed pledges will receive a T-shirt in appreciation of his or her efforts as well.

The money collected throughout Minnesota in this project will be used by the Arthritis foundation in its programs of research and community education.

Bev Finke and Jan Peterson, leaders of the Papa Bear 4-H club clean-a-thon, expressed appreciation for the club members to those who helped make the event a success, and promised that the club would be back next year to help clean up the area.

In 1961, the Area Redevelopment Act became the first federal legislation to bring industry into depressed areas and train workers in those areas, according to "Labor Firsts in America," published by the U.S. Department of Labor.

North Dakota No Mecca For Job Seekers

Recent publicity about the development of North Dakota's energy industry has caused a sudden influx of out-of-state people looking for jobs, according to J. K. Stadum, area manager of the Minnesota department of economic security office in Thief River Falls.

"Job seekers are advised not to go to North Dakota without a firm and specific job offer," Stadum said. "In reality, there are very few jobs for unskilled workers, there is a large supply of unskilled workers and union benches are full with many skilled workers competing for the few laborer jobs available.

"Many employers have even quit taking applications," Stadum added. "Rental housing is scarce to unavailable and in some area job seekers are sleeping in cars and tents.

"Rumors about pipeline construction are untrue. Construction won't start until late 1981 or early 1982. Even when it starts, there will be very few jobs for unskilled workers," Stadum said.

Construction of a coal gasification plant is still pending federal loan guarantees, and if construction would begin, North Dakotans would have priority for jobs. Some farm jobs are available for experienced farm workers. "No farmer would turn inexperienced people loose on a $50,000 to $60,000 tractor," Stadum added. "Oil drilling companies are not interested in inexperienced help."

Generally speaking, openings exist for experienced, qualified secretaries and clerks, experienced auto mechanics with their own tools, experienced auto body repairers with their own tools, experienced diesel mechanics and fast food workers.

Natural Family Planning To Be Class Subject

Natural family planning will be the subject of a series of four monthly classes taught by the Couple to Couple league at St. Anne's Parish hall, Crookston, beginning 7 p.m. Thursday, September 10, 1981.

The classes at St. Anne's parish hall will be taught by George and Mary Noel, a CCL certified teaching couple.

The non-profit league is an interfaith organization dedicated to providing education about natural family planning. Typical class has a majority of Catholics in attendance, but more and more non-Catholics have been attending in the last couple of years.

The league also emphasizes that natural methods of conception regulation can be practiced for all the fertile years without the risk of danger to health and that many couples have found marital enrichment through the practice of natural family planning.

For further information and pre-registration, call George or Mary Noel at 281-3971.

Gov. Quie's Column

The Minnesota legislature has before it a yet-to-be completed task — drawing of new district lines for all congressional and legislative seats.

Although legislators did discuss reapportionment (redistricting) on a limited basis during the 1981 legislative session, they failed to resolve the issue. However, a postponement of the reapportionment issue until the 1982 legislative session is unacceptable. Those incumbents and candidates deserve to know as soon as possible which district they will be in and who will be their constituents as they prepare for the 1982 election.

I have already stated that I will call a special session of the legislature this fall so a reapportionment plan can be approved well in advance of the 1982 election. However, the public must remember that under our constitution, it is solely the responsibility of the legislature to draw new district lines to reflect the changes in the population.

The Minnesota state constitution requires that, after each United States census (every 10 years), the state legislature — not the courts or the governor — is responsible for the reapportionment of its congressional and legislative districts. The law insures that districts be adjusted to reflect recent population movements, resulting in districts with "equal" populations. The United States supreme court set this standard through the "one man, one vote" principle in 1964.

Our state constitution does not prescribe the method necessary for the legislature to redistrict. Thus, redistricting plans formed by the state legislature in past years (1965 and 1971) have been delayed by numerous accusations — claims of partisan politics or "gerrymandering." "Gerrymandering" is the manipulation of district lines to give an unfair advantage to one political party.

The difficulties encountered by the 1971 session of the state legislature exemplifies the problem of reapportionment by the legislature. Claims of gerrymandering weakened all reapportionment plans and stalled the political process. A plan could not be finished before the end of the regular session, and a special session was called by Gov. Wendell Anderson to address this issue. The special session lasted 86 days resulting in a reapportionment plan, still riddled with gerrymandering, that was vetoed by the governor. This deadlock led to a reapportionment plan created by three "special masters" which the federal district court selected.

During the 1980 election, I supported a constitutional amendment which would have given a nine-member commission the authority to redistrict congressional and legislative boundaries. This proposal was designed to take the controversial and emotional issue of reapportionment from the legislative limelight.

The reapportionment amendment proposal was approved by 58 per cent of those who voted on the issue. Yet, the amendment failed to gain a majority of the total number of people voting by a mere 2,200 votes.

Further, in January 1981, I proposed a statutory reapportionment commission, similar to the one proposed on the ballot, be established to perform in an advisory capacity to the legislature. Unfortunately, legislators did not follow my recommendation. The chronic problem of reapportionment remains in the hands of the Minnesota legislature.

Even though a special bipartisan commission has not been established, legislators should know that any reapportionment plan must have support from both parties before it will receive my signature. I urge legislators to accept their responsibility to draw new districts before more precious time escapes.

Crop Insurance Signup Ends On August 31

Final signup for the U.S. department of agriculture's (USDA) federal crop insurance for winter wheat and barley ends August 31 in most growing areas, secretary of agriculture John R. Block has announced.

Block said he strongly urges farmers to sign up before the deadline. "The farm bills currently working their way through the Congress allow for disaster payments only in those counties where USDA federal crop insurance is not available," he said. "Farmers who think they will be eligible for disaster payments may be in for a big disappointment next spring."

Crop insurance is available in every county previously covered by USDA's disaster payment program. This, coupled with the recent expansion plans of USDA's federal crop insurance corporation (FCIC) means the insurance can be bought in nearly 3,000 counties, Block said.

"Our new crop insurance program is a major policy change from federal disaster programs that pay too little, too late, to too few farmers," Block said. "All-risk crop insurance is a self-help assistance program that is fair to all."

USDA statistics show that every year one of every 14 planted acres never makes it to harvest. "This is the equivalent to the entire state of Montana," Block said. "Most farmers cannot afford to take such a risk on their own, without insurance protection."

FCIC plans to establish insurance coverage on most agricultural crops. The expansion is part of an overall effort to assure virtually every farmer the opportunity to take advantage of the all-risk crop insurance program.

For 1982, federal crop insurance will be available nationwide on the six major crops of corn, wheat, cotton, grain sorghum, rice and barley. Major producing areas growing 22 other crops also will be covered, Block said.

Winter wheat and barley farmers now can call their county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation service office for a list of insurance representatives in their area who will be able to explain how they can receive insurance protection for their crops.

USDA also has established a toll-free number farmers can call to get names of agents in their county who sell all-risk insurance. The number is 1-800-447-4700.

The National Trades Union was formed in New York City in 1834. This was the first attempt toward a national labor federation in the United States. It failed to survive the financial panic of 1837, according to "Important Events in American Labor History, 1778-1978," a U.S. Department of Labor publication.

Stumpf Favors Retention Of SS Minimum

State Rep. LeRoy Stumpf, District 1B is against congressional plans to eliminate the minimum social security benefit. He said about three million people receive the $122 a month benefit which was established to aid retired people whose contribution to social security during their working years does not warrant a larger monthly payment.

President Reagan's administration feels the minimum benefit is unjustified and has urged Congress to vote for its removal. Both the House and Senate passed the measure which was part of Reagan's $37 billion package of budget cuts.

"While I am totally sympathetic toward attempts to rescue our social security system, this is a Reagan proposal I consider to be completely unwarranted," said Rep. Stumpf, a state official. Social security is a federal program.

Elimination of the minimum benefit is scheduled to begin in February of 1982. Prior to that time, people affected by the change should receive a letter explaining why their monthly social security checks will suddenly become smaller.

"A good many people will be hurt by this proposed change as it will further burden low income people to save money for other causes," Rep. Stumpf said. "The administration claims abuse of the minimum benefit by people who also collect government pensions, but in reality a majority of those who collect the monthly $122 are people who worked for low wages years ago. What this plan would do is penalize the poor for always having been poor."

House Democrats say they are working to retain the minimum social security benefit despite passage of the budget cuts bill. They face a difficult task as the bill is currently in conference committee and Congressional rules prohibit discussion on measures that are not part of the bill as it is received in conference.

"Our national politicians will have to develop a new plan for social security — an equitable plan that does not place the burden of social security's failures on one specific group of recipients," Rep. Stumpf said.

FOUR SENIOR MEMBERS of the 1930-31 Lincoln high school basketball team were on hand recently for the 50-year reunion of the Lincoln high school class of 1931. Playing for the Prowlers that winter were, left to right, Clarence Offerdahl, now of Fosston; Howard H. Holum, Thief River Falls; Clarence Gulseth, Blackduck; and Robert Booren, Nestor Falls, Ont., Canada. A fifth team and class member, Dr. Grant Mickelson, was unable to attend the reunion because of an overseas mission. Other members of the team were senior Charles Frissell, juniors John Chommie, Lloyd Aanstad and Arnold Stadum and sophomore Wendell Kielty.

Mrs. Roger Solem was a Saturday afternoon visitor at the Alvin Halvorson home in Steiner and a Sunday afternoon visitor at the Kenny Carlson home in Sanders. Sunday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Solem and Mr. and Mrs. Dick Olson of Thief River Falls were luncheon guests at the Otto Johnson home in Oklee.

The Fair Labor Standards act of 1938 provided a 25-cent minimum wage and time and a half for hours over 40 a week, according to "Important Events in American Labor History, 1778-1978," a publication of the U.S. department of labor.

Children from families whose income is at or below the level shown are eligible for free or reduced price meals.

Application forms are being sent to all homes in a letter to parents. Additional copies are available in the Administrative Assistant's office. The information provided on the application is confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility. Applications may be submitted at any time during the year. A simple statement of income and family size is required, plus a signed certification by the parent or guardian that the information provided is true and correct.

In certain cases foster children are also eligible for these benefits. If a family has foster children living with them and wishes to apply for such meals and milk for them, they should contact the school.

Under the provisions of the policy, Mr. Henrickson will review applications and determine eligibility. If a family is dissatisfied with the ruling of the approving official, they may wish to discuss the decision with the approving official on an informal basis.

If they wish to make a formal appeal, they may make a request either orally or in writing to Mr. Gordon Henrickson, Adm. Asst., P.O. Box 195, Goodridge, MN 56725, (218) 378-4195 for a hearing to appeal the decision. The policy contains an outline of the hearing procedure.

If a family member becomes unemployed or if family size or income changes, the family should contact the school to file a new application. Such changes may make the children of the family eligible for reduced price meals, or for additional benefits such as free meals if the family income falls at or below the levels shown above.

In the operation of school nutrition programs, no child will be discriminated against because of race, color, or national origin.

The Administrative Assistant's office has a copy of the complete policy, which may be reviewed by any interested party.

Sincerely,
Dr. Don Langan, Superintendent

Blind Veterans Are Reminded Of Benefits

In connection with blinded veterans recognition day August 13, the Veterans administration reported its close association with the Blinded Veterans association (BVA) for the past nine years in a special program designed to ensure that blinded veterans are aware of all the benefits available to them.

The unique program combines the resources of the Veterans administration with the rapport BVA has with veterans. The Blinded Veterans association, under contract with VA, recruits and trains field representatives to counsel blinded veterans.

In this area, Buddy B. Spivey counsels blinded veterans in an 11-state region that includes Minnesota. Spivey, 39, lost his sight and his right leg to a land mine in Vietnam. A resident of Little Rock, Ark., Spivey was recognized by the Disabled American Veterans in 1975 as the outstanding American disabled veteran of the year.

The program is designed to remind sight-disabled veterans of the benefits available to them. An estimated 80,000 veterans have eye disabilities, or four times as many as are currently receiving VA compensation or pension checks for sight-related disabilities.

Field representatives also have advised veterans whose vision has deteriorated further since leaving the military service of their potential eligibility for additional benefits. While the first priority is to counsel on Veterans Administration benefits, field representatives also advise blinded veterans on other public as well as private agencies that assist the blind.

The Veterans administration operates three rehabilitation centers, three clinics and 76 special teams to assist an estimated 15,000 veterans who are blind or have impaired vision.

To help rehabilitate the blinded veteran, the centers offer a variety of courses designed to aid in achieving independence and a healthy mental attitude. Each center is assigned a medical doctor to maintain and improve the health of veterans in training. Centers, located at VA hospitals, also have available such facilities and clinics as are necessary.

Supplementing the services of the blind centers are visual impairment services teams, assigned to 76 VA hospitals and outpatient clinics across the country.

Research into the various aspects of blindness and rehabilitation is a major function of the VA and is conducted at the three centers. A variety of devices are made available to the blinded veteran, including reading devices, laser canes and other aids.

Children from families whose income is at or below the level shown are eligible for free or reduced price meals.

Application forms are being sent to all homes in a letter to parents. Additional copies are available in the principal's office in each school. The information provided on the application is confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility. Applications may be submitted at any time during the year. A simple statement of income and family size is required, plus a signed certification by the parent or guardian that the information provided is true and correct.

In certain cases foster children are also eligible for these benefits. If a family has foster children living with them and wishes to apply for such meals and milk for them, they should contact the school.

Under the provisions of the policy, the secondary principal will review applications and determine eligibility. If a family is dissatisfied with the ruling of the approving official, they may wish to discuss the decision with the approving official on an informal basis.

If they wish to make a formal appeal, they may make a request either orally or in writing to David Bakke, chairman of the board, Newfolden, Minnesota, telephone 874-3352 for a hearing to appeal the decision. The policy contains an outline of the hearing procedure.

If a family member becomes unemployed or if family size or income changes, the family should contact the school to file a new application. Such changes may make the children of the family eligible for reduced price meals, or for additional benefits such as free meals if the family income falls at or below the levels shown above.

In the operation of school nutrition programs, no child will be discriminated against because of race, color, or national origin.

The main office of the Independent School District No. 441 has a copy of the complete policy, which may be reviewed by any interested party.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

How would you like to turn a $20-per-week savings account into a $300-per-week income when you retire?

If you find that hard to believe, I would like to call your attention to a little-publicized feature of President Reagan's tax package — Individual Retirement Accounts (IRA). Under the landmark tax legislation just passed by Congress, all American workers, as of Jan. 1, 1982, will be entitled to open such accounts whether or not they are participants in an employer-sponsored pension plan.

Here is how an IRA works. The worker may deposit up to $2,000 per year ($2,250 for a taxpayer with a non-working spouse) in a special savings account set up with a bank, insurance company, mutual fund, savings and loan or stock brokerage firm. The deposits and the interest or other earnings on them are excused from tax until retirement age. You may begin withdrawals from the account when you reach age 59½; withdrawals made before that age are subject to tax and a penalty.

These new provisions put a self-sufficient retirement within reach of the average working American. Suppose you are now 35 years old and earn $24,000 a year for your family of four — the national median income. If you deposit $1,000 into an IRA each year (that's less than $20 per week), and do so until you are age 65, you can deduct the annual deposit from your income you report each year for tax purposes. This provision in itself will reduce your yearly federal income tax burden by about $220, meaning that of the $20 per week you deposit, Uncle Sam is "contributing" $4.23 of that in the form of a lower tax bill.

The long range benefits are even more impressive. If you save $1,000 a year for 30 years and earn, say, eight per cent interest (a conservative figure now and for the foreseeable future), at age 65 you will have a retirement fund totalling $133,770 — all of that generated from just $30,000 in deposits! If you decided to pay yourself an annuity from your account for a 15-year-period, then you would have an income of just over $300 per week, which combined with social security and a company pension, makes for a comfortable, secure retirement. Naturally, these amounts would be greater if you are able to save more than $1,000 per year or earn a higher rate of interest or return.

It is clear than an IRA could provide enormous financial benefits for the average family. But the promise of IRA's goes beyond the individual worker. When President Franklin Delano Roosevelt signed the social security act into law on Aug. 14, 1935, he declared, "We have tried to frame a law that will give some measure of protection to the average citizen and to his family against poverty-ridden old-age."

The word "some" is important. Social security was never meant to provide the total income needed for retirement. Most Americans understand this and agree with the concept of social security as a retirement supplement. When asked in a recent survey if the system, by itself, should provide enough money to support retirees, respondents disagreed by a 50-37 per cent margin. Clearly, most Americans believe that they, through individual initiatives such as personal savings, investments and pensions earned on the job, should bear the primary responsibility for providing for retirement.

Making all workers eligible for individual retirement accounts reaffirms this important principle. I'm not suggesting that saving $20 a week is an easy task with the family budget already as tight as it is, but by doing so we would not only help ourselves, but we'd help each other too — because any new infusion of savings would make more capital available for business to expand, modernize and create new jobs.

Turn a small weekly savings into a comfortable retirement income; realize immediate benefits in the form of reduced tax payments; contribute to capital formation which will mean increased productivity and prosperity; and relieve the intense pressure on the social security system to provide a complete retirement income, something it was never meant to do — these are the opportunities we can seize by opening individual retirement accounts. Any way you look at it, it's a winning proposition for you and our nation.

Answers from the Bible by Pastor Don Peres

Q. Pastor Don, should we confess our sins to a man, or only to God?

A. The confession of sin is an interesting subject in the Bible. It is a very important part of the Christian life.

First of all, we should confess our sins to God.

In Psalm 32:5 David says, "I acknowledge my sin unto thee (God), and mine iniquity have I not hid. I said, I will confess my transgressions unto the Lord; and thou forgavest the iniquity of my sin.

In Psalm 51:4 David prays to God, "Against thee (God), thee only, have I sinned, and done this evil in thy sight."

I John 1:9 teaches, "If we confess our sins, he (God) is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness.

In these few verses we find that if we are wanting God's forgiveness for sin, we should go directly to God, and ask His personal forgiveness.

But if we have sinned against an individual we should confess our sins to the individual against whom we have sinned.

Matthew 5:23-24 teaches that if we remember that our brother has ought against us, to go and be reconciled to our brother.

James 5:16 teaches, to confess our faults one to another, and pray one for another, that ye may be healed.

If we have sinned publicly we should make a public confession of our sins. If a person was to lose their temper in a business meeting and blow up at everyone present, he should make a public confessing only to those involved.

There is nothing in the Bible to indicate that one should make a detailed public confession of all his transgressions, or even that he should confess to any man every sin that he has committed. Religious imposters often require this of their followers, and in this way they get a hold over their followers and rule them by fear of exposure. One of the best known religious imposters of modern times got a hold upon his people in this way. He made them confess everything terrible and vile that they had ever done, then he terrorized them, got their money, and made slaves of them.

There are some things that a person should keep to himself and God.

If you have any questions that you would like to have answered from the Bible, please write Pastor Don Peres, Box 129, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.

TRF Team Eyes State Title

State championship is on the mind of North Star Transport manager Maynard Moen as he takes his Thief River Falls fast pitch softball team to the 1981 Class B state tournament Saturday and Sunday in Mankato.

"We're going to try to win it," said Moen. "We stand a good chance."

North Star Transport will enter the 16-team, double-elimination tournament as the District 7 champion, having won that title last weekend at Detroit Lakes. They did it the hard way: losing a first round 4-1 game to Standard Lumber of Bemidji in the 12-team, double-elimination event, then coming back through the loser's bracket for the title. The wins came against Thief River Falls league rivals Coca-Cola 9-1 and Action Realty 5-1, Frazee 5-0 and Standard Lumber 2-1 for a championship shot against unbeaten Moose Lodge of Bemidji. North Star Transport triumphed 5-4 to force a title-deciding second game and won that one 1-0.

"We don't lose too often," reported Moen, whose team won invitational tournaments at Grand Forks, Detroit Lakes, Bemidji and Thief River Falls this summer. They're one-half game out of the lead in the Thief River Falls fast pitch league standings and can gain a share of the title with Action Realty by beating TG Sporting Goods in a season-ending make-up game tentatively scheduled to be played at 9 p.m. Thursday on the fairgrounds diamond.

North Star Transport did not field a team last summer after a state tournament runner-up finish the year before. Moen figures this club is stronger than his 1979 team and has a better shot at winning a state title.

"We've got more bench strength, and we've got better pitching this time," explained Moen, who added both ingredients when he added Mike Drury of Coca-Cola and Howard Dalager of Schmidts to the squad as pick-up players. They can both help offensively, too.

Marty Brown and Al Erickson are the team's regular pitchers. Brown, a farmer from the Williams area who plays fast pitch softball in a Border League, is a regular tournament addition for North Star Transport who made the required four regular season appearances with the team to qualify as a rostered player. He was 5-0 in the District 7 tournament and will probably be the state tournament starter, although Moen wasn't ready to name his pitching rotation yet.

"Our pitching is excellent," Moen said. "They're both hard throwers, and that's the name of the game in fast pitch softball. The quality of pitching in the Class B tournament should not be much better than what we have."

Rest of the North Star Transport line-up will have Dennis Bakke, Bruce Johnson and Mike Kvarnlov rotating between first base and catcher; Roger Cota at second base; Darrell Stromlund at shortstop; and Larry Coltom at third base. Ron Ostby, Bruce (Benny) Johnson and Nick Neibauer are the regular outfielders. Drury and Dalager can also play the outfield, with Tom Neibauer scheduled to serve as designated hitter. Mark Anderson rounds out the roster.

Along with the pitching, Moen says the team's strength rests with its defense. "Our defense isn't excellent; it's damn excellent," boasts Moen. "Defensively we're possibly the best you can assemble. There's no better outfield defensively than Ostby, Benny and Nick."

"I think this is one of the better teams we've taken down there," added Moen. "We've got good pitching, good defense and good replacements."

Only matter of concern, he said, is the team's offense. "Sometimes our bats trick us," he conceded. "But if the bats come around we'll do all right."

Ladies City Golf Title Won By Sylvia Sjoberg

Second 18 holes produced an 80 and a four-shot lead for Sjoberg at 165 with rounds of 40-40. The three 169's included a second round 81 for Corliss, which featured a tournament-best 39 the first time around the course and a 42 the second trip; an 83 for Olson on rounds of 40-43; and an 84 for Jacobson on rounds of 43-41.

They are shown with some of the trophies and awards received at previous state and multi-state regional events. Hardy Hodge (left) holds trophies for state championship in center-fire handgun and first place in seven-state regional competition. Mrs. Judy Stolp has a third place novice trophy from the 1980 free-style .22 state championships. Jim Stolp holds the .44 magnum revolver won by Haze Beito at the 1980 state shoot, and Irving Swanson (right) has trophies for third place in the 1979 big bore shoot, second place in the free-style and third place in the standing events in novice and Class B divisions. AS LUCK WOULD have it, Deb Jacobson's long putt on No. 5 green was on target until it struck the ball of Sylvia Olson near the pin during Tuesday's final round of the ladies city golf tournament championship flight. FOR EACH ADDITIONAL FAMILY MEMBER ADD:	2,550	213	49

Children from families whose income is at or below the levels shown are eligible for free or reduced price meals.

Application forms are being sent to all homes in a letter to parents. Additional copies are available in the principal's office in each school. The information provided on the application is confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility. Applications may be submitted at any time during the year. A simple statement of income and family size is required, plus a signed certification by the parent or guardian that the information provided is true and correct.

In certain cases foster children are also eligible for these benefits. If a family has foster children living with them and wishes to apply for such meals for them, they should contact the school.

Under the provisions of the policy, Superintendent Norman H. Johnson will review applications and determine eligibility. If a family is dissatisfied with the ruling of the approving official, they may wish to discuss the decision with the approving official on an informal basis.

If they wish to make a formal appeal, they may make a request either orally or in writing to Ray E. Franklund, Chairman-Board of Education, Plummer, MN Tele. 465-4434 for a hearing to appeal the decision. The policy contains an outline of the hearing procedure.

If a family member becomes unemployed or if family size or income changes, the family should contact the school to file a new application. Such changes may make the children of the family eligible for reduced price meals, or for additional benefits such as free meals if the family income falls at or below the levels shown above.

In the operation of school nutrition programs, no child will be discriminated against because of race, color, or national origin.

The main office of the Plummer Public School has a copy of the complete policy, which may be reviewed by any interested party.

County Board Proceedings

August 19, 1981
Official Proceedings
Board of County Commissioners
Pennington County, Minnesota
August 11, 1981

Pursuant to adjournment the Pennington County Board met in the Commissioners' Room in the Courthouse in Thief River Falls at 10:00 A.M. August 11, 1981.

Members present: Hoffman, Grabanski, Koop, Stenberg and Tasa. All present.

LeRoy Stumpf and Chuck Carlson appeared before the Board to discuss a drainage problem in Section 12, 13 and 14 in Wyandotte Township and Section 7 in Mayfield. Asked for permission to clean out the County Road Ditch along South of Section 11 and 12 at their expense. The Board approved the request upon written agreement by affected landowners.

Lyle Turtle, with land in Mayfield Township, presented a petition for re-determination of benefits for Judicial Ditch 41 and a second petition for repair of Judicial Ditch 41. Motion made by Commissioner Koop and seconded by Commissioner Tasa that the petition for re-determination of benefits be accepted and Sam Brattell, John Hoffman and Verner Arveson be instructed to review Judicial Ditch 41 at the earliest opportunity. Motion carried.

The petition for repair of Judicial Ditch 41 was laid over to be considered after the re-determination procedure has been completed.

Jack Quinlivan and Jan Thorstad of the City Planning Office met with the Board and discussed possible use for the Sanitarium. Discussed entering into an agreement with the City Council of Thief River Falls for participation and use of the Planning Office to determine need for intermediate housing and search for funds. Matter to be presented to the City Council.

Joseph Vene, Supt. of Juvenile Training Center of Bemidji appeared and discussed a budget increase to $11,704.00 (an increase of 15 per cent) from $10,177 in 1981. Also present were Sheriff Richards, Judge Harren; Probation Officer Richard Thompton and David Strong. Moved by Commissioner Koop and Seconded by Commissioner Stenberg to renew the Contract for 1982 in an amount of $11,704.00. Motion carried.

Moved by Commissioner Hoffman and seconded by Commissioner Koop that the resolution for withdrawal from the Tobin Law Office services dated July 28, 1981 be rescinded and agreed to participate according to original intent. Motion carried by unanimous vote.

A letter from the Clerk of the City of St. Hilaire asking for assistance in planning for a HUD Grant for St. Hilaire was presented. The Board indicated that no funds have been budgeted and the upgrading of SA 3 would deplete all possible funds. Instructed the County Auditor to write a letter to that effect.

Moved by Commissioner Tasa, seconded by Commissioner Stenberg that the Road Committee and Bridges and Culvert Committee inspect roads, bridges and culverts at 9:00 A.M. August 28, 1981. Motion carried.

Supreme Court Orders Cargill To Pay Farmers

Some 86 northwestern Minnesota area farmers will receive about $2 million in payments from Cargill, Inc., as a result of a Minnesota supreme court decision announced Friday. The awards were made on claims by farmers following the forced closing of Warren Grain and Seed company, an elevator company located in Warren.

In previous legal action, owners Lloyd Hill and his son Gary were found guilty of improprieties in the elevator operations. Farmers who were owed money for grain sold to the elevator brought suit against Cargill, alleging that it was jointly liable as principal for the Warren firm.

A Marshall county district court jury found in favor of the farmers in 1979 and Cargill appealed. But associate supreme court justice C. Donald Peterson pointed out in the unanimous decision Friday that "The record established that all portions of Warren's operation were financed by Cargill and that Warren sold almost all of its market grain to Cargill."

Testimony had shown that Cargill controlled most of the business decisions of Warren Grain and Seed company from 1973 to 1977 and exercised veto power over mortgages, stock purchases and dividends paid by the company. When the elevator folded, it was found to be in debt $3.6 million to Cargill and about $2 million for grain that had been purchased from area farmers.

Cargill has been ordered to pay the money to farmers plus six per cent interest. Largest payments ordered include $200,758 to Frank and David Judovsky of Warren; $106,024 to Dale Zutz, rural Warren, a Marshall county commissioner; $89,665 to T. J. and Clarion Rudnik; and $73,329 to Andrew Skaar of Thief River Falls.

Conjunction Of Stars Visible In August Sky

A triple planetary conjunction, the dive of Voyager 2 toward Saturn, a look at Mars, and a view into the center of our galaxy are the astronomical highlights of the second half of August.

Venus, Jupiter and Saturn will be in conjunction in the last week of August: from our vantage point on Earth, they will appear to be close together in the sky. Ancient astronomers who observed such events thought the planets were gathering for a meeting.

Actually, Venus is now in the part of its orbit on the far side of the sun from us, Jupiter is about six times farther away than Venus, and the distance between Earth and Saturn is more than 10 times the distance between Earth and the sun.

Nevertheless, the conjunction should be dazzling. Look for it in the southwestern sky after sunset. Venus is the brightest of the three planets. Saturn, the faintest, will be just north of Venus, and Jupiter, half as bright as Venus, will be near both of them.

Approaching Saturn right now is the NASA spacecraft Voyager 2. On August 26, it will dive close to the planet and, on its way down, photograph some of the moons whose far sides were in shadow when Voyager 1 flew by last year.

Voyager 2 will then be flung toward Uranus, a planet twice as far away as Saturn and invisible to the naked eye. Since Uranus creates no light of its own, it is dim even to powerful telescopes. Although Uranus is 20 times larger than Earth, it is so far away that its surface is essentially unknown, said Vincent Icke, astronomer at the University of Minnesota.

Much nearer Earth, the planet Mars can be seen now just before sunrise. Look for it — it is slightly reddish — in the eastern sky near the bright star Pollux, one of the "twin stars" Castor and Pollux in the constellation Gemini. Mars will be closest to Pollux on August 26. It will be a morning planet for the next few months.

Far beyond our solar system and even beyond our arm of the Milky Way galaxy lies the center of the galaxy, visible now near the southern horizon. The star-thick area appears as a smudge on the Milky Way star path across the sky. We are 32,000 light years away from this galactic center (a light year is about 6 trillion miles).

Our sun is one of the 100 billion stars in the galaxy. We are half way out to the galactic edge, and we orbit the galaxy's center in 225 million years.

CF Drives At Goodridge And Newfolden Set

Jan Hanson of Newfolden and Mrs. Eugene Fraser of Goodridge have volunteered to organize special events to be held this fall in their communities to benefit the Cystic Fibrosis foundation, according to Ron Swain, president of the Minnesota chapter of the foundation.

Cystic fibrosis (CF) is an inherited disease that affects the lungs and the digestive organs of its victims. One in every 1,600 American children inherits this disease when he or she receives a gene for CF from each parent. It is estimated that 10 million Americans are symptomless and unknowing carriers of this gene. At this time, there is no cure for cystic fibrosis.

The door-to-door campaigns will help support research programs and medical care to lengthen the lives of all those who suffer from CF through over 120 cystic fibrosis medical centers in the United States. These centers specialize in the diagnosis and care of children and adults with cystic fibrosis.

In 1912, the first federal legislation permitting federal employees to unionize and lobby Congress, the Lloyd-LaFollette act, was passed, according to "Labor Firsts in America," a U.S. department of labor publication.

Wild Mushroom Hunting Grows In Popularity

by Paul Dienhart
'U' M News Service

Mushroom prejudice, an intolerance American fungi have been subject to for many years, may at last be abating. Long maligned as "toadstools," wild mushrooms are rapidly gaining popularity for their delightful qualities of flavor and fragrance.

"In general, people are darn near as afraid of mushrooms as they are of rattlesnakes," said Elwin Stewart, who is a mycologist, a scientist who studies fungi, at the University of Minnesota. "But in the past few years I've detected a greater interest in hunting wild mushrooms."

Americans have always used if not consumed wild mushrooms. Pioneers used smoldering puffballs to keep fire at hand, and made corks from mushrooms. Indians made red and yellow dyes from mushrooms. Foxfire, the eerie green phosphorescence sometimes found in decaying wood, was a fungus used for "blazing" trails, lighting barns and marking gear in the trenches of World War I. These days, fungi are important as sources of antibiotics.

But it's the flavor that attracts today's amateur mushroom hunter. In Minnesota you can find mushrooms with a delicate cheese-like taste, a mushroom that tastes like oysters and even a variety aptly dubbed "chicken of the woods."

"The commercial variety simply is not as good," Elwin Stewart, mycologist at the University of Minnesota said. "As a result, only infrequently do we enjoy mushrooms for the sake of mushrooms. The commercial mushroom is usually used as a condiment. Recently there've been attempts to introduce some new commercial varieties of mushrooms, and you can find these on the gourmet shelf of the supermarket."

Robert Blanchette, a university forest pathologist who has given a popular lecture about mushrooms, agrees that interest in mushrooms has increased tremendously. "Maybe we're catching up with other countries," he said.

People in Europe and the Orient are far ahead of Americans in eating wild mushrooms. In Japan, the Matsutake mushroom is so popular there's a shortage. A few years ago Japanese businessmen investigated buying pine forests on our Pacific Coast simply to harvest the wild Matsutake mushroom, which fetches $20 to $30 per pound. There's even a Japanese postage stamp series featuring mushrooms.

"In Europe, hunting mushrooms is a tradition," Stewart said. "Massive throngs of people go mushroom hunting as part of their holiday routine. Germany, France and Italy have an inspection system that allows wild mushrooms to be sold at market."

The great inhibition to eating wild mushrooms is, of course, fear of being poisoned. It is a valid concern. "Some serious study is required before you eat your first wild mushroom," Stewart said. "One mistake is potentially your last." Mushroom poisoning is especially serious because it can take several days for pain to begin. By that time liver cells are being destroyed and it's too late for help from a stomach pump.

There have been several cases of fatal mushroom poisoning in Minnesota's boundary waters area. Stewart has one word for the native species Amanita verna — "lethal." It's better known as the destroying angel. Other poisonous species can cause diarrhea or nausea, but are not fatal.

Blanchette shudders when recalling that his grandmother used to pack her eight children off to pick mushrooms, testing for poison by boiling the mushrooms in a pot with a silver dollar. If the coin turned black, poison. "Truly," he said, "that is not a good test. It's very important that before you eat a wild mushroom you know what it is. But some are very easy to identify because nothing else looks like them."

Clyde Christensen, regents' professor emeritus of plant pathology, wrote a classic field key to edible mushrooms in 1943. A revised edition of "Edible Mushrooms" was published this summer by university of Minnesota press.

Some mushrooms "are even easier to recognize than flowers or trees," Christensen writes. For the beginning mushroom hunter, he identifies four of the most easily recognized, abundant and tasty wild mushrooms.

Most famous is undoubtedly the morel. It looks rather like a teardrop-shaped sponge on a stalk. It is generally found in Minnesota oak-elm forests about mid-May, but this year had an especially good and especially early season for morels. Like most wild mushrooms, morels resist commercial cultivation. To eat them, you must hunt them.

For the novice hunter, Stewart offers these tips. Become intimately familiar with one or two species of edible mushroom. Never pick mushrooms in the early button stage, because it is too hard to identify the species. Pick only plump, firm mushrooms, and cut them open to inspect for insect larvae. Begin by getting your pick verified by a mycologist or an experienced member of a mushroom club.

Membership is up in the Twin Cities' mushroom club, the Minnesota Mycological Society, said club member Erma Lechko. She has been active in the club for ten years, and eats six to seven different kinds of wild mushrooms. "There are many more edible varieties; it all depends on your preference," she said. "But it's also fun just to get out into the wood and learn to identify different mushrooms. You learn about plants and trees, too, because they associate with certain mushrooms."

Connection between mushrooms and trees is not the mushroom cap and stem, but the below ground portion of the fungus, the mycelium. The mushroom itself — produced only periodically — is the fruiting body of the fungus, a vehicle for releasing spores. Mycelium can live for centuries.

Because the mycelium persists year after year, mushroom hunters who find good patches know where to return in the future. Locations of morels are often jealously guarded.

The knowledgeable mushroom hunter knows which type of woods harbor which type of mushroom. That's because many mushrooms live symbiotically with certain trees — both benefit from being associated. The mycelium of the fungus wraps around tree roots, providing better absorption of water. In return, the fungus taps the sugars manufactured by photosynthesis in the tree leaves and sent to the roots.

Mushrooms are deliberately introduced to strip-mined areas undergoing revegetation. The fungi help the plants and trees establish quickly.

Stewart is investigating the use of truffles for helping trees grow. Yes, Minnesota does have truffles, the gourmet's delight traditionally hunted with pigs in France. A truffle is a fruiting body of a fungus, like a mushroom, but it grows just below the surface of the ground. Minnesota truffles are about the size of small potatoes.

A hunter of truffles for the past ten years, Stewart said he has developed what is known as "truffle sense." He has a feeling for where to dig with his truffle fork, and no longer has to scarify random areas of the forest. Sometimes, he'll chase away a digging squirrel and discover a truffle on the spot. Truffles are aromatic, enabling animals to sniff them out, eat them and thus spread the spores along with a manure fertilizer.

Although Stewart digs truffles mainly for his research on revegetation, he also eats them. "They can be quite delicious," he said. "I never forget that."

Minnesota Mycological Society meets every Monday night from 7 to 9 during May, June, September and October. Meetings are at the Walker Library in Minneapolis, and visitors are welcome. Only club members may go along on the periodic club "forays" to collect and identify mushrooms. All new members are accompanied by experienced mushroom hunters.

It costs $5 to join the club, and the $4 per year dues include a newsletter.

"The club was founded in 1898, and so far no member has died of mushroom poisoning," said club member Erma Lechko.

LAWN and GARDEN TIPS

FALL—A GOOD TIME FOR LAWN WEED CONTROL

Spray in the Fall for a beautiful lawn in the Spring.

Many troublesome weeds are best controlled in the fall. Dandelions, chickweed, plantain, ground ivy, white clover, and other perennial broad-leaf weeds are especially suited for fall control.

Since these weeds are perennials (having a life cycle of more than two years) they go through a vigorous growth spurt in the fall. Weed killers applied at this time readily move down to the roots, along with food that the plant is storing for the winter, and kill the weed. Eliminating perennial weeds now will clear the way for desired grasses in the spring.

According to the National Sprayer and Duster Association, proper application of the herbicide, or weed killer, is important for best control. A compression sprayer with tank capacity from one to four gallons gives you good control over the spray and is ideal for lawn weed control.

If your lawn area is large, you may want to consider a small power sprayer with a tank capacity of about 10 gallons. It will cover large areas fast, especially when equipped with a multi-nozzle boom or a single broad-spray nozzle.

National Sprayer and Duster Association specialists advise using a coarse spray applied at a low pressure to avoid drift.

Avoid spraying on a windy day. The drift of the herbicide may damage other plantings.

It's best to keep one sprayer for weed control, mark it plainly, and use it only for that purpose. Weed killer is difficult to clean completely from your sprayer. A small amount of residue could cause problems if the same sprayer were later used on vegetables, flowering plants or ornamentals.

See your garden supply retailer or county agent for assistance in choosing the right weed control material for your lawn. Be sure to follow label directions carefully.

Low Interest Loans Hurting US Government

Historically, lending money has been a money-making proposition. True, inflation and high interest rates today have created special problems for thrift institutions. But they do not set out deliberately to lose money.

Only Uncle Sam starts with that premise — borrowing at high rates to lend out at lower rates to support a variety of social and other programs.

According to an analysis by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, the proliferation of federal lending activities is costing taxpayers billions of dollars to subsidize loans and loan guarantees.

A recent Associated Press article, for example, reported that the federal government pays commercial banks and state lending agencies a record 17.7 per cent in interest on loans to college students. The government pays the full interest while the students are in school. Afterward, the students repay loans at seven per cent or three per cent, depending on the type.

Dr. Ronald D. Utt, who is associate chief economist of the U.S. Chamber, points out these lending programs — involving $170.4 billion in new direct loans and guarantees in 1981 — have become a severe drain not only on our budget resources but also on the nation's credit markets, where consumers, homebuyers and businesses must compete with the federal government's borrowing activities.

To illustrate the scope of these lending activities, which the public really knows little about, Dr. Utt points out:

"Whereas budget outlays increased by 78 per cent over the period 1975 to 1978, outstanding government direct loans and loan guarantees increased by 96 per cent.

"Over the decade of the 1970's, funds advanced and guaranteed through federal lending programs averaged 14.3 per cent of total funds advanced in U.S. credit markets. However, this participation rate has risen steadily over the past several years, from 11.9 per cent in 1977 to 17.8 per cent in 1979 and to a record 23.2 per cent in 1980.

Rapid growth of these programs is easy to understand.

"During 1980, when most Americans were paying double-digit interest rates on their borrowings and the prime interest rate averaged 17 per cent, borrowers eligible for federal programs were paying rates as low as 2.6 per cent," Dr. Utt reported.

Fortunately, the Reagan administration has taken steps to effect a reduction in how fast these programs have been growing. But as the U.S. chamber analysis suggests, the government's role as a lender requires definitive study. Not even the government can afford endlessly to engage in money-losing ventures that compete with business and consumers for increasingly scarce credit.

Trees in a forest protect each other from the wind and sleet. They shelter the young saplings until maturity is reached, letting the warmth and energy of the sun filter through their branches to the forest floor.

A tree standing alone must defy the elements . . . must survive by the sheer will of nature to live. Yet its source of strength is no different from the source that nurtures the forest. God, who created a million forests, provides what one tree needs to stand alone.

Most of our life is lived close to each other. We share our blessings. We help one another in difficulty. But there are times when we find ourselves standing alone. In such lonely moments God provides the faith and courage we need.

This week, at worship, begin to draw on the Source of all strength.

$50 BILLION

Home is where the heart is, and a new home is truly a heartfelt joy. But with the price tag of an average new home reading $86,000 and rising, something new is not always possible.

However, ingenious Americans are finding that renewing the old homestead can make it like new—or better. That's why remodeling and repair has become one of the hottest markets for building products like lumber, plywood and paneling, say the people at Georgia-Pacific Corporation, one of the industry's leaders.

Georgia-Pacific is forecasting that Americans will spend more than $50 billion this year improving their homes. And more home-improvement projects will be done by do-it-yourselfers, often with professionals handling the more complicated parts.

Opposition No Solution

Following editorial is from the Olivia Times Journal:

The waste management board met some rather hostile Renville county citizens as they attempted to make clear their plans for a hazardous waste dump somewhere in Minnesota.

The development of such a site is absolutely necessary as thousands of tons of hazardous waste are disposed of improperly — down drains, into sewer systems or into ditches that flow into a public water supply.

It's easy to understand the alarm, even fear, of the area citizens as they imagine this waste dump threatening their lives and the lives of their children. However, the mood of the crowd was unsettling as they drilled the board. The attitude voiced at the meeting was, "This is not our problem. Why is our land and our area being considered for this dreadful purpose?"

Contrary to what some may believe, Renville county was not chosen as a potential site because an insane bureaucracy is intent on claiming 600 acres of prime farm land. The board is intent on choosing the safest site, and Renville county's clay and bedrock make it a possible candidate.

And also contrary to what the citizens voiced, the hazardous waste is our problem. Several times the statement, "If these industrial wastes are so hazardous they can't be broken back down to a harmless substance, then the products had better not be manufactured in the first place," brought applause from the gathered citizens.

Is Renville county really prepared to give up its television sets, radios, stereos, toasters, clothing, newspapers, wood furniture, mirrors, lamps and bottled beverages? Are the farmers who so loudly protest the use of their farm land for this purpose willing to give up the pesticides, herbicides and fertilizers they use? Are the beet farmers willing to forego the present beet sugar extraction process?

These are some of the producers of hazardous waste — so it is not just industry's problem. Although they do the manufacturing, we do the consuming. It is not their problem — it is our problem.

Instead of confronting the hazardous waste board with a hostile attitude, the communities should embrace their problem-solving attitude and work to solve the problem of where our hazardous waste, that we all help produce, will be disposed.

Rebellion Raises Questions

Following editorial is from the Grand Rapids Herald-Review:

Legislation has been introduced in Congress which would authorize confiscation of federal public land by western states.

Bills introduced in both house and senate would authorize states west of the 100th meridian to apply for transfer of certain federal lands to state ownership. Sen. Orrin Hatch of Utah has proposed a bill which would permit the states to take more than 350 million acres managed by the U.S. Bureau of Land Management and 190 million acres administered by the U.S. Forest Service.

Sponsors of the bill say that the purpose of the so-called Sagebrush Rebellion is to right a wrong that is more than 100 years old: "Unlike eastern states which were admitted to the Union with state or private control over the land within their borders, western public lands were treated like second-class colonies, and were forced to give up their rights to the vast amounts of land within their boundaries."

That isn't entirely accurate. Western states never owned the federal public lands within their borders. Those federal territories became states only after their constitutional conventions agreed to accept a certain amount of land and forego any claims for the remainder.

For example, Nevada in 1864 agreed to "forever disclaim all right and title to the unappropriated public lands lying within said territory, and that the same shall remain at the sole and entire disposition of the United States." Congress then granted Nevada 3.9 million acres of "trust" land which the state sold for a pittance. Nevada today has only 2,591 acres of those original "trust" lands. Some states like Arizona, New Mexico and Montana kept most of their original land grants. Oregon, Nevada and California sold most of theirs.

It's interesting to note that the original 13 colonies had to surrender title to all their public land — which they did not own — as a condition to joining the Union. Georgia, for example, gave the federal government lands that now include Alabama, Mississippi and part of Louisiana for the privilege of joining.

Many citizens fear that transfer of federal lands to the state would be the first step toward the sale of those lands to private interests.

"Charges that the states will turn the land over to private ownership, selling it off, are pure bunk," declares Sen. Orrin Hatch of Utah who introduced the legislation in the senate. Sponsors insist that the lands would remain open to hunters, anglers, campers and others. Home-rule for the West will result in more efficient, more timely and responsible management, they contend.

Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt reacts to the Sagebrush Rebellion in this way: "When you rip the mask off, the instigators of the movement are ranchers, mining companies and timber folk — the same old special-interest crowd that has been grabbing for western land ever since the days of Teddy Roosevelt."

There is no denying that many western states have extremely heavy percentages of federal land ownership. Some are experiencing rapid population growth and need more land for expansion. The Sagebrush Rebellion has been successful in capturing the attention of the public. One result may be the start of a necessary and overdue dialogue as to the administration of federal lands. It may be time to review carefully the federal ownership of much of the land in the West. There is no particular point in locking away some types of land.

Gov. Richard Lamm of Colorado suggests the importance of trying to "do a better job of managing that which is in our domain, not to expand our domain many times over . . . instead of this course (the Sagebrush Rebellion), I urge you to join me in pressuring for assurance that state and local laws and regulations apply when the federal government is acting as a sovereign within our border."

Northern Minnesotans do not believe that federal control of lands and waters is the only or best answer. Citizens of this area, for example, worked hard to provide local protection and control for the Upper Mississippi river. The Sagebrush Rebellion may not be the right answer to the land problems of the West, but it has raised important questions which deserve study and answers.

Crops Roll In

Worries of spring and summer are now behind area farmers as the crops they planted and nurtured are now being harvested in fine fashion. Except for areas where heavy rainfall left fields too wet for crop growth and the support of harvesting equipment, the harvest has been making rapid progress.

In most cases, farmers will have to admit that they couldn't have had a much better weather schedule if they had been able to order it to their liking. Early spring weather made early fieldwork and planting possible. Just when concern for moisture was being expressed the rains came and grain crops spurted upward. And when harvest got underway, the rains ceased and field work could continue virtually uninterrupted.

It is impossible to please everyone, but most must be satisfied. The rain on one farmer's hay may be a boost to his neighbor's grain. Heat which withers small grain makes corn grow well. But things look good as the crops roll in this fall. It's a boost the area needs as we realize once again how dependent we are on the agricultural economy.

Learning The Language

Foreign languages are a snap to learn in comparison to the language developed in government reporting. "Bureaucratise" is a whole new way of finding a complicated way of saying something simple.

The chamber of commerce of the United States points out several examples. To the bureaucrat a car bumper is an impact attenuation device, waves are climatically caused disturbances at the sea or air surface, parachutes are aerodynamic decelerators and a majority is a central tendency group.

With that sort of prevalent thinking, is it any wonder social hours have become attitudinal adjustment facilitators?

Borrowed Nonsense:

"You know that you swore at me in your sleep last night?" the wife grumbled.

"Who was sleeping?" the husband replied.

COLOR facts&fancies

If your eyes are average, you can distinguish a total of about ten million colors. If you are a color expert, however, you may not only be able to distinguish between colors, but to describe two to three hundred different shades of color.

Color is the big fashion message for this fall. Shades will range from the palest pastels and the muted olive drabs and khakis to the rich wine tones of burgundy and claret. The fashion-wise who love the comfort and ease of today's sweatshirts and warm-up suits will applaud the news that this fleecewear will be sporting all the new colors.

To find casual wear in the truest colors that will last through active use and frequent laundering, look for the American Fleecewear label. It tells you that you're buying a garment with what those in the know consider genuine value, made of Creslan Acrylic fiber.

Bright colors will be the keynote in autumn's casual sportswear.

The Greek philosopher Aristotle was aware, according to his writings, that the eye cannot distinguish color without light. However, he thought that color was created by something transparent between the object and the eyes.

SOLVING PROBLEMS BEFORE THEY HAPPEN.
Lutheran Brotherhood announces MagniMed... a major medical program with 100% coverage for outpatient surgery and generic drugs.

A major need.
What would happen if you or a member of your family suffered a major illness or injury requiring an extended hospital stay, long-term treatment, major surgery or a combination of all three? Are you really covered against such catastrophic costs by your current insurance?

Improving on a good thing.
Lutheran Brotherhood has recently introduced an extraordinary new major medical plan called MagniMed. It's designed to provide quality coverage at an affordable cost. Broad coverage, too. Unlike most other plans, for example, MagniMed pays a full 100% of your outpatient surgery and generic drug costs, after the deductible has been satisfied.

Flexible, million dollar coverage!
Among MagniMed's many other features are these:
- There are a number of deductible options so that you can tailor your coverage to what you can afford.
- There's no limit to the number of days or scheduled amount of benefits provided under the plan for intensive care, and room and board is provided based upon average local semi-private room rates.
- Coverage is provided either while confined in a hospital or while being treated as an outpatient.
- Each covered family member is eligible for up to $1,000,000 of lifetime benefits.

Taking the lead.
Once again Lutheran Brotherhood has spared no effort to provide Lutherans with the very best in insurance benefits...at a very competitive cost. Once again we're ready and able to help you solve problems before they happen.

Find out now.
Don't wait another minute to protect yourself from the kind of calamity that could happen any minute. And if you already have major medical coverage, it could still be very worthwhile to compare it with what MagniMed offers. Call your nearby Lutheran Brotherhood representative today and find out all about MagniMed!

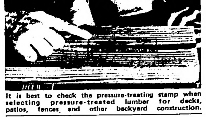
OUTDOOR.WOOD



It is best to check the pressure-treating stamp when selecting pressure-treated lumber for decks, patios, fences and other backyard construction.

Would you believe not all treated woods are alike? Here are facts to keep in mind when buying lumber for decks, fences and backyard projects.

Some woods are preserved with a brush-on or dip treatment. This offers surface protection, but small cracks and physical abrasions may expose inner wood cells to the ravages of rain, moisture and insects. Pressure treatments, however, force the preservatives into the wood, providing lasting resistance to decay and termites.

Brushed coatings must also be repeated periodically while pressure treatment requires no additional work to maintain resistance.

With pressure-treated woods, the preservatives react with the wood substance itself. They won't wash out even when exposed to heavy rainfall.

According to brand usage surveys conducted the past three years by Professional Builder magazine, Wolmanized® pressure-treated wood is overwhelmingly the first choice of builders. It is also sold to do-it-yourselfers at lumber yards and home centers.

Wolmanized® and Outdoor® wood are produced by a network of treaters throughout the U.S. and Canada and on five continents. Their pressure treating process meets or exceeds the standards of the American Wood-Preservers' Association and the Canadian Standards Association.

For long-lasting effectiveness and economy, consider appearance, application and brand when selecting pressure-treated wood. If beauty's important, choose a high grade of lumber. If the wood will be out of sight, a lower grade may be adequate.

Always check the retention level of the wood in relation to the intended purpose, experts advise.

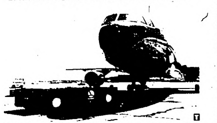
BATTERY-POWER MOVES JET AIRCRAFT



This L-1011 wide-body jet gets a push-out from a fuel-efficient battery-powered tractor at a cost of only 21¢.

How much would you guess it costs to push out a wide-body jet from its departure gate: $210? $21? $2.10? 21¢?

The answer, if a newly developed battery-powered tractor is used, is 21¢.

Eastern Airlines, which has 36 of the new electric tractors in service, estimates it has reduced the average push-out cost for its L-1011s and A-300s by 90 percent. In addition, the initial cost of each electric vehicle is up to $137,000 less than for a comparable diesel-powered tractor.

Lower initial cost and reduced operating expenses are coupled with maintenance costs estimated by Eastern to be 50 percent lower than diesel- or gasoline-powered vehicles. Energy for the tractors is supplied by two batteries which can power a unit for two full days on a single charge.

Another energy-saving feature: the electric vehicles don't depend on the operator shutting off the motor to save fuel because when the accelerator is released, the motors stop. And because electric vehicles use no oil, ramp cleanliness is improved. What's more, the tractors, designed by Figgie International's Kersey Manufacturing Company in Bluefield, Va., virtually eliminate air and noise pollution, an important advantage at busy airports.

Many people talk about fuel-efficient, battery-powered vehicles in futuristic terms. For Eastern Airlines, the future is now.

Falls Delivered Meals Supported By United Way

Elderly and handicapped services are only two of the many areas supported by Thief River Falls area United Way contributions. This year, two new programs have been added to the list of those previously supported by United Way, including the Falls Delivered Meals program and the "Kids on the Block" handicapped awareness program.

The first of these, Falls Delivered Meals, will be examined in this issue of the Times, while the second program will be reviewed in a following issue.

"A Gift of Love" will center around the United Way campaign this year which begins in Thief River Falls September 22 and continues until October 6. Goal for this year's campaign has been set at $50,000.

Local United Way contributions support a number of services for the elderly, family, handicapped and youth, along with supporting various health services. Programs included within each group and United Way support for each includes the following:

Elderly. — senior citizen meals, $400; Falls Delivered Meals, $2,500; arthritis foundation, $1,300;

Family — Salvation Army — $440.70; child protection council, $440.70; children's home society — $1,000; children and parents learning together — $100; grief support group — $155; Red Cross — $1,000; and USO — $505;

Handicapped — Occupational Development Center — $5,000; Camp Sunshine — $1,400; Regional Association for Retarded Citizens (ARC) — $700; friendship club — $500; and "Kids on the Block" — $3,000;

Health — cancer research — $4,750; heart research — $4,750; Cystic Fibrosis foundation — $500; Minnesota medical foundation (kidney research) — $2,000; Cerebral Palsy research — $287.55; Inter-county nursing services (taxi-pass) — $200; Minnesota epilepsy league — $1,000; health education for living — $300; American diabetes association of Minnesota — $600; Sister Kenny Foundation — $1,500; and LaLeche League — $150;

TREED by Orlie Hafdahl's dog Rex, this bruin got as comfortable as he could under the circumstances. The bear apparently just wanted to sample the produce from Hafdahl's garden. "In the dark I thought it was the biggest raccoon I ever saw" he said. Hafdahl's farm is located on the Red Lake river in Kratka township, east of Thief River Falls.

School To Open On Wednesday

Thief River Falls schools will open for classes Wednesday morning, but faculty members are in their buildings today and tomorrow in preparation for the first day of classes. General session for all teachers was held at 8:33 a.m. today in the Lincoln cafeteria.

This morning's session included welcomes from Ken Wiebolt, school board chairman; Mike Lehrer, president of the Thief River Falls Education association; and Bob Carlson, mayor of Thief River Falls. Presentations were made by Marcia Stanislawski, school nurse, and Dr. Leo Ruberto, director of special education. Overview of the district and its programs was given by Supt. Robert Block.

Following the group session, teachers returned to their individual buildings for smaller group meetings and individual classroom preparation. The individual and small group sessions will continue Tuesday.

Classes Wednesday will start at 8:25 a.m. at all the elementary schools and Franklin middle school and 8:33 a.m. at Lincoln high school. Buses will run on their regular schedule and bus students are advised to be ready a few minutes early until the schedule is firmly established.

Any students new to the district who have not registered should contact the school principal or the school district service center prior to opening day of classes.

Supt. Robert Block said last spring's enrollment projections would indicate nearly the same enrollment as a year ago, but changes over the summer leave some questions for opening day enrollment Wednesday. It would appear, he said, that the high school would be nearly the same as in 1980-81, the middle school up slightly and the third through fifth grades down.

He said the staff is nearly all hired pending board approval tonight with the exception of an electronics instructor at the AVTI.

Chamber Sets Special Meet Wed. Morning

Thief River Falls chamber of commerce will host a special meeting for its general membership and several special committees Wednesday at 9:30 a.m. in the chamber of commerce office lobby.

Bill Shilling will present a special program entitled "2001 — Can We Get There From Here", a plan of action to assure Minnesota's future quality of life through creative financing incentive.

Governmental action for the 1980's will also be discussed and the retail business association (RBA) will present an update on the "Everybody's Market" promotion scheduled for September 10, 11 and 12.

Newfolden Set Fall Festival Sept. 12 & 13

Newfolden has scheduled its fall festival days September 12 and 13 with a large number of events and activities planned for both days of the celebration.

Tentatively scheduled for Saturday, September 12, are a parade, tug-of-war, children's games and races, punt and pass competition, booths, country market, tennis tournament, horseshoe tournament, pumpkin contest, exhibit trade show and refreshment booths.

Slated for Saturday evening are a slave auction, talent show and music jam sessions, pancake feed, old-time dance and street dance.

Sunday, September 13, games and tournaments will be held along with a pork feed, exhibits and an evening Miss Newfolden contest.

The festival is being sponsored by service clubs and merchants of the Newfolden community to provide a community celebration of friends and neighbors, according to Pati Tandberg, who is coordinating arrangements. Additional information, including time schedule for events, will be published in later editions of the Times.

Newfolden Pageant Set September 13

First annual Miss Newfolden pageant, sponsored by the Jaycee Women, will be conducted September 13 at the Marshall county central high school gymnasium.

Tickets will go on sale August 31 at Stan's Grocery, Hartz, Marshall county state bank and Hardware Hank of Newfolden and LaVonne's grocery at Viking.

Advance tickets will be $2 and $2.50 at the door.

Dutch Elm Disease Fight Is Only Delaying Action

by David Berg
Times Reporter

"Our attitude is that we're going to lose all of our elm trees," says John Johnson, tree inspector for the city of Thief River Falls, referring to results of the introduction of Dutch elm disease to the area.

So why bother with trying to slow the progress of the disease? "We're primarily buying time," says Johnson. "It's a lot easier to pay for the removal and replacement of all those trees over 30 years than five."

The possible discovery of a way to eliminate the disease some day is another reason mentioned. Johnson estimates that without the prevention program 30 per cent of the stately trees would be lost each year. "I think we can keep the losses down to one or two per cent per year," he adds.

The city has two licensed tree inspectors, Johnson and Myles Olson. Paul Phelps and Steve Geatz are seasonal employees who assist them until returning to college in the fall.

Dutch elm disease is caused by a fungus which infects the water carrying vessels of elms. The vessels' plug, preventing water uptake, causing the tree to wilt and die. In this area, the disease is spread primarily by the native elm bark beetle, an insect about half the size of a grain of rice, which breeds and overwinters in dead or dying elm bark and feeds on healthy elm trees. The spores of the fungus are carried in and on the bodies of the beetles after contacting diseased wood, and spread to healthy trees during feeding.

Once established, the fungus can move throughout the tree's water conducting system resulting in systemic infection. The fungus can also spread from tree to tree through roots which fuse together if the trees are growing too close together. In large trees, root grafting can occur at distances as much as 60 feet apart.

Dutch elm disease was first discovered in the Netherlands in 1919, spread rapidly in Europe, and by 1934 was found in most European countries. It was discovered in Ohio in 1930, and Minnesota's first case was found in St. Paul in 1961. In 1976, the disease was reported in 69 of Minnesota's 87 counties. Johnson's crew has diagnosed 12 cases so far in Thief River Falls.

The first evidence of the disease is usually wilting in one or more of the upper branches. Leaves turn yellow and curl, then dry up. Some trees die within several weeks, others survive a year or longer.

Peeling bark from wilted branches of a diseased tree typically reveals dark streaks or discoloration of the sapwood. Positive identification of the disease can only be made by culturing the fungus from the diseased wood and identifying it under a microscope. This used to be done by a state lab which took about six weeks. Johnson's crew members now does this themselves, getting results in about five days.

Detection is a big part of the job done by Johnson and his crew. In addition to responding to reports from citizens, they have been conducting an inventory of all of the trees in Thief River Falls for the past year. Since the state provides 25 per cent of the funds for the city's tree program, the inventory was one of the "strings" attached to funding.

The inventory is kept track of with the aid of the city's computer. Trees are recorded by species, condition and location. Each time one is removed or planted the information is programmed into the machine.

When a suspicious looking tree is discovered, Johnson — often using a bucket truck borrowed from the power company — will clip several wilted limbs about half an inch in diameter from the tree. The bark is then peeled back and the wood is examined for characteristic streaking. A sample is taken back to the lab for culture and positive identification.

Once the tree has been positively identified as diseased, it is marked with a red band and the property owner is notified. The tree must then be removed and disposed of within 20 days. Disposal must be by burning, burying, in an approved landfill, chipping or debarking.

If the tree is on the boulevard or street right of way, the city will remove it at

REDUCED TO SAWDUST by the city's "chipper", limbs up to three and a half inches in diameter can be blown into the back of a truck and hauled away, leaving no material suitable for breeding by native elm beetles. The machine is here being used by Paul and Ricky Heaton of Heatons' Tree Service who contract with the city.

A COMPUTER is used by Tree Inspector John Johnson to keep track of the city's tree inventory. Data must be recorded each time a tree is cut or replaced.

MICROSCOPIC examination is the only positive way to positively identify the fungus. Steve Geatz, assistant tree inspector, looks for the telltale spores.

GROWING THE fungus on a culture medium enables Paul Phelps, assistant tree inspector, to isolate it from the many other organisms present for positive identification.

State Agency Studies Alternative Energy Sources

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Biomass appears to provide the best energy source alternative to gas, petroleum and coal, according to a top official of the Minnesota Energy agency, and northwestern Minnesota may be at the doorstep to the best source of biomass under study today.

Ronald D. Visness, assistant director for alternative energy development with the state energy agency, says he is more enthused about the possibilities for biomass now than he has ever been. And one of the reasons is that use of cattail as an energy source appears better all the time.

Biomass is plant matter formed — as the scientists put it — through the photosynthetic conversion of water and atmospheric carbon dioxide by sunlight. In effect, plants convert light into the energy necessary for growth and store that energy in the tissues they build out of the light and nutrients. They are natural solar collectors. When their tissues break down, like a log buring in a fireplace, the stored energy is released. If we control that release, we can capture that energy.

"When I make speeches to groups," Visness told the Times in a special interview on the biomass study, "I make this comparison: Eastern coal is old coal; lignite is young coal; peat is very young coal; and biomass is coal to be. If petroleum had never been discovered, we would have built our country around coal technology."

How serious is the energy agency in considering biomass as a viable alternative energy source: Serious enough to put a fair piece of change into research and development by some very enthusiastic people well respected in the scientific community. Among these is Douglas C. Pratt, head of the botany department at the University of Minnesota in St. Paul.

In 1977 the university's biomass study program was selected among several for funding by the energy agency at $25,000. Another $25,000 was granted in 1978, and the preliminary findings were so impressive that the university decided to go the next step by involving other departments, including agricultural engineering, agricultural economics and land use personnel.

The energy agency asked the legislature for $800,000 for further funding, but that request was cut to an appropriation of about $230,000. The university has contributed more than a quarter of a million dollars worth of in-kind service such as salaries and use of facilities. Another $200,000 or so has been received from federal sources. There has been little if any private money put into studies of biomass production in Minnesota.

(This series of articles will include interviews with some of the principal people involved in the biomass studies, discuss their goals and objectives and review some of their findings.)

Visness notes that the state of Minnesota has a conservatively estimated six million acres of peatlands and 12 million acres of what may be considered poorly drained mineral soils. Many of these acreages are mixed together. Much of the acreage is capable of producing cattail in abundance, while it is incapable of producing food crops. Biomass such as cattail is a renewable energy source which would make use of these lands with seemingly little impact on the lands themselves.

In assessing alternative energy sources, the energy agency must look at the production capabilities and the conversion technology. Consensus seems to be that the state should concentrate on the production aspects of the situation, Visness said, leaving the conversion technology question to industry. The production question includes resource management and land use problem solving.

"If you have a hydrocarbon product — cellulose, sugars, starches," he explained, "you

Rev. Ashbacher Is Pastor At St. John Here

Installation of Rev. Allen F. Ashbacher into St. John Lutheran church in Thief River Falls will take place at the church August 30 at 7:30 p.m. with Rev. Roger Raebel officiating. Pastors having special parts in the service include liturgist, the Rev. Orville Poellot, Mahnomen; as lectors, Mr. Luther Heintz, Plummer and the Rev. Edward Johnshoy, McIntosh-Fosston; and as homilist, the Rev. David Anderson, Crookston-Eldred, among others. Installation will be followed by coffee and fellowship in the church basement.

Rev. Ashbacher, who was born at Waukon, Iowa, graduated from Waukon high school in 1961. He studied at Simpson College in Indianola, Iowa for one and one-half years before enlisting in the United States Air Force. While in the service, he met his wife, Dorothy, a native of Park Rapids, and they were married in 1967 in Tokyo, Japan. The couple have two children, Jamie Sue, 4 and Jeremy Allen, 2.

After Ashbacker's discharge from the Air Force in 1968, he began his studies for the ministry at Concordia College in St. Paul, graduating in 1971 with a bachelor's degree in elementary education. He then enrolled in Concordia Seminary, in Springfield, IL, from which he graduated May 22, 1975 with a Masters of Divinity degree.

Ashbacher was ordained into the Holy Ministry June 22 at St. Paul's Lutheran church in Battle Creek, MI, the congregation at which he served his vicarage in 1973-74.

Ashbacher served at St. Matthew Lutheran church in Cedar Bluffs, NB, from 1975 to 1979 and Christ Lutheran church in Falls City, NB, from 1979 to 1981 when he accepted the call to St. John Lutheran church in Thief River Falls.

Retiring Soon? Think Ahead Of SS Benefits

People planning to retire in the near future should take some time soon to think about Social Security retirement benefits, according to William Phalen, Social Security district manager in Grand Forks. They should apply for benefits two or three months before they plan to retire. This way, benefits can begin shortly after income from work stops.

Before applying, a person should get the necessary proofs together. This will save time at application time. The first item a person needs is his or her Social Security card or a record of the number. Proof of date of birth is also required. Preferred proof is an official record of birth or baptism recorded before age five. If this does not exist, other proofs can be submitted. Any Social Security office can tell what kinds of evidence can be used.

Forms W-2 (Wage and Tax Statement) for the past two years should be provided. A self-employed person should have copies of his or her self-employment tax returns for the past two years. These are needed because recent earnings reports may not yet be on the Social Security records. Birth certificates of any young, unmarried children should be obtained as well. Additional documentation may be required depending upon the particulars of a certain case.

Phalen stressed that the method of figuring retirement benefits has not changed. Payments are based on the worker's average yearly earnings and there is still a permanent reduction in the amount if benefits start before age 65.

Road Signs Confusing To Some, Says AAA

Motorists encounter stop, slow, merge and yield signs every day. But, according to the American Automobile Association (AAA), one driver out of 10 is confused by traffic control directives, which is a definite factor in the highway casualty count.

In a study of 19 traffic situations, involving the use of various signs, signals and markings, the AAA foundation for traffic safety found that not one traffic directive was understood by all of the drivers tested.

Less than half of the drivers, who were tested, correctly understood the meaning of the yield sign and only half comprehended the "exit only" sign on freeways.

Correct responses to the various traffic control devices ranged from a low of 7 per cent to a high of 97 per cent.

Drivers, who were over the age of 49, showed generally less accurate comprehension of the traffic controls in the test program. Drivers between 24-49 years displayed the best understanding, while those motorists under the age of 24 made only a slightly better showing than the older drivers tested.

Barbara Mittelstadt, traffic safety coordinator of AAA, says, "Steps must be taken to improve the motorist's understanding of highway signs and markings." One area of improvement, she noted, is an increased emphasis on traffic directive awareness in the driver education and driver improvement programs.

For more information on improved road sign awareness, AAA offers a free brochure, "Road Symbol Signs Coming Your Way." To obtain a copy write to the Traffic Safety Department, Minnesota AAA, Burnsville, MN 55337 or call 612-890-2500.

Coast Guard Takes Academy Applications

United States Coast Guard academy has announced that it is now accepting and processing applications for appointment as cadet, U.S. Coast Guard, class of 1986, from both men and women.

Appointments as Coast Guard cadets are tendered solely on the basis of an annual nationwide competiton with no congressional appointments or geographical quotas. Applications for appointment must be submitted to the director of admissions, U.S. Coast Guard academy, prior to December 15, 1981.

Candidates must arrange to participate in either the College Board Scholastic aptitude test (SAT) or American College Testing assessment (ACT) prior to or including the December 12, 1981 administration for the ACT and the December 5, 1981 administration for the SAT.

The competition for appointment as Cadet is based on the candidate's high school rank, performance on either the SAT or ACT, and leadership potential as demonstrated by participation in high school extracurricular activities, community affairs and-or part-time employment. Most successful candidates rank in the top quarter of their high school class and demonstrate proficiency in both the mathematical and applied science fields.

To qualify for the competition, an applicant must be unmarried at the time of appointment, have no legal obligations resulting from a prior marriage, and must have reached the age of 17 but not 22 by July 1, 1982. All applicants must be assured of high school graduation by June 30, 1982. Applicants must have completed three units in English, and three in mathematics to include algebra and plane or coordinate geometry or their equivalents, and must fulfill basic physical requirements.

Coast Guard cadets obtain an undergraduate education at no personal expense. In addition, they receive pay and allowances adequate to fulfill their ordinary living expenses.

The Academy curriculum offers nine majors, including electrical, civil, ocean and marine engineering; marine, mathematical and physical sciences; management and government. Graduates of the Academy are awarded a Bachelor of Science degree and are commissioned as ensigns in the United States Coast Guard. Selected officers may pursue further postgraduate education.

The Coast Guard performs essential humanitarian missions vital to the safety and saving of lives at sea. Under the Department of Transportation, the Coast Guard establishes and coordinates search and rescue operations by ship and plane, maintains advanced electronic and other aids to navigation scattered around the globe, operates icebreakers, enforces marine law and has responsibility for boating safety and marine and environmental protection.

Applications and additional information may be obtained by writing to: Director of Admissions, United States Coast Guard Academy, New London, Connecticut 06320.

Clearinghouse Aids Effort Against Crime

A new clearinghouse operation is aiding anti-crime cooperation between citizens and law endorcement officials.

The National Neighborhood Watch association (NWA) is expanding and strengthening the community crime prevention programs by working with member citizens and neighborhood groups.

The non-profit citizens' organization is designed to draw on advice, materials and services of security experts. It emphasizes public awareness, crime prevention education and community cooperation.

"The information is there, but it isn't reaching the people," says Ronald L. Hyden, NWA president. "Police and security experts are as concerned about street crime as the citizens. But their techniques go to waste when they aren't used by the people who need them."

Crime analysts have credited neighborhood watch groups with reducing crime and improving cooperation between citizens and officials in communities throughout the nation. Chief Justice Warren Burger defended the positive contribution of such programs when he contrasted them recently with outbreaks of "vigilantism."

"Watch groups have shown what the people can do working together with their local officials," agrees Hyden. "But volunteers are handicapped by limited local resources, and lack of contact with other neighborhoods that have already solved similar problems."

The NWA clearinghouse will provide members and community minded organizations and firms with crime prevention materials, information exchange and other problem-solving services. A membership campaign is underway to identify existing watch groups that need information and assistance, as well as encourage new neighborhood projects.

Although NWA is recently formed and dependent on dues and contributions, Hyden hopes to focus public awareness quickly.

Citizens interested or involved in crime prevention efforts may obtain information from National Neighborhood Watch Association, Post Office Box 17400, Washington, D.C. 20041, or by calling (703) 471-0404.

Interest On NSLI Loans Is Increased

Annual interest rate charged by the Veterans Administration (VA) on National Service Life Insurance (NSLI) policy loans has been increased to 11 per cent, it was announced recently.

NSLI coverage was provided military service personnel on active duty from October 8, 1940, through April 24, 1951. Veterans who converted this World War II coverage to a permanent plan may obtain loans up to 94 per cent of the cash value of their individual policy. In fiscal year 1980, the VA made about 96,000 loans on NSLI policies.

The change, which became effective July 29, does not affect the loan interest rate on United States Government Life Insurance (USGLI) policies, VA pointed out. Interest rates on USGLI policies, which were extended to military personnel who served between May 1919 and April 1951, are set by law.

The loan interest rate on NSLI policies was increased to five per cent in 1971. Since that time, other investments made for the insurance trust funds have yielded increasingly higher earnings and dividends for policy holders. Increased interest rate will permit earnings on policy loans to become comparable with other investments, the agency said.

Steps To Save Elm Trees Suggested By Entomologist

What can you do to save your elm trees when Dutch elm disease shows up in your neighborhood: There are several steps you can take, according to William Phillipsen, University of Minnesota extension entomologist.

The first step is to inspect your elms daily. "Inspection of your trees should become as much a part of your daily routine as brushing your teeth," Phillipsen said. Look for wilting, curling, yellowing or browning of the leaves near the top of the tree. The wood beneath the bark becomes stained with brown or gray-to-blue streaks when the disease is present. It is important to detect these symptoms early because the disease can spread rapidly, killing the tree and infecting nearby elms, Phillipsen said. "Speed" is the key word, Phillipsen noted, especially if you plan to prune the affected branches.

Therapeutic pruning is the removal of infected protions of an elm in an attempt to save the tree. If five per cent or less of the tree's crown has wilted and eight to ten feet of unstained healthy wood (with no streaking beneath the bark) can be removed below the stained portion, therapeutic pruning will usually save the tree. Ideally, the limb should be pruned the same day that the wilting is detected. If the tree has been infected through root grafts rather than via beetles, pruning will not work. Beetle infections usually start at the top of the tree and spread downward; root-graft infections spread from the roots up.

You can protect your tree from infections transmitted through the roots by disrupting the root connections between your healthy tree and nearby diseased elms. ("Nearby" includes any elm tree that is within 40 feet of another elm.) Root graft disruption will not work if the disease fungus has already moved into the tree through the roots of a connecting diseased tree. You can tell if a tree is already infected via the roots by peeling back the bark near the base of the tree and looking for the tell-tale streaking. Root graft disruption can be done by machines that dig a trench four or five feet deep around the infected tree or by using the chemical soil sterilant Vapam.

Another way to protect healthy elms is by injecting them with fungicides, but it must be done properly. Because of the difficulty and the expense, university specialists recommend that injection be considered only for highly valued elms. Details on the injection method are available in Agricultural Extension Service Folder 504, "How to Inject Elms with Systemic Fungicides".

Injection can also save elms that are already infected, but only if the wilt occurs in less than five to 10 per cent of the crown and the symptoms appeared after July 1. If the symptoms appeared before July 1, then the disease is probably too well established to save the tree. Injection cannot save trees infected via root grafts. Injection should be followed by therapeutic pruning.

If the disease has already spread too far to save your tree, it is important to remove the tree immediately to prevent the spread of the disease to other trees either by root grafts or by elm bark beetles.

All of the above efforts to save your elms may be worthless if you don't follow through on one of the most important steps — disposal of the dead elm wood. The beetles that spread the disease lay their eggs under the bark of dead and dying elm wood. Therefore, if you want to use the downed elm for firewood, it is essential to remove the bark. All elm stumps should be ground out or "debarked." Any dead elm wood with bark attached must be destroyed. Otherwise, the beetles will be back in even greater numbers next year to once again threaten your elms.

There are limits to what individuals can do to protect their elms, Phillipsen pointed out. Efforts to control Dutch Elm disease must be done throughout the community. Notify your community forester of any diseased elms or dead elm wood (including firewood) that you see. By doing so, you'll be helping to protect all the elms in your community, including your own.

Fight Against Elm Disease Is Delay Action

no cost. Diseased trees on private property are the responsibility of the landowner. If not removed within 20 days the city will remove them and bill the property owner directly. Unpaid bills could be added onto the property owners' taxes.

Average cost of removing a tree has been running about $100, according to Johnson. He noted that individual figures had ranged between $25 and $300 depending on the tree and who was doing the job. Private property owners may hire anyone they want to remove trees, but all tree removers contracting with the city must have a license, according to the new city ordinance published elsewhere in this paper. Johnson urged that people be wary of contractors they don't know anything about.

What can private citizens do to help control the disease? "Call us," says Johnson. "We're willing to work with homeowners." He adds that he also is willing to answer questions on any kind of trees. While he doesn't have a degree, he says he attends various classes every year and does a lot of reading to maintain his state certification. "If I don't know the answers I'll try to find them," he said. Also, reporting diseased trees so that they can be identified and disposed of is important.

Sanitation measures are the key to managing the disease. Removal of beetle breeding sites and sources of the disease fungus are essential. Johnson points out that a piece of elm branch three and one-half inches in diameter and 22½ inches long could produce up to 1,800 beetles. An infested tree left standing could produce hundreds of thousands, each capable of flying several miles to feed.

He notes that elm firewood must be debarked or burned prior to April 1 to prevent emergence of adult elm beetles in the spring. He and his crews inspect firewood piles in the city each winter, and notify property owners of the requirement. Firewood not taken care of after notification is confiscated.

What about the future? Is there hope: Fungicides have been developed which slow the progress of the disease within the tree. Treatment, at present, is very involved and not very practical, Johnson said, estimating it would cost about $100 per tree and would have to be repeated annually.

Hybrid elms have been developed which are more resistant to the disease, but they lack the winter hardiness and beauty of the American elm. Besides that, they are slow growing.

Johnson claims the best alternative is to plant a variety of tree species, other than elm. By avoiding a monoculture, we can avoid future disasters such as Dutch elm disease. He says that as a "rule of thumb" they are planting only one tree for every two removed. This is to avoid the problem of disease spreading through root grafts when too close together.

Johnson says the city's new ordinance is "a step in the right direction." Its intent is to give the city control over all boulevard trees. Permits are required for planting there, and species allowed and distances from sidewalks, curbs and other trees are dictated. Trees planted before the ordinance was adopted will be "grandfathered in."

Getting people aware of the problem is a big part of the battle, according to Johnson. "Just tell people to call me if they have any questions," he says. "We want to avoid going through this again."

Dear Readers,
The good things we do for the benefit of our family and fellowman, for our church and community, may seem comparatively small, but they can contribute to large and effective results. Such contributing and constructive efforts gives us a satisfying life in our twilight years.

Respectfully,

State Agency Studies Many Energy Forms

can convert it into fuels through a process like gasification, where you simply heat it up very rapidly using a small amount of air. What that does is form a lot of gas and tar and you end up with a product very much like natural gas which you can put into a pipeline, and a liquid product very much like crude oil that can be put into a refinery.

"By changing the temperature and pressure conditions, you can change the balance of the 'gas and oil'. You can also create a dry fuel out of the product through pelletizing or making it into logs for burning. The tar created in the gasification process would make a very good binder for pelletizing. With cattails, which have a lot of starch and sugar, it is possible to ferment them directly into alcohol. Cattails have about 60 per cent starch and sugar."

Visness said the energy agency is more sure of the conversion technologies than of the resource use. "We know the process works," he said, "and biomass gasification is being extensively studied in other places, so we don't feel any pressure to go on with a major research program in that area. We know you can ferment cattails to alcohol. In concentrating on the resource rather than the machinery," he added, "it fits into the Minnesota agricultural model. We have always concentrated on production."

Major discussion is expected on land use when biomass is closer to becoming a reality as an energy source. "I'm sure there will be those people who will say land deserves to be kept in its natural state . . . period," Visness said. "I'm sure there will be other people who say we need the maximum amount of development and jobs.

"I think, if we put it into perspective, that if we put a million acres of that 18 million acres of peat and poorly drained mineral soils into biomass production, the impact on Minnesota's energy situation would be very, very large.

"What is very important is the close-in economic potential. If we could produce biomass energy at about the same cost as we pay for Canadian natural gas in Minnesota, and it looks like we can produce energy at about that price, then any energy production facility that we have would be a direct trade-off against the purchase of Canadian natural gas.

"Such a plant would require biomass from about 50,000 to 75,000 acres of land and produce revenue of about $180 million. That's $180 million more that we could keep in Minnesota. Even a small plant is a high stakes game. The question that has to be asked is, how much are we willing to invest in research right now to reap those potential benefits later?

Biomass use in energy production is also important from an environmental aspect, Visness points out. When fossil fuel is burned, it consumes 60 million years' accumulation of the product and we're changing the balance of our world, he says.

It is clear from everybody's data, Visness adds, that this nation will never be able to produce all the oil it requires for its own needs. Anything that Minnesota can do to minimize imports of oil for energy helps Minnesota directly and the nation as a whole. "We're not talking about taking money away from Texans who are selling us oil," he said, "we're talking about our dependence on oil coming to use at high prices and unstable supply from beyond our shores."

How important is alternative energy: Analysts and economists in the energy agency wrote the following in the agency's energy policy and conservation biennial report:

"Over the next five years, rapidly rising prices and in-place conservation programs are projected to stabilize energy demands. The baseline supply projections will be sufficient to meet these lowered demands only through 1985. After that date, a widening energy gap is projected to develop as higher prices and in-place conservation programs do not retard energy demand as much as continued economic growth stimulates it. In the face of declining natural gas and oil supplies, a shortage will occur."

The report goes on to note that rapidly rising prices will reduce purchasing power and that economic growth will be retarded. Industrial plants will experience periodic shutdowns. The energy shortfall would mean that new employment opportunities and population growth would cease. It appears that the mid 1980's would be the upper limit of industrial growth which traditional energy sources could support.

"These projections show the danger of relying exclusively on traditional fuel sources in the future," the report continues. "Alternative energy sources and more efficient use of energy can mitigate the serious economic effects of diverging supply and demand."

"Clearly, when we look at the alternative energy resources," Visness affirms, "the best opportunity for special energy crops is the biomass area. That is clearly Minnesota's ace in the hole.

"And we're not doing this because it's stylish or anti-utility or anti-oil company," he said. "There's nothing negative about it. We're doing it because it appears to make good economic sense. It seems to be good for the state and good for individuals. We want to let people know how good the research is."

Read Wednesday's Times for an article on the University of Minnesota's role in the biomass study.

GULLY . . .

Alice Forsberg had a noon luncheon for her cousin Barbro from Sweden who was here visiting with the Bergman families. Other guests were Marie Kellberg from Anandale, Mr. and Mrs. Elin Bergman, Mrs. Gene Peterson of Bagley, Elaine Bergman of McIntosh and daughter Julie from Crookston and Sanna Brovold.

Dennis Hangaard of St. Petersburg, Fla. spent Tuesday to Saturday at the Curtis Hangaard home. They also went up to Canada when he was here.

Plates Add Personality To Automobiles

Vanity license plates for cars show that motorists continue to enjoy their vehicles, says the Automotive Information Council (AIC).

Many of them give the profession of the owner, some give expressions of philosphy and some are just plain humorous.

In addition to vanity plates bought through state systems, some states have dropped the requirement for a front plate and private companies are selling customized slogans and symbols for that location. College slogans and first names have become highly popular.

In the job category, it's not difficult to guess the professions of DOC, LAW, DO HAIR, COACH, PULLEM, TEACH, NEWS, I INSURE, CPA.

The deity receives its share of attention with BAPTIST, GODSMAN, IM SAVED, HEAVEN, SEEK GOD and PRAY.

Love isn't forgotten in the tag slogans with LOVE, LUV, ILUVU, LUVU2.

But at the other end of the sentiment scale comes NUTS 2U, NUTS 2U2, UBUGME, GET LOST.

Some give warnings to other motorists: SLODOWN, TOO FAST, UR2NEAR, DONT HIT, while others — such as VROOM, SPEED — seem to provide a warning of macho.

Some friendly sorts came up with HI YAWL, HELLO, SMILE, LAUGH while another showed his pastime with ZZZZZZ.

State vehicle officials report they receive many requests for vulgar, even obscene, slogans but they get turned down.

But the officials, and those who make the custom tags, feel it's all in fun by those who like to personalize their automobiles, says AIC.

New Zealand Agreement Upsets Farmers

Three Farmers Union leaders from Minnesota and Wisconsin have expressed shock and anger upon learning that, not only will the recent agreement to sell surplus U.S. butter to New Zealand end up costing the dairy price support program $77 million in lost income, but that a provision in the agreement prohibits American farmers from exporting any butter until July, 1982 without prior approval of the New Zealand dairy board.

Minnesota Farmers Union president Cy Carpenter, Wisconsin Farmers Union president Leland Mulder and Farmers Union milk marketing president Stewart Huber called upon Sens. Rudy Boschwitz, Dave Durenberger, William Proxmire and Robert Kasten to conduct an immediate investigation of the provisions of the New Zealand butter agreement. They charged the agreement, "is an unbelieveable decision by the Reagan administration to put control of U.S. dairy policy in the hands of a foreign country."

"In effect, this decision constitutes an embargo on further export sales of American butter, regardless of how badly needed it may be or how high a price buyers might be willing to pay," the farm leaders said.

The Farmers Union leaders expressed concern about the political impact and motivation of the agreement.

"On one hand the Reagan administration has threatened to veto any farm bill that doesn't reduce current government held stockpiles. It is pushing a bill in Congress that would reduce milk price supports to the lowest level in more than 30 years, yet at the same time it has signed an agreement that ensures a 220 million pound surplus for at least a year. This will leave farmers with no foreign market, depressed milk prices, and very conveniently for the Reagan administration, a surplus that is ensured well beyond the writing of the 1981 Farm Bill," the presidents said.

Secretary of Agriculture John Block announced recently that the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) had signed an agreement to sell the New Zealand dairy board 220 million pounds, out of the current 440 million pounds, of government owned butter stocks over a period from Sept. 1, 1981 to June 30, 1982 at a price of 70 cents a pound.

Several weeks ago USDA considered selling half of the butter stocks to private dealers for the going price of $1.05. Secretary of state Alexander Haig vetoed that deal saying the butter might be resold to the Soviet Union and be "sending them the wrong signal."

The 35 cents a pound loss on the 220 million pound butter sale totals up to $77 million in added costs for the dairy price support program.

A much publicized provision of the New Zealand sale, announced in a USDA news release, required that the U.S. butter could not be resold to the Soviets. But, USDA officials have since admitted that nothing will prevent the New Zealand board from selling their own butter to the Russians and replacing other market needs with their U.S. purchases, or from reselling it to other dealers who, in turn, could sell it to the Soviets.

However, the USDA news release failed to mention "Section C" in the New Zealand agreement which, according to Foreign Agriculture Service officials, states "Except for official aid or for restricted welfare uses, the (U.S.) Commodity Credit Corporation agrees not to sell for export any butter until July, 1982, unless approved by the New Zealand dairy board."

Noting that Boschwitz expressed approval that "the administration is reacting in a positive way," Carpenter said he hoped the Senate agriculture foreign trade subcommittee chairman would "take a more in-depth look at the agreement to make sure the interests of American dairy farmers aren't being sacrificed for a no-win issue."

Mn/DOT Wins Award For MN. Rideshare

Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) placed first in the 1981 "scoop" award contest presented annually by the public affairs subcommittee of the American association of state highway and transportation officials, reported commissioner Richard P. Braun, who also chaired the governor's task force on ridesharing.

Braun said Mn-DOT received the award for its Minnesota Rideshare program, recognized as the outstanding accomplishment in the field of transportation public affairs during the past year by state or local governmental transportation agencies.

Mn-DOT was recognized for its judgment, creativity and professional skills and use of communications in making this energy savings program a success, Braun said.

Minnesota Rideshare concept and delivery system was initiated by Mn-DOT at the request of Governor Quie and the Minnesota Legislature to meet national energy conservation goals, to promote better utilization of existing roads, through increased vehicle occupancy and to promote citizens savings through use of less gasoline.

The first totally integrated statewide ridesharing program in the country, Minnesota Rideshare created public awareness and response to ride-match availability through Mn-DOT's nine district offices statewide, taking advantage of existing community recognition of Mn-DOT and its transportation staff, and using local telephone numbers.

Minnesota Rideshare was promoted to employers and employees as well as to the public at large through special events, public speaking engagements, news releases, public service announcements and a two-month paid advertising campaign kickoff which generated an additional $224,000 in free advertising during the first three months of the program.

During 1981-82, Minnesota Rideshare will save Minnesotans $18.8 million because less fuel is being used in commuting to work. Rideshare services rendered during the first five months of the program included 177,000 applications distributed, 21,000 rider match lists supplied, 6,100 carpools and 50 vanpools registered, and an unknown but vastly increased number of bus riders, Braun said.

State Fair Features Hot Air Balloons

Hot air balloon events will be featured every day during the 1981 Minnesota State Fair, August 27 through Labor Day, September 7. Events will originate from the Grandstand infield preceding the evening Grandstand shows, weather permitting.

Non-competitive balloon launchings will precede 6 p.m. performances by the Statler Brothers with Brenda Lee September 1, Air Supply with Livingston Taylor September 4 and Eddie Rabbitt with Dottie West September 5. If the event August 30 is not conducted due to weather conditions, one of these dates will be selected as an alternative for the race. Hot air balloons will also be launched following the Bob Barker fun and games show September 7 which will begin at 3 p.m.

Hot air balloon inflations and demonstrations with tethered launchings will precede 8 p.m. performances by Willie Nelson and family August 27 and 28, Rodney Dangerfield August 29, Chuck Mangione August 31, the Doobie Brothers September 2 and Dr. Hook and the Association September 6.

THIEF RIVER FALLS area United Way contributions totaling $2,500 this year will be allocated toward the Falls Delivered Meals program in Thief River Falls. The program, along with the "Kids on the Block" handicapped awareness program, have been added to the list of those elderly, family, handicapped, health and youth services supported by United Way funds. Preparing to deliver the meals from Northwestern hospital are Eleanor Bothman (left) and Sylvia Jaranson. Meals are prepared at Northwestern hospital and are delivered in portable ovens, between noon and 1 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Falls Delivered Meals Helped By United Way

The United Way film this year, which may be used by businesses, clubs or other organizations, will feature Charles Bronson and Jill Ireland. It may be obtained by contacting Sharon Fugleberg, secretary of the United Way board, at 681-6633.

Thief River Falls United Way does post-campaign budgeting, making next year's allocations after the funds are raised. Each agency is reviewed annually and allocations are based on need and services provided to the community and surrounding area. This year, $2,500 will be allocated to Falls Delivered Meals, a non-profit program geared toward providing daily hot nutritious meals for homebound persons in Thief River Falls.

It was in 1979 that the idea for a Falls Delivered Meals program originated — an idea that involved preparing a needs assessment to determine if such a program was needed in this city, and establishing a board of directors and solving financial and legal matters, once it was determined that a need existed.

It was decided that the program would not be government funded so board members began taking private donations to get the program into operation. A $4,000 grant from the city of Thief River Falls, a $500 grant from L. B. Hartz, along with private donations and various other organizations helped get the program underway.

Since the program began last October, 2,628 meals have been delivered to those persons unable to prepare or obtain their own meals. An average of 20 meals per day are delivered voluntarily by members of various church groups, and other local organizations to homebound persons.

Persons may be any age to receive the service. Those eligible include convalescents who might be discharged from the hospital earlier if meals were available in their homes; a person who is physically or emotionally handicapped; a person who feels that he or she cannot purchase and prepare a square meal for himself or herself; a disabled or elderly person living with relatives who may need the service during a family vacation, or perhaps at noon when adults are employed away from home. But persons qualifying are only those who are homebound.

Determination of who can qualify for the program is made by a doctor's referral, the nursing service, a social worker, family or friend, pastor, or the person can refer himself, although most are referred through the social services or through the inter-county nursing service.

Northwestern Hospital prepares all of the meals, and those receiving them are charged $2.50 per meal — if they are able to pay that price. If they can't pay, they are charged a fee according to their income guidelines. However, no one is denied the service because of inability to pay.

Meals prepared at the hospital include those for a diabetic diet, a low sodium diet, a dental soft diet and a regular diet.

Meals are delivered from the hospital in Styrofoam containers in portable ovens between noon and 1 p.m. Monday through Friday except holidays.

Those persons desiring the service must apply for a meal within the program after which a screening committee interviews applicants. Volunteer coordinators of the program send a release form to the person's doctor who verifies that the applicant is homebound, the meal will not jeopardize the person's health, and what type of diet is necessary for the applicant. After this has been done, the doctor sends the statements back to the coordinators for review. If all standards are met, the applicant will begin to receive a meal.

Initial eligibility determination is made by a representative of the social service center, nursing service, or Northwestern social service and an on-going case review, no less than every three months, is done by a coordinator to determine the need for the service.

Nine board of directors for the program include Rev. J. M. Hovland, president; Margaret Race, vice president; Deb Ernst, secretary and social services director at Northwestern hospital; Gordon Reierson, treasurer, and Helena Bolen, assistant treasurer. Other board members include Clarence Isaacson, Libby Jones, Anna Waale and LaRue Johnson, of the inter-county nursing service.

To this day, the program has been successful, according to its members.

"It's a community affair with volunteers working together, Rev. Hovland stated. "The program gets the meals to those who need them."

"The program has grown since it started in October," according to Mae Peterson, coordinator. "In the beginning we had three ovens and were delivering 13 to 14 meals per day, now we're up to five ovens, and we deliver 25 to 27 meals per day so we need five drivers."

"We feel very good about the way the program is taking hold," Hovland commented. "Without the cooperation of volunteers and their concerns for people, we wouldn't have a program."

Study Examines Minnesota's Elderly In '90s

Human resources division of the Minnesota state planning agency has recently completed a study entitled "Minnesota's Elderly in the 1990s," which studies the changing size and composition of the elderly population of Minnesota and analyzes the implications of these changes on state programs and policies.

While focusing on options for state government, the study seeks to encourage long-range planning on the part of policymakers, institutions and organizations so they will be prepared to make necessary changes for the 1990s.

Study has shown that Minnesota's elderly population in the 1990s will be larger, have different characteristics, will be older, more than likely be women, married, remain an overwhelmingly white population and more likely live outside of the Twin Cities metropolitan area.

Number of elderly in Minnesota's labor force is expected to decline, the educational attainment among the elderly will increase dramatically, the economic status of elderly is expected to improve, as will the health status.

There are several implications to these demographic trends for the state. These implications relate to income adequacy for the elderly, pensions, social security, labor force participation, tax policy, energy policy and Medicaid costs for nursing homes and housing. Final report of the study offers several options and recommendations related to these policy areas:

—A state negative tax for the elderly;

—State tax incentives for the creation of individual retirement accounts for employees regardless of whether they are covered by a pension plan;

—State incentive or programs to release home equity to the elderly;

—Expanding home health care and personal care under Medicaid;

—A strong pre-admission screening program for Medicaid and potential Medicaid recipients;

—Reforming DPW Rule 49m the rule for nursing home reimbursement;

—Further consideration of recommendations in the Department of Public Welfare's report on Medicaid Cost Containment, Home Care and proposed changes for Rule 49;

—Continuation and expansion of existing programs that help the poor elderly obtain adequate housing, including cash assistance and construction programs;

—A study of the special problems and needs of the rural elderly.

A final report "Minnesota's Elderly in the 1990s" can be obtained by calling Cynthia Koeck at (612) 296-4851 Minnesota State Planning Agency.

Local Men Get A Second Year Of Scholarship

Tim Remple and Peter Eriksson, Thief River Falls, have been awarded the second year of the prestigious Arthur P. Anderson scholarship to attend the University of North Dakota, Grand Forks.

Anderson scholarship recipients are chosen on the basis of past academic performance and promise of future success, according to Gerald Hamerlik, director of student financial aids at UND.

Arthur P. Anderson was named a UND Founding Fellow in 1970. He was a prominent East Grand Forks farmer, directed the Farmers Cooperative Marketing association there, and died in 1973.

Crops, Soils Day Brings Nearly 600

Four hundred seventy-five persons registered and almost 600 toured the plots at the annual crops and soils day conducted recently at the University of Minnesota, Northwest experiment station in Crookston.

Farmers and interested agriculturalists viewed plots of small grain in the varietal development and evaluation trials under projects headed by Dr. Donald Rasmusson, and Dr. Robert Busch, department of agronomy and plant genetics University of Minnesota, St. Paul. Disease control developments in small grains were discussed by Drs. J. Baumer and Roy Wilcoxson also of St. Paul.

Wild oat and weed control trials in small grain plots showed exceptional results this year with plenty of rainfall, Sunflower and soybean variety development was shown and explained by Dr. Bob Robinson, Minnesota, department of agronomy and plant genetics.

Clinics on the grounds and headquarters of the Northwest Experiment Station were well attended. Entomologists and plant pest specialists examined various samples and pests which farmers brought from their fields. A presentation on alternate fuels for farm engines was presented by Dave Thimsen, agricultural engineer, University of Minnesota, St. Paul, agricultural engineering department. Thimsen's exhibit included a diesel engine which he ran on different fuels.

Tours were threatened briefly by a morning drizzle but clouds lifted and all tours were completed including afternoon specials to sunflower and winter wheat tillage, alfalfa variety and cutting management trials and field bean variety trials.

Simply Not Simple...

By being designated as a potential collection site for hazardous waste material, Thief River Falls has been tossed into the middle of the controversy boiling around establishment of a hazardous waste disposal site for the state. We are not alone, of course.

Editor Bob Cary of the Ely Echo commented on Gov. Quie's statement on the problem in a recent editorial. In part, the editorial stated the following:

"Since all of us are part of the waste disposal problem," Quie said, "it would be preferable if we could all share the burden of solving it. This could be done by placing the disposal site on already publicly-owned land."

"I have always said that we should first consider using public land for a hazardous waste disposal site," Quie continued. "The state owns 5.2 million acres or about 10 per cent of the state's land area. Hopefully part of that land would be a suitable disposal site."

Although Quie says areas with sensitive groundwater aquifiers, lakes, streams, and unsuitable soils, as well as productive farm lands, will be avoided, he does not mention that most of the state's land is in northern Minnesota.

Because most of the state's hazardous waste is generated in the Twin Cities area, the odds indicate that northern Minnesota will become a dump for the Cities. Places that produce poison are spared poison. Out of sight, out of mind.

Also, should public land be used for dumping "private" hazardous waste?

Just because we buy items that result from manufacturing processes with hazardous byproducts doesn't mean we are responsible for those byproducts. Disposal of waste, and where it is disposed of, should be the responsibility of the manufacturer, and it should be watchdogged.

The state shouldn't have to sacrifice land for a dump. If we must pay more for a product, we will only be paying more of the real cost of that product.

By providing manufacturer's with public land for their toxic wastes, we are — in effect — encouraging production of wastes. If the manufacturer was held responsible for all ends of waste disposal, perhaps less waste would be generated.

Quie is right: We are part of the problem, and therefore we are part of the solution. The solution, besides being rooted in conservation, is simply not as simple as coughing up rural public land.

Lacking Realism

There is good reason for Americans to have a concern for their environment and to preserve much of what we have for as long as we can. But we must not let that verve to preserve prevent us from making use of our natural resources in an enlightened way — particularly those resources which are renewable.

It is also important that we utilize the best technology that we have available to provide us with our needs. As the concern for our environment has become popular and various special interest causes come to the fore, it becomes increasingly difficult to sort out what is important and what is not; what is fact and truth or distortion and speculation.

The president of the National Audubon society, Russell W. Peterson, recently pointed out that President Reagan's mandate to straighten out the nation's economy does not include a mandate to undermine the environmental laws of the land. His comments appeared to be directed toward Secretary of Interior James Watt who has been painted as an exploiter of the environment.

Peterson pointed out a Newsweek magazine poll in which a large majority of the respondents said government regulations and requirements to protect the environment are worth the extra costs added to products and services the average person buys. Seventy-five per cent said it is possible to maintain strong economic growth in the United States and still maintain high environmental standards.

It is easy to answer questions in an opinion poll. It is quite another thing to make the system work or to accept in practice what may seem proper in theory. How much extra cost, for instance, is environmental protection worth? How much protection is enough protection. What, indeed, is environmental protection?

Would the power consumers and industrial workers in the east be willing to have their electric rates doubled to pay for installation of equipment which would help prevent acid rain from falling on Minnesota?

Idealism is a nice attitude to have if you can make it work. The Audubon society president points to a Gallup poll in which homeowners were asked to rate which of six major energy sources they preferred. Respondents rated solar energy highest by far, followed by energy conservation. Nuclear power came in last.

Such responses, although idealistic, are devoid of realism. How many of those homeowners who say they prefer solar energy actually derive energy for their homes from the sun? Few, if any. Who knows if such technology will ever exist? Chances are that many of the respondents are using electrical power generated by those consensus-hated but awesomely efficient nuclear plants, or by those smoke-belching coal plants or petroleum-consuming oil-fired plants. Would they trade their comfort and conveniences for cold and dark houses.

Nuclear power may not be perfect, but it works and it can be made to work even better. It is cost efficient and, despite the worries and rantings which arise from time to time, it is relatively safe.

Pollster Louis Harris was quoted as stating that, "The pattern of support for keeping present environmental laws or making them even stricter is significant. Pro-environmental backing is highest among people in the East, in the big cities, among young people, women, blacks, union members, Democrats and liberals."

What he is saying, without realizing it, is that most of the folks who pay lip service to environmental protection are not in a position of having to make it work.

We have been natural resource minded for a long time and we don't back away from that posture for a minute. There are circumstances in which the nation can afford to be preservationist, and there are others in which the welfare of the people may require some environmental losses.

Envinroment is not a static condition. It is subject to change. Webster says it is "all the conditions, circumstances and influences surrounding and affecting the development of an organism or group of organisms". Ghetto blacks are not likely to be eager to preserve their environment. Neither would smog-bound Californians nor Pennsylvanians.

Environmental protection? Of course; but how much and at what cost? Days of wanton exploitation should be gone forever, but a wise use of resources is still prudent.

Priority

There is an awful lot of truth and reason tied up in the following little poen which appeared recently in the Land O'Lakes Mirror:

Take time to smell the lilacs
And feel the warm bright sun.
Take time to look at rainbows
Don't wait 'til work is done.
There'll always be a cobweb
Some fingermarks or rust
Weeds to pull, a lawn to mow
And something gathering dust.
We must remember lilacs
Bloom just once a year
And you can see a rainbow
Only when it's here.

Borrowed Nonsense:

A surgeon and auto mechanic were discussing their work. "You know, Doc," the mechanic said, "my work is a lot like your work. I take a car, open it up, remove and replace parts and use all my skill to make that machine run in top condition." "That's true," the doctor replied, "but I do all my work with the patient's motor running."

Two surgeons were scrubbing up following an operation. "Well, we performed that surgery in the nick of time," one remarked. "That's for sure," the other replied. "In another hour or two he probably would have recovered without it."

Doctor: "Say ah-h-h."
Patient: "I didn't come in for an examination; I came to pay my bill."
Doctor: "Ah-h-h."

The wife was finally learning to drive. "But I don't know what to do," she protested. "Just pretend that I'm driving," the husband said, "and tell yourself what you'd tell me."

"Mate was drunk today," noted the captain in the ship's log. The mate pleaded that the note be stricken, since it was his first and only offense. The captain replied that only truth was written in the log. The next week it was the mate's turn to keep the log. Dutifully he made his first entry: "The captain was sober today."

STAYING IN TOUCH!

Arlan Stangeland

For the first time in 20 years, I'm beginning to feel that the House of Representatives is becoming part of the solution.

Last week's vote to slash personal income tax rates by 25 per cent over the next three years sent a clear message to the American taxpayers that our Representatives are again ready to serve the needs and interests of the people who sent them to Washington.

On no other vote in recent years has the people's voice been heard so clearly.

Less than 48 hours before the Wednesday debate, the House Democratic leadership was confident that it had the votes to defeat the largest tax cut in American history. Speaker Tip O'Neill's predictions were bannered across the front pages of a score of newspapers.

But following the President's address on Monday evening, telephones began to ring in Washington. All through the night, thousands of taxpayers called the White House to support the comprehensive tax-relief program. Congressmen began to receive calls on Tuesday morning.

Our office received nearly 500 messages, even though it was clearly known that I supported the Conable-Hance tax program. Several Democratic Congressmen received over 2,000 calls in a 36-hour period.

Speaker O'Neill's coalition began to crumble and we knew by Wednesday morning that the 25-per cent reduction was probably going to win by a large margin.

The tax-cutting victory was more than just another win for President Reagan. In many ways, it was a personal victory for everyone who pays taxes, hopes for a job, or worries about the future.

For the taxpayers who are spending nearly every penny they earn just to cover the basics, the 25-per cent reduction in tax rates will ease the burden of income taxes which have increased by 177 per cent over the past 10 years.

For individuals who are struggling to make headway against the rising tide of inflation, the bill's "indexing" provision guarantees that inflation will no longer push taxpayers into higher tax brackets when they receive cost-of-living raises. Congress will no longer be able to spend these "windfall profits" earned by government every time inflation goes up.

For the farmer or small businessman, the bill's elimination of the inheritance tax on all but the largest estates guarantees that the family farm or business will not be sold out from under the feet of his widow or children to pay the taxes when he passes on.

For the married couple struggling to keep a roof over their heads and clothes on their children, the bill's elimination of the "marriage penalty" tax will put young families on an equal tax footing with unmarried individuals.

For the small savers and investors, the bill's extension of the $200-$400 tax exemption means that individuals will still be able to earn $200 from interest or dividends tax-free. Married couple will be able to exempt the first $400 they earn from those sources.

And for the seven million Americans who are unemployed, the bill's tax incentives for businesses and investors promise a real chance to find work as the economy recovers and America gets back on the job.

Tax-relief is on the way for all Americans because you spoke up. And for once, Congress listened. Your calls and telegrams made the difference.

We will be facing a number of difficult debates when we return to Washington this fall: the condition of the Social Security system, the future of the nation's defenses, and the Administration's four-year farm program.

Last week's action showed that Congress is ready to listen. I hope you will continue to express your opinions on those crucial issues this fall.

For if the Representatives continue to listen to their constituents, the House will continue to be part of the solution.

File Highway Use Tax Form By August 31

Owners of most large trucks, truck-tractors, tractor-trailers or buses must file a Federal Use Tax Return for Highway Motor Vehicles by August 31, 1981, the Internal Revenue Service says. Return is filed on Form 2290, available at any IRS office.

Tax year for the Highway Use Tax begins July 1, 1981, and runs through June 30, 1982. Taxpayers who place vehicles in service after July must have Form 2290 filed with the IRS Service Center which services their area by the last day of the month following the month a vehicle is first used on a public highway.

Highway Use Tax applies to single unit trucks weighing 13,000 pounds or more, two-axled truck-tractors weighing 5,500 pounds or more, three or more axles truck-tractors regardless of weight, trucks of 9,000 or more pounds equipped for use in combinations, and buses with a gross weight of more than 26,000 pounds.

Tax is imposed on those vehicles using any public highways, city streets, state roads and interstate highways. Revenue from the tax helps states in financing the Interstate Highway System.

Form 2290 and the free IRS Publication 349, "Federal Highway Use Tax on Trucks, Truck-Tractors and Buses," can be ordered by calling the IRS forms-tax information number listed in the telephone directory.

Many Drivers Unaware Of '80 Safety Law

Driver qualifications, including a mandatory physical examination every two years, are the most frequent violations of legislation requiring the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) to inspect private motor carriers (truckers) for safety compliances, said Mn-DOT commissioner Richard P. Braun.

The 1980 law, passed for safety reasons, affects manufacturers, producers, dealers and distributors transporting their own products in vehicles weighing more than 10,000 G.V.W. pounds. Farmers are exempt from the law when transporting their own commodity and "for-hire" motor carriers were subject to state motor carrier rules and regulations prior to 1980.

Braun said one of the biggest problems Mn-DOT faces in enforcing this law is that many of the private carriers are not aware of it or do not know its requirements.

Law requires Mn-DOT motor transportation representatives to issue citations for violations of driver qualifications, maximum hours of service of drivers and safety of operations and equipment.

"Some of the carriers never had any control as far as safety is concerned until this law was passed," Braun said.

He added that an estimated 24,000 private motor carriers use Minnesota highways. "That's nine times the number of 'for-hire' vehicles," Braun said. "We want this law to reduce significantly some common hazards to all motorists."

Braun explained that soon after the law was passed Mn-DOT's office of rates and regulations embarked on an extensive educational campaign to let private carriers know they were subject to the new safety regulations.

"Our motor transportation representatives met with truckers all over the state to explain the law," he said, "and we had good media coverage on the requirements.

"In addition, we had 10,000 copies of a news release on the subject printed for distribution to the carriers, distribution at weigh stations, truck stations and by the Minnesota state patrol," Braun said, "so it's frustrating to find drivers unaware of the requirements."

State's Egg Production Up; US Total Down

Minnesota's 9.7 million layers produced 193 million eggs in June 1981, up eight per cent from last year's 178 million. Layer numbers were up seven per cent from the previous year. Egg production per 100 layers during the month was 1,985 eggs compared with 1,961 a year ago.

Minnesota's hatcheries produced 1.9 million egg-type chicks during June, down 11 per cent from the June 1980 hatch. July 1, 1981 eggs in incubators totaled 1.0 million eggs, down 50 per cent from the 1980 level.

Minnesota broiler-type hatchings in June of 2.2 million chicks were up seven per cent from the previous year. The 1.7 million eggs in incubators on July 1, 1981 were up 23 per cent from the 1980 level.

The nation's laying flocks produced 5.56 billion eggs during June, down slightly from a year ago. Layer numbers during June averaged 279 million, down slightly from the 280 million of the previous year. Egg production per 100 layers during the month was 1,991 compared with 1,995 last year.

Egg-type chicks hatched in the U.S. during June totaled 39.4 million, a seven per cent decline from last year. Eggs in incubators on July 1, 1981 totaled 29.8 million, down 16 per cent from the previous year and 20 per cent below June 1, 1981.

Nationally, the June hatch of 381.9 million broiler-type chicks was three per cent above last year's level. The 310.8 million eggs in incubators on July 1, 1981 were three per cent above last year.

Local Men Finish Army ROTC Training

Paul W. Rondorf, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Rondorf Jr. and Craig L. Molstad, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Molstad, both of Thief River Falls, received practical work in military leadership at the Army ROTC Advanced Camp, Fort Lewis, WA.

The six-week training includes instruction in first aid, communications, marksmanship, weapons systems, defensive and offensive tactics, reconnaissance techniques and other areas.

Most cadets fulfill their advanced camp requirement during the summer between their junior and senior years in college. The successful completion of the advanced camp and graduation from their respective college or university will result in the student's being commissioned a second lieutenant in the active army or the U.S. army reserve or national guard.

Rondorf is a student at the University of North Dakota, Grand Forks and Molstad is a student at North Dakota state university at Fargo.

Another Look At Battering Is Presented

by Kathleen Ann Kolden

"Any minor who is married or has a child or any adult woman in a relationship with a man who physically abuses or threatens to abuse her to the point where she changes her behavior in order to attempt to avoid further abuse can be defined as a battered woman." This statement was taken from a manual written and distributed by the Minnesota state department of corrections.

In keeping with the goal of providing community education, the Ripley Alliance for Battered Women of Thief River Falls, in agreement with local newspapers in Region 1, will present a series of six articles dealing with the crime of battering.

Battered women advocates have made great strides in meeting the needs of violent families. The plight of battered women has surfaced as an issue for public attention in communities throughout the country. Most information available on the issue has been provided by newspapers and popular magazines. National radio and television programs have featured the problem and several books have been written on the issue.

With all that has been done the facts remain, the battered woman is the victim of a violent crime. She is threatened, attacked and beaten within the "privacy and comfort" of her own home, often within view of her children, and sometimes within close proximity to her neighbors and friends. She is assaulted by the man with whom she lives and upon whom she depends for emotional support and economic security.

She lives in a physically dangerous situation, fearful for her safety and possibly her life. Yet, she is ashamed to admit "failure", feeling that she is somehow to blame for his violent words and blows. Often overwhelmed by guilt and fear she is physically and psychologically beaten to the point of hopelessness and despair.

The problem of battering is hidden, and extremely complex. Not only is it an extension of the broader community issues of violence and sexism, but it is also associated with a number of other factors. Foremost among these is the use of alcohol. The problem of battering transcends all lines of race, age, income and education.

In spite of everything being done battering is "alive and well" in northwestern Minnesota. The Ripley shelter housed 49 women and 73 children from July 1980 to July 1981.

In the city of Thief River Falls the police received 107 "family trouble" calls in 1980. The exact number of calls that involved battering were not available t this time. However, 26 battered women reports in connection with assaults were filed.

Future articles will focus on "Why Men Batter", "Why Women Stay", "The Effects of Battering on Children" and "Alternatives for the Violent Family".

Learning the facts about battered women and putting an end to the myths surrounding the issue is something all persons can do, whether family violence has touched their lives or not. Understanding the problem is the key to breaking the cycle of abuse that perpetuates in our families.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

This is a memo to the party who has been stealing vegetables out of my garden after dark. I'm sure you are the one who did the same thing last year.

You must be sick, but not as sick as you will be if you don't wash those vegetables thoroughly as they have all been sprayed.

If you don't heed this warning, all I can say is tough luck.

Answers from the Bible by Pastor Don Peres

Q. Pastor Don, the Bible teaches in Proverbs 22:6, that we as parents are to train up our children in the way he should go: and when he is old, he will not depart from it. How do, we as parents accomplish this? What values should be emphasized?

A. It is my strong belief that a child should be exposed to careful spiritual training from several sources, but primarily from the life style of the parents as well as from the word of God.

Listed below is a checklist for Spiritual Training, a set of targets at which to aim, and a foundation on which to build.

Concept I: Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, soul, and mind. Matthew 22:37

1. Is your child learning the love of God through the love, tenderness, and mercy of his parents? (very important)
2. Is he learning to talk about the Lord, and to include Him in his thoughts and plans?
3. Is he learning to turn to the Lord for help whenever he is frightened, or anxious or lonely?
4. Is he learning to read the Bible?
5. Is he learning to pray?
6. Is he learning the meaning of faith and trust?
7. Is he learning the joy of the Christian's way of life?

Concept II: Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. Matthew 22:39.

1. Is he learning to understand and empathize with the feelings of others?
2. Is he learning not to be selfish and demanding?
3. Is he learning to share?
4. Is he learning not to gossip and criticize others?
5. Is he learning to accept himself?

Concept III: Fear God, and keep his commandments: for this is the whole duty of man. Ecclesiastes 12:13

1. Is he learning to be truthful and honest?
2. Is he learning to keep the Lord's Day holy?
3. Is he learning to give a portion of his allowance to God?
4. Is he learning to obey his parents as preparation for obeying God?
5. Is he learning the meaning of sin and its consequences?
6. Is he learning the difference between self-worth and egotistical pride?

Many times we as parents are too haphazard about spiritual training for our children. Perhaps we would hit the mark more often if we would clearly recognize the precise target.

If you have any questions that you would like to have answered from the Bible, please write Pastor Don Peres, Box 129, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.

Satisfaction Of SYEP Program Is Expressed

With the completion of the eight-week summer youth employment program (SYEP), many area youths have added not only to their finances, but to their skill and work experience as well. Some 200 young people in Red Lake, Pennington, and East Polk counties worked at various public and private non-profit establishments this summer as participants of the program. Most of the employees completed their work contract during the week ending August 7.

To purport opinions, suggestions and an overall evaluation of the SYEP, a questionnaire was given to a majority of enrollees before they finished the program. A brief summary of the questionnaires indicates that the youths were well-satisfied with their jobs and with the program format.

Many questions focused on the career education component. Nearly all who responded to the questions said the career workshops made them more aware of the variety of occupations available to them, and almost as many said they are more aware of their own career interests as a result of the workshops.

Some of the most interesting and helpful of all the scheduled field trips were those of the Superwood factory and the Bemidji State University campus in Bemidji and the Westward Ho restaurant-motel and the KTHI television station in Grand Forks.

College and military representatives received good ratings on the questionnaire, as well as the interest inventory and the session on housing and tenants' rights which were part of the UMC career center workshop.

On the actual worksite, responses indicated that the youths had adequate work, supervision and counseling, and very few felt the need for more of any of these. Although several suggested an increase in both hours and wages, the majority seemed satisfied. One factor which signifies to some degree the success of the program followed from an inquiry of the workers as to whether they would participate again, had they the opportunity. Out of 125 responses, 114 said they would like to be employed on the summer youth program again, nine indicated they would not, and two were undecided.

Employees also individually mentioned the single most important benefit of the program, which included answers such as job experience, money, working with and meeting people, career awareness, accepting responsibility, information on post-high school options, learning a skill and field trips.

Region I wrap-up meeting was conducted to complete the summer program. In attendance at the meeting were directors, counselors, outreach and summer staff members of inter-county community council, Tri-valley opportunity council and Northwest community action, and guest representatives from other youth and-or employment agencies.

Discussed at the meeting was the 1981 program format, and suggestions were compiled to facilitate improvement in next year's program. It was unanimously decided that the 1981 SYEP operated smoothly.

Shortly after the school year begins, two youth employment programs that will run throughout the course of the school year, will get underway. In-school program and the Youth Employment & Training Program (YETP) both provide 10 hours of work per week at federal minimum wage for qualifying students.

One must be a full-time high school student at least 14 years of age who is economically disadvantaged and-or handicapped. Both programs provide work experience and income for the participants, as well as counseling through various agencies and school.

Tentative starting date for the 1981-82 programs is September 8, with applications available the first week of school at the counselor or principal's office of area schools.

National Cystic Fibrosis Week Is Coming Soon

September 20-26 is national Cystic Fibrosis Week. Its purpose is to increase public awareness and understanding of this incurable disease, the number one genetic killer of young people in the U.S.

The gene that causes CF is transmitted by both parents, who may not show any symptoms of the disease. In fact, one of every 20 Americans are symptom-free and undetectable carriers of the cystic fibrosis gene.

The symptoms of cystic fibrosis are similar to other respiratory and digestive disorders. Thus, it is often misdiagnosed and improperly treated. These symptoms include: recurrent wheezing, persisitant coughing, excessive mucus, salty-tasting skin and excessive appetite but poor weight gain.

Twenty-five years ago, children born with cystic fibrosis usually didn't live to school age. Today, thanks to improved diagnostic and treatment procedures, the life expectancy of over half the CF victims has increased to the mid-twenties.

For more information about cystic fibrosis contact the Minnesota chapter of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation at 871-0462 or toll-free 800-582-5245.

Services For Handicapped At MN Fair

Minnesota State Fair will offer a variety of services and facilities for handicapped visitors during the 1981 exposition, August 27 through Labor Day, September 7.

Paved streets and sidewalks, numerous curb cuts and grade level buildings will aid wheelchair travel around the fairgrounds. Rest room facilities equipped with ramps, widened doorways and handrails are located throughout the fairgrounds and all are marked with the international accessibility symbol.

Accessible seating is available for all Grandstand and Coliseum events, and a wheelchair rental service is provided at the child care center on Underwood Street. A limited number of wheelchairs is available, so persons are advised to check availability in advance by calling (612) 642-2305.

Reserved parking for handicapped persons will be provided in a number of areas, including five locations near the east Commonwealth gate. Additional parking will be available near the west Commonwealth gate on Commonwealth Avenue between Randall Avenue and the entrance to Heritage Square. A drop-off point where drivers can discharge handicapped passengers before parking is located on Commonwealth Avenue near the Grandstand.

To make use of the reserved parking areas and the drop-off point, vehicles must be identified by a Minnesota public safety courtesy parking certificate or handicapped owner-operator license plates.

A special feature of the 1981 State Fair will be the International Year of Disabled Persons Expo, conducted by the state council for the handicapped. The expo will include adaptive aids and devices, informational displays and daily performances by disabled entertainers. The expo will be located in the north side of the food show building on Commonwealth Avenue.

Maps with the locations of facilities for the handicapped will be available at all seven State Fair information booths. For more information, contact Minnesota State Fair, St. Paul, Minn. 55108; phone (612) 642-2251.

Fuel Solution For Older Cars Is Offered

With the diminishing supply of premium leaded gasoline due to lagging demand, owners of older pre-catalytic converter cars are asking the Automotive Information Council (AIC) whether either regular leaded or premium unleaded gasoline can be used satisfactorily.

The answer is no, but they can try blending regular leaded gasoline and premium unleaded gasoline in a 50-50 mixture. For example, if the gas tank is nearly empty, half a tank of regular leaded gasoline could be added to half a tank of premium unleaded.

This will give a slightly higher octane level than regular leaded gasoline and should cure the knocking and pinging problem.

Car owners of pre-catalytic converter cars should avoid using unleaded premium gasoline alone. Exhaust valve seats of all older cars requiring leaded gas are not hardened and may wear if there isn't lead in the fuel. Lead deposits act as a lubricant which reduces valve wear.

Since the mid-1970s car manufacturers have hardened the valves on cars that burned unleaded gasoline, so valve wear is not a problem in a car designed to run on unleaded fuel.

AIC also notes that burning leaded gasoline in a car designed to burn unleaded will damage the catalytic converter, void the car's warranty and cause expensive repair bills.

Only a decade ago premium leaded gasoline represented 43 per cent of all U.S. gasoline sales but now accounts for only about five per cent of sales.

Germ Warfare Used Against Insect Pests

Insects can be real pests. They bite and sting us, often passing on serious diseases, destroy our crops, and as California's Mediterranean fruit fly epidemic demonstrates, they can threaten an entire state's economy. But according to the current issue of Ranger Rick's Nature Magazine, farmers and gardeners are fighting back without using harmful pesticides by "trying to give diseases to insects."

Many growers use a sort of "germ warfare" to rid their crops and gardens of harmful insects. Their weapons are various micro-organisms such as bacteria, viruses, protozoa, and fungi. The environmental advantage to these micro-organisms is that they are "species specific," meaning they do their dirty work on only one insect species. Unlike pesticides, they don't wipe out all the bugs in their path, some of which may be beneficial to the gardener.

The National Wildlife Federation monthly publication for young people notes that a strain of bacteria called milky spore disease is often used to kill Japanese beetles, a common garden pest. Cotton growers also use germ warfare to fight what is probably the most commercially damaging insect, the cotton bollworm. The insects' larvae are buried deep inside the cotton boll, where pesticides can't reach. So nematodes, tiny wormlike organisms usually regarded as pests themselves, are applied to the cotton crop. Carrying with them a bacteria that kills the bollworm larvae, the nematodes consume the dead embryo, leaving the plant intact. Certain bacteria-carrying nematodes are also responsible for leveling such insects as corn borers, cabbageworm larvae, and tobacco budworm larvae.

Unfortunately, some strains of micro-organisms can harm beneficial insects, for as Ranger Rick points out, "just like people, insects can be infected with different kinds of bacteria, viruses, and fungi." While we don't usually notice a bug with a bug, the honeybee can be struck by two serious diseases feared by beekeepers.

"One of the worst diseases bee larvae can get is called foulbrood," says Ranger Rick. The disease is caused by a type of bacterium which kills the honeybee larvae, leaving behind a bad-smelling hive. No cure has been found.

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT
NATURAL GAS
Even though energy costs are going up - experts agree GAS is the customer's best value.
Each gas conversion improves our country's balance of payments. (Each 1,000 gallons of oil reduction at home level can reduce OPEC oil imports by 24 barrels.)
"Admittedly there is a surplus production and surplus oil in storage at the moment. But there is no surplus of oil below ground for the long term. And there is the ever-present possibility of a political upheaval which could remove the aboveground surplus virtually overnight. Consumers worldwide would be well-advised to remember this."

Football Playoff Format

According to a format drafted last winter during a football forum and presented for approval to the Minnesota State High School League, Crookston, East Grand Forks and Thief River Falls, playing as independents this fall following the collapse of the Northwest Athletic Conference, will have a shot at a Class A state football playoff berth based upon results among themselves. The team with the best success in play against each other will be eligible to compete in the playoffs — as long as they have a winning record for all games.

However, with the 1981 openers just two weeks away the three schools haven't yet come up with a plan to break a tie among the three of them if they should all split with each other and finish with identical 1-1 records.

Most logical choice would be to consider overall records, but that puts Thief River Falls at a definite disadvantage since, on paper, the Prowlers' schedule appears much tougher than those facing the Pirates and Green Wave.

Thief River Falls' schedule features games against five Class AA opponents: Grand Forks Red River, Grand Rapids, Moorhead, Bemidji and Fergus Falls, along with Class A foes Detroit Lakes, Staples, East Grand Forks and Crookston.

East Grand Forks plays three Class AA teams in Grand Forks Central, Grand Forks Red River and Fergus Falls, along with Minnesota rivals Breckenridge, Crookston and Thief River Falls and North Dakota foes Rugby, Langdon and Devils Lake.

Crookston, the defending Class A state playoff champion, has two Class AA opponents this fall: Grand Forks Central and Fergus Falls, along with West Fargo, Park Rapids, Hillsboro, Barnesville, East Grand Forks and Thief River Falls. The Pirates also have an open date, unable to fill out a nine-game schedule after dropping former NWAC rival Bemidji.

The Thief River Falls - East Grand Forks - Crookston representative would be paired against the Sea Range Conference champion in the first round of the 1981 Class A state playoffs. Sea Range line-up includes Aurora-Hoyt Lakes, Eveleth, Greenway-Coleraine, Hermantown, International Falls, Proctor, Silver Bay, Two Harbors and Virginia.

In the same Group I bracket for the 15-team playoffs would be the Mid-State Conference champion vs. The Heart O' Lakes Conference winner. Mid-State teams include Aitkin, Crosby-Ironton, Detroit Lakes, Park Rapids, Staples and Wadena. Heart O' Lakes members are Barnesville, Breckenridge, Frazee, Pelican Rapids and Perham.

Group II Class A state playoff teams include the conference champions from the Central Gopher, West Central, Suburban West and Wright County. Group III covers the Don Bosco, Tri Metro and Rum River conferences, with a first round bye thrown in. Group IV represents conference winners from the Hiawatha, South Central and Southwest, along with LaCrescent, a school that competes in a Wisconsin conference and must win that league title to make an appearance in the MSHSL playoffs.

Miscellaneous

+New athletic facilities on the University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC) campus will be dedicated Saturday, September 19, when the Trojans, led by former Lincoln high school coach Jim Sims, face area rival Northland community college in a 1:30 p.m. MJCAA Northern Division football game.

+Sixty-three players, the largest turnout in recent years, reported to head coach Gary Berg for the start of high school football practice at East Grand Forks. Seventeen lettermen — 14 of them seniors — are back from last year's 6-3 Green Wave team.

+Scott Sabo of Thief River Falls, who pitched amateur baseball this summer for the Crookston Blues, was a tournament addition to the East Grand Forks Bucs roster and the lefthander helped East Grand Forks to earn a berth in the 1981 Minnesota state amateur baseball tournament August 28-30 at Belle Plaine and Jordan, two neighboring southern Minnesota communities.

U.S. Olympic Training Center In Colorado Springs . . .

Cuppett, Bjorkman Take Part In Olympic Program

by Mike Lundgren,
Times Sports Editor

At their age level it's not likely to happen, but if upon returning to school this fall Marchelle Cuppett and Karl Bjorkman are given an assignment to write an essay on "How I Spent My Summer Vacation," they would have an opportunity for a unique feature: "How I Spent My Summer Vacation Trying Out For the United States Olympic Team."

Actually they weren't really trying to become Olympians or world-class competitors, but Cuppett and Bjorkman were both involved in the preliminary stages of the United States Olympic program this summer when they were selected to attend the United States Olympic Committee's Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs, Colo.

Cuppett, a 21-year-old senior at the University of North Dakota, competed in the field hockey portion of the Training Center program, while Bjorkman, a 17-year-old senior at Lincoln high school, was involved in the trapshooting part of it.

Under the sponsorship of the United States Olympic Committee, the 34-acre Olympic Training Center has housed some 20,000 athletes of all ages and all levels of ability in its first four years.

To attend the Training Center hardly means the participants will be future Olympians. Less than ten per cent of the thousands of athletes who take part in the program are considered elite or world class. Most fall within the category of athletes with potential, according to former Olympic Gold Medal winner Bob Mathias, the director of the Olympic Training Center who says, "No youngster with the drive, ambition and determination should be denied the opportunity to reach out for the Olympic dream. Here at the Colorado Springs Olympic Training Center, athletes from all across the country are taking part in a wide variety of programs ranging from classroom instruction to sophisticated sports medicine analysis and evaluation."

Cuppett and Bjorkman both fall into that category — athletes with potential. Both are relatively new to their sports; Cuppett has been playing field hockey for just three years and Bjorkman has been shooting registered trap for only two years.

Bjorkman, selected through an application submitted to the National Rifle Association (NRA), was one of 30 trapshooters at the July 13-24 Training Center. Budget-wise limited to between 50-to-75 targets per week when he's home, Bjorkman found himself shooting 125 targets per day at Colorado Springs. Most of the other competitors were more than used to shooting that many rounds.

"I shot well out there," reported Bjorkman. In fact, he said, his shooting at the Training Center surpassed his efforts here. "The people were really great; there were no big super jock-types who wouldn't talk to you. It was a good experience."

Cuppett was one of 80 field hockey players on hand at the Training Center July 5-12. Rival college coaches urged the University of North Dakota goalie to apply for the program, and she was accepted.

She had an outstanding season with the Sioux last fall, playing every minute of every game, finishing with a 28-7 record, a 1.00 goals-against average and had 16 shutouts in leading North Dakota to its first-ever AIAW Division II national tournament where the Sioux finished sixth.

But by her own admission she wasn't at the top of her game at Colorado Springs.

"Where I was hurting was the lack of having had someone shooting at me during the summer," said Cuppett. "My timing was off. I think I would have done a lot better if it would have been held at a different time."

Still, she enjoyed her visit. "I think it's an excellent idea," she said about the Training Center concept. "I definitely benefited from it. It allows people to participate with top level competition."

Cuppett, a tennis, basketball and track team standout in high school, never played field hockey until she got to Grand Forks. "I liked track, I liked to run, and I knew there was a lot of running in field hockey, so I thought I'd like to play it." Ironically, she ended up in goal. "It's a very difficult game to learn," she admitted, "and I found out I did a better job stopping the ball than I did hitting it."

She expects the Sioux to have another strong season in 1981. "We should be good," she promised. "I think we'll have an excellent chance," she said about returning to the national tournament, and maybe even having a shot at winning it."

Cuppett and the Sioux begin their 1981 season Sept. 11-12 with the Can-Am tournament in Grand Forks. Games, played on an intramural field on the corner of No. Columbia Road and Sixth Ave. some two blocks off campus, feature free admission.

Marchelle is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Cuppett. Karl is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Bjorkman.

PUTTING FROM HIS low crouch, Alex Easton watched the ball roll toward the cup Sunday as he played Marv Carlson for consolation honors in the championship flight of the annual Thief River Falls men's city golf tournament at the Thief River Country Club. Easton lost 3-and-2.

Beats Jerry Johnson In Sunday's Finals . . .

Jay Moum Wins Sixth City Golf Tournament

Jay Moum, who has won just about every shortstop tournament in northwestern Minnesota this summer, continued his winning habit Sunday by beating Jerry Johnson 2-and-1 in the 18-hole finals of the 1981 Thief River Falls men's city golf tournament at the Thief River Country Club.

For Moum, who was 2-up after the first trip around the nine-hole course yesterday, it was his third straight city tournament championship, his fourth in the past five years and his sixth overall. He won previous titles in 1971 and 1972, then triumphed in 1977 before stringing together his current 1979-80-81 championship reign.

Only Vic Jung, who won seven titles over an eight-year span from 1946 to 1953, has won more city tournaments than Moum.

Marv Carlson defeated Alex Easton 3-and-2 yesterday to win the consolation title in the championship flight foursome finals.

Eighteen-hole finals of the president's flight — designed for first round losers in the 15-player championship flight, teed off before the championship flight Sunday, with Jim Olson beating Tom Williams 3-and-2 for the title and Jim Geatz defeating Joel Carlson by the same for consolation honors.

Flight play results yesterday included:

First flight — 1. Dick Tyler; 2. Wayne Krueger; consolation champion Al Buhl.

Second flight — 1. Terry Gere; 2. Curt Geatz; consolation champion Dean Anderson.

Third flight — 1. Art Welter; 2. Larry Lee; consolation champion Elton Cummings.

Fourth flight — 1. Bob Flynn; 2. Harold Storhaug; consolation champion Myrle Carlson.

Fifth flight — 1. Dave Woodward; 2. Chuck Samuelson; consolation champion Don Broekemeier.

Overcast skies and high humidity greeted the golfers yesterday. Light rain fell on the championship and president's flight competitors on their second nine.

Moum, who received a first round tournament bye as the defending champion, defeated Marv Carlson and Bob Fitzgerald to reach Sunday's finals. Johnson, meanwhile, advanced with wins over Stan Sjoberg, Easton and Jerry Imgrund.

Olson, after losing a first round match to Carlson, came back to win the president's flight with a first round bye and wins over Dave Geatz and Tom Williams.

RUNNER-UP FINISHER behind Jay Moum, Jerry Johnson was able to dig his ball out of the rough with this shot Sunday in the finals of the 1981 Thief River Falls men's city golf tournament at the Thief River Country Club. Johnson lost to six-time club champion Jay Moum and 2-and-1 in the 18-hole match play finals yesterday.

Tennis Team Opens Fall Sports Season

Lincoln high school tennis team was scheduled to kick off the 1981 Thief River Falls fall sports season today (Monday) with a 1 p.m. match at Roseau. With five returning regulars on hand from 1980, coach Whitey Olson expects the Prowlers to play improved tennis.

Prowlers Have Holes To Fill In The Offensive Backfield

Starters at 11 of the 22 offensive and defensive positions return from a year ago for Lincoln high school head football coach John Schmitz, but none of them are in the offensive backfield. Those were the immediate observations as Schmitz worked with a squad of 60-to-65 players during the initial first-week conditioning drills for the Prowlers, who will don full pads today for two weeks of practice leading to their 1981 season opener Friday, September 4, at Grand Forks Red River.

There is experience and relatively good size across the front line on offense, but those ingredients are missing in the backfield where a new quarterback, two halfbacks and a fullback must be found for the wishbone.

Seniors who were starters on offense as juniors when the Prowlers finished 5-4 include tight end Dave Upham, guards Wade Hruby and Rob Jorstad, the 1981 team captain, center Mark Harder and wide receiver Kent Kainz, who is being shifted to a runningback this fall in attempt to fill the void in the backfield.

Hruby, Jorstad and Harder were also starters as linebackers in 1980, with seniors Jim Dillon and Jeff Imgrund holding down starting jobs at defensive end and cornerback, respectively.

Harder could be a key figure both offensively and defensively. He just recently had the cast removed from his wrist that he broke early in the 1980-81 hockey season. He missed virtually the entire hockey season, all of the Prowlers' baseball season and the American Legion baseball season. He was an all-conference center in 1980 and ranked second on the Prowlers' defensive point charts.

Senior Brent Schmitz, who played little as a back-up to now-graduated Scott Wiebolt a year ago, and junior Kerry Wollin appear to be the top quarterback candidates, but sophomores Dave Stimac, Mitch Semanko and Ryan Bakke are also getting a look.

Dillon, senior Todd Anderson and junior Jim Hallamek are being tried at fullback. Two halfbacks will come from seniors Keith Grochow, Rick Langlie, Steve Hoff, Imgrund and Kainz; and juniors Jim Gobell, Jeff Milender, Eric Henderson and Jerry Kertz. In addition, some sophomores may get a shot at one of the runningback spots as practice drills continue.

"We feel the opportunity is there for a good season," explained Schmitz, who is starting his second year as the Prowlers' head coach. "We feel quite optimistic about the season, but we also know that our level of competition is very high; all of our opponents play excellent football."

Thief River Falls' 1981 schedule features five Class AA schools in Grand Forks Red River, Grand Rapids, Moorhead, Bemidji and Fergus Falls, along with Class A foes Detroit Lakes, Staples, East Grand Forks and Crookston, the defending Class A state playoff champion.

Schmitz' coaching staff this fall includes Charlie Cornell and Tim Olson, along with newcomers Ralph Halvorson, a recent Concordia College graduate, and Dave Peterson, a Lincoln alumni. Glen Peters and Bill Poole will coach the Lincoln freshman squad.

Football fans will have an opportunity to view the team Saturday at the eighth annual Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Pigskin Preview. A junior varsity scrimmage will be held at 1 p.m. involving Thief River Falls, Roseau, Warroad and East Grand Forks, with a varsity scrimmage getting underway at 3:30 involving Thief River Falls, Warroad and East Grand Forks. A beef barbecue supper will be served at 5:30 p.m.

Tickets for the Pigskin Preview, priced at $3.50 for adults and $2.50 for students high school age and younger, are available from Dean Hams at Dean's Third Street Barber Shop; Dale Dillon at Paint & Glass Supply; Dennis Bondy at Northern State Bank; Mrs. Jan Semanko at The Jewel Box; and Al Christofferson of the Sports Boosters.

There are 15 returning lettermen on the team — all seniors: Ken Bakke, Eric Bondy, Kevin Brown, Kevin Leach, Jon Ness, Rod Nichols, Dillon, Grochow, Harder, Hruby, Imgrund, Jorstad, Kainz, Schmitz and Upham.

Rest of the candidates include seniors Jon Bolen, Tom Colby, Kent Ellingson, John Helms, Arnold Kazmierczak, Bill Kron, Pete Oppegaard, Roger Stoltman, Paul Waswick, Dennis Cullen, Anderson, Hoff and Langlie; juniors Brett Brandon, Bob Evans, Kevin Kinsman, Randy Naeseth, Jeff Ness, Darren Wiskow, Gobell, Hallamek, Henderson, Kertz, Milender and Wollin; and sophomores Craig Beedy, Bill Benedict, Tim Bottem, Gary Cornell, Brian Garceau, Lee Genereux, Brian Hagemeister, Jeff Hamerlinck, John Hamre, Scott Hesse, Jon Jacobson, Lynn Johnson, Brian Johnston, Scott Jorstad, Brian Kemnitz, Tim Kruse, Dennis Langevin, Allan Ness, Doug Odegaard, Brent Olson, Todd Ortloff, Rick Spong, Steve Wiskow, Steve Nelson, Bakke, Semanko and Stimac.

ONE OF THE best shots of the 1981 Thief River Falls men's city golf tournament completed Sunday at the Thief River Country Club was this long up-hill putt by Marv Carlson that found the cup for an Eagle-2 on No. 5. Carlson defeated Alex Easton 3-and-2 in the championship flight consolation match yesterday.

Deer Hunting Regulations Are Available

Minnesota deer hunters are being urged by the Department of Natural Resources to consult the 1981 big game regulations, currently available from license agents, for details on special area deer hunts.

These hunts limit the number of hunters and are in areas not normally open to deer hunting such as state and county parks and national wildlife refuges.

"It has become necessary to open these areas on a limited basis," said Roger Holmes, DNR wildlife chief, "because the deer herds in these places have increased to the point there they have become a problem to adjacent landowners. The herds have also depleted the vegetation of the park or refuge and harmed their own well-being.

"The special areas are open to hunting with either regular firearms, muzzleloaders or bow and arrow — depending upon which method is most compatible with management objectives for each area."

Procedures for applying for these special area permits differ from those required for antlerless permits, and Holmes emphasized that hunters should pick up a copy of the regulations rather than relying on "word of mouth" information for details.

Muskie, Trout Openers Are Being Changed

Looking ahead to the 1982 seasons, the DNR is planning changes for the trout stream opening day and the muskie opener.

Trout streams in southern Minnesota, which have opened on March 1 since 1975, will open in mid-April in 1982 along with all other inland trout streams. Lake Superior tributaries will remain open year around for trout up to the posted boundary.

Muskie season will not open with other gamefish seasons in mid-May, but will open instead on June 5 — the first Saturday in June, 1982.

Change in the trout season resulted from more than a year of public discussion and several years of scientific study of the impact of the March 1 opener, according to Jerry Kuehn, DNR fisheries chief.

"Many anglers feel the early season fishing depletes the southeastern streams of larger fish before the traditional May-June fishermen have a chance", said Kuehn. "They also believe that the overall increased fishing pressure is detrimental to maintaining better year around fish populations."

"Studies by the DNR confirmed the overharvest of fish in stocked streams," he said, "but the effects were less obvious in the wild trout streams with better habitat. Unfortunately, these waters only make up 50 per cent of the streams in the southeast."

It was concluded that a later season would reduce fishing pressure and restore fishing quality to pre-1975 levels.

Another consideration in moving the season back was the damage caused by anglers to streambanks and parking areas during the spring thaw.

As for muskies, recent fisheries investigations have produced new information on the native or "Mississippi" strain of muskellunge in Minnesota.

The study has shown that native populations of muskellunge in Minnesota are later spawners than previously thought, and are spawning after the present opening date in most years.

In 1979, adult muskellunge in Leech Lake were outfitted with radio-transmitters. The fish were then monitored by tracking them for the following 18 months, which included the 1980 spawning season. In 1980, peak numbers of spawning fish were observed after the mid-May opening date for angling for game fish species.

Same spawning areas used by radio-tagged muskies in 1980 were investigated in 1981 to verify use and calendar period of spawning. Test-netting in 1981 confirmed the late spawning dates observed in 1980.

Additional data from early season catches of muskies from other lakes and rivers in the native muskie range (Mississippi headwaters) has shown that many of these early-caught fish are still spawning.

"The native or 'Mississippi' strain of muskellunge produces over 80 per cent of the state's muskie catch in numbers," said Kuehn, "and all of the large trophy fish. Because of the importance of these fish in the statewide catch, and recognizing the late spawning habits they exhibit, the later opening date will insure that adequate protection is given to the late spawning native fish at a very small sacrifice to the angler."

Sanders Leads Legion Batting, Pitching Stats

Kevin Sanders batted .404 and posted an 8-4 pitching record to lead the team in both categories, according to final 1981 year-end statistics announced by Thief River Falls American Legion baseball coach Nick Drees.

Sanders, who played right field when he wasn't on the mound, collected a team-leading 40 hits in 99 at-bats for his impressive .404 average. He also led the team with 26 runs-batted-in and ranked second with 14 stolen bases. He hit .302 a year ago.

On the mound, the left-handed throwing Sanders pitched 79 and two-thirds innings, giving up 74 hits, walking 58 and striking out 80. Thirty-one of the 43 runs he gave up were earned, giving him a 2.72 earned-run-average.

Jim Hallamek, who started the year as catcher but was later switched to third base, ranked second on the hitting charts with a .350 batting average, getting 35 hits in 100 at-bats.

Two others over the .300 mark were Jeff Milender, a part-time starter who hit .339 with 20 hits in 59 at-bats, and Mark Lundin, who alternated between shortstop and second base while hitting .326 with 30 hits in 92 at-bats, including a team-leading seven doubles and three triples.

Greg Harder led the team by drawing 21 walks and finished second to Sanders in the RBI charts with 22 while batting .276.

Thief River Falls, after batting .293 as a team in 1980, finished with a .261 team average in 1981, but still nearly duplicated last year's 27-14 finish with a 24-14-1 mark that included a Northwest League Sub District playoff championship and a District 9 tournament runner-up finish.

While Sanders was logging the most innings, striking out the most batters and winning the most games, right-hander Delray Ness had a string of outstanding performances in post-season play that hiked his pitching record to 5-4 and lowered his earned-run-average to a nifty 1.48 level. He pitched 61 and two-thirds innings, giving up just 49 hits and walking only 29. Just 13 of the 28 runs off Ness were earned.

Thief River Falls placed second with a 6-2 record behind unbeaten Crookston in the regular season Northwest League standings, sweeping Newfolden 10-0, 9-5; Warroad 9-2, 8-7; and East Grand Forks 4-3, 2-1; while losing both starts to Crookston 8-2, 3-1.

Elsewhere, Thief River Falls had a consolation championship finish in an invitational tournament at New York Mills, losing 7-0 to eventual champion Brainerd but beating Wadena 2-0 and New York Mills 7-5.

The team won three of four starts against Park River 4-3, 8-7, 7-3 before losing 7-6; took three of four against Grafton, losing the first one 5-3 before winning 14-4, 3-1, 5-1; had a three-game series with Bemidji that included a 6-6 tie ended by darkness, a 6-5 win and an 8-4 loss; split a doubleheader with Fergus Falls, losing 4-2 but winning 8-0; played three games against Detroit Lakes, losing 9-4 and 1-0 but winning 7-6; had a four-game series with Grand Forks, losing 7-0, 9-1, 7-6 and winning 7-2; and beat Newfolden 9-1 in a non-league game.

In Northwest League Sub District play Thief River Falls shaded East Grand Forks 3-2 in the semifinals and stunned Crookston 6-0 in the finals. Competing in the eight-team, double-elimination District 9 tournament, Thief River Falls beat Breckenridge 7-4 and outscored Barnesville 15-8 before losing to Moorhead 7-1. An 8-2 victory over Crookston gave Thief River Falls another shot at Moorhead in the finals, but the favored Blues won it 4-1.

The 24-14-1 record gave head coach Nick Drees and assistants Howard Dalager and Harlie Drees a two-year mark of 51-28-1.

Eagle River's billboard announces "The Snowmobile Racing Capital", near the racetrack on the north edge of the city. The Swansons visited the "Fruit of the Woods" winery. Local people pick wild fruits and sell on contract to the winery which makes fruit wines in nine flavors. Mrs. Swanson visited the Vilas county fair, much smaller than Pennington county fair. Livestock consisted of four horses, one calf and several rabbits. The 4-H'ers and horticulturalists were the dominant exhibitors.

Professor States Couples Wait Too Long For Counsel

by Jeanne Hanson
"U" M News Service

For some couples, the wedding bells sound hollow now, and the primrose path blooms with brambles. Although they may consider marriage or family counseling, they often don't know when to seek help or how to choose among counselors.

Couples often wait too long, not visiting a counselor until their relationship is "terminal," said David Olson, professor of family social science at the University of Minnesota. Olson recommends the following questions as a quick indication of marital health:

Do you frequently find fault with your partner? Do you often think about ways you want to change your partner? Do you often wish you had not gotten married? Do you find yourself more withdrawn from your spouse, and more drawn into yourself? Do you experience depression, tension or headaches from worrying about your marriage?

Have you or your partner been drinking or taking more drugs recently? Do you feel your disagreements never get resolved and come up again and again? Do you continually argue over minor issues? Are you afraid to express your anger or frustration? Do your children take sides with your partner against you or vice versa? Has your sexual relationship become a problem? Are you becoming emotionally or socially involved with another person?

Couples who answer yes to only one to three of the questions have a relatively healthy relationship, Olson said. For them he suggests only a marital enrichment program. Often offered through churches, such programs focus on deepening a marriage.

Couples with four to six yes answers might also benefit from such a program, he said. If the problems persist, they also need a professional counselor. Seven or more yes answers indicate major problems and a need for professional help as soon as possible, Olson said.

Other warning signs include persistent problems with children, which may lead couples to a family counselor instead of a marriage counselor, but the line is blurred anyway, Olson said. Some treatment agencies will not begin marriage counseling without seeing the whole family.

Olson recommends investigating several professional counselors, beginning with those licensed by the American Association for Marriage and Family Therapy. This list should be in local yellow pages and is available from the American Association for Marital and Family Therapists, 924 West Ninth St., Upland, Calif. 91786. This group has the most stringent qualifications for membership, according to Olson, a past president of the organization.

Telephoning several counselors will further narrow the list, Olson said. Ask first about background (degrees, specific training in marriage and family therapy, specialties such as drug treatment or sex therapy). Then ask about length of treatment (the counselor should mention a short diagnostic period of perhaps three sessions, then a "contract" for a treatment of several more weeks). Last, ask about cost (usually $30 to $50 an hour, much of it now covered by insurance).

Once they choose a counselor, some couples still are not sure what to expect. Some think that counselors tend to encourage either marriage or divorce. Actually, they are usually neutral, Olson said; they act as coaches or facilitators in helping couples and families explore problems and negotiate solutions.

Therapy usually begins with each person talking to the counselor individually. Even children as young as five or six years old are included in some family therapies. In this first round, people may tell the counselor about "secrets" such as an affair. The counselor will not divulge this information to the spouse, but, Olson said, most people end up revealing it themselves later, only to discover that the spouse already knew.

After the preliminary sessions, a couple or family group generally talks to the counselor together, Olson said.

As counseling gets under way, some couples and families feel much better and others much worse. "Actually, worse is better, because it means they won't quit," Oslon said. Things usually get worse before they get better, he said. Marriage and family counseling usually last about 10 sessions.

Counselors often help couples and families negotiate "contracts" for changing specific behaviors and work with them on improving their communication skills and exploring their flexibility and coping skills. Some use "paradoxical injunctions," such as telling a couple to argue all week long if they have said they argue too much.

New trends in the field include matching the treatment to the type of relationship dynamics (rather than treating all alcoholic families alike, for example), counseling for committed but unmarried couples, and sex therapy that deals with the marriage at the same time, Olson said.

Grant Awarded For Emergency Health Service

Northwest Minnesota emergency health services council was notified recently that it has been awarded $325,000 in federal funds to improve emergency medical services in northwestern Minnesota.

Norman Peterson, Greg Stocc and Dr. Jerome Bray, all of Thief River Falls and board members of the council, received notification of the grant from Timothy Langeliers, executive director of the Agassiz health systems agency.

Award of the grant is the result of a year-long planning effort by the council and will provide funding for improvement in emergency medical care through the development of an emergency medical service system (EMSS), Langeliers said.

Michael Thorsteinson, a Minnesota native and graduate of Concordia college at Moorhead, has been appointed director of the system. He has spent the past seven years with North Dakota community action programs. As director of the Quad County agency he administered federal, state, local and private foundation monies and conducted program planning, community development and legislative contact.

Prior to community action work, he was a shift supervisor and instructor in the cardio-pulmonary services department at St. Luke's hospitals in Fargo, ND, dealing in all aspects of critical care.

According to Langeliers, emergency medical care encompasses first aid, trained and equipped ambulance personnel, special vehicles, hospital emergency rooms and medical professionals.

He said that the emergency care system has three phases. First is the pre-hospital phase of care including the informed public, special communications networks and ambulances. Second is the in-hospital phase consisting of emergency rooms and other services. Third is the inter-hospital phase including all highly specialized services that are located in only one or a few hospitals, special transportation and other related services.

Arts, Crafts Workshop Is Sept. 14-17

Needle weaving and stained glass needlework are two of the new offerings at the North Country arts and crafts workshop which will be conducted at Concordia language camp near Bemidji September 14-17. Each of these classes is six-hours — a full day's class period.

In the needle weaving class Monday or Tuesday, participants will complete a wall hanging when they make a sampler of various stitches, using the needle weaving technique. In the stained glass needlework class Wednesday or Thursday, the technique follows the way in which glass is worked as applied to fabric; cutting, basting, fitting, making biased leading and quilting. Emphasis on designing original pieces and patterns will also be available.

Total of 24 classes from a study of birds or "backyard critters" (each a three-hour class) to wood carving to rosemaling (12-hour class, beginners or intermediate) are offered at the camp. Registration brochures may be obtained from the county extension office which include full descriptions of classes. Advanced registration is required by August 28. The sooner registrations are sent in, the better the chances for getting first choice of classes.

Participants can come for one day, or all four days, depending on which classes they want to take, or they may come for just an evening program. Lunches and coffee breaks are included in the registration fee, but lodging and other meals will be available at the camp. Both men and women are invited to take part.

Workshop is sponsored cooperatively by the agricultural extension services of Clearwater, Beltrami, Hubbard and East Polk counties and the Red Lake Indian reservation.

NDSU Awarded Science Grant Of $29,720

North Dakota state university has received a grant of $29,720 from the National Science foundation for a program on graphics and interactive computing in operations research and statistics.

The project director at NDSU is Dr. Kendall Nygard of the department of mathematical science. Nygard is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sigfred Nygard, Thief River Falls, and a grandson of Mrs. Christine Jevne, Holt.

NDSU was one of 101 colleges and universities which received 114 grants, totalling $2.61 million, for projects aimed at improving the content and quality of undergraduate science, mathematics and engineering courses in the nation.

The NSF funds, which ranged from $3,998 to $30,000, provide up to two-thirds of the money needed for the projects.

UND Students Can Get Short Term Loans

University of North Dakota (UND) at Grand Forks has announced that students experiencing temporary cash flow problems this fall will be able to utilize an expanded short-term loan account at UND if they need to borrow temporarily because of a delay in receiving other financial assistance.

UND dean of enrollment services Gerald Hamerlik said that a special grant from the UND alumni association and foundation will bring assets in the University's revolving short-term loan account to more than $350,000, a level he said should meet higher than normal early autumn demand.

Hamerlik said a larger number of students than usual at UND are expected to require help from the revolving fund, established over the years by gifts from alumni and friends of the University. Last year more than 4,000 loans of up to $400 at six per cent were administered through the UND student financial aids office.

The long debate in Washington this summer about cutbacks in federal student financial aid programs produced uncertainty among applicants and delays in making awards by the college and universities, Hamerlik said.

As a result, a large number of students are only now applying under the Guaranteed Student Loan Program, producing a backlog at the lending institutions which may not clear up before tuition and other educational expenses become due. In other cases, parents of students, especially those engaged in farming, may experience temporary cash flow problems in providing last minute assistance to their UND-bound children.

Hamerlik also indicated that Minnesota residents experiencing delays in the processing of tuition reciprocity certifications (whereby Minnesota students pay North Dakota resident tuition) will be given special consideration by the UND bursar's office.

Opening Day Enrollment Declines By 114 Students

Continued decline in number of students in Thief River Falls public schools was recorded by the School District 564 administrative offices on opening day of the 1981-82 school term today. Total enrollment of 2,675 is down 114 from the 2,789 recorded on opening day last year.

Supt. Robert Block expressed concern primarily over the Lincoln senior high school enrollment which declined from 976 last year to 893 this year — a drop of 83 students. Since high school students count as 1.4 pupil units for state aid, the decline will result in significantly fewer state tax dollars coming into the district.

Total enrollment on opening day this year in the five elementary schools was 1,160 in comparison with 1,194 a year ago — a reduction of 34 students in kindergarten through fifth grades. Franklin middle school had a net increase of three students from 619 last year to 622 this year, due primarily to a sixth grade class of 234 students.

"We would expect our senior high school enrollment to increase somewhat in the next couple of weeks," Supt. Block said, "because there are always late vacations, state fair activities, farm field work and other things which cut into opening day enrollment. But the net loss looks substantial and that isn't good news for district finances."

It was in 1973 that the local school district set its record K-12 enrollment mark with 3,295 students. Enrollment has slipped since the mid-1970's, falling below the 3,000 mark at 2,937 at the start of the 1979-80 school year for the first time since 1970-71.

Supt. Block said opening day was progressing about as expected with no major problems being discovered. He said he had visited several of the schools and classes seemed to be running smoothly with only normal opening day changes and disruptions.

Opening day enrollment figures for 1981-82 with comparative figures for 1980-81 listed in parentheses are as follows:

Kindergarten, 208 (189); grade one, 185 (190); grade two, 173 (186); grade three, 174 (200); grade four, 210 (207); grade five, 201 (219); grade six, 234 (187); grade seven, 175 (214); grade eight, 213 (218); grade nine, 199 (230); grade 10, 226 (236); grade 11, 222 (258); and grade 12, 246 (252).

Enrollment by schools for 1981-82 with the 1980-81 enrollment listed in parentheses is as follows:

Mark Twain — Kindergarten, 24 (25); grade one, 24 (25); grade two, 24 (18); grade three, 23 (29); grade four, 28 (29); grade five, 24 (28); and special education, nine;

Knox — Kindergarten, 56 (46); grade one, 49 (40); grade two, 36 (45); grade three, 47 (48); grade four, 52 (49); and grade five, 46 (49);

Washington — Kindergarten, 51 (50); grade one, 46 (50); grade two, 46 (52); grade three, 43 (54); grade four, 50 (55); and grade five, 52 (56);

Northrop — Kindergarten, 54 (52); grade one, 51 (48); grade two, 46 (43); grade three, 42 (45); grade four, 51 (49); and grade five, 49 (57);

St. Hilaire — Kindergarten, 23 (16); grade one, 15 (25); grade two, 21 (18); grade three, 19 (29); grade four, 29 (29); and grade five, 30 (28).

Total elementary school enrollments include Mark Twain 156 (161); Knox, 286 (277); Washington, 288 (317); Northrop, 293 (294); and St. Hilaire, 137 (145).

Highway 32, 59 Work Missing On Schedule

Highway Improvement program for 1982-1983, released by the Minnesota department of transportation in July, contains three projects in this area scheduled for lettings within two years. Cost of these projects is estimated at $1,635,000.

The projects include reconditioning, safety and bridge repair projects in Polk, Red Lake and Pennington counties.

"Notably missing from the two-year program are improvements to the roadway of trunk highway 32 and trunk highway 59. Both routes between Thief River Falls and trunk highway 2 have been identified by district staff to be essential for the economic well being of the area and intensive efforts are being made to program the projects necessary to bring the roadways to a 'nine-ton capacity,'" states Robert Wolfe, district engineer.

"Two sections of trunk highway 32 needing reconstruction (from Marcoux to Red Lake Falls and from St. Hilaire to Thief River Falls) are included in the 1984-87 highway improvement work proposal and could possibly be let by 1987. However, at this time, no improvements to trunk highway 59 are contained in any program or work proposal," he said.

District Mn-DOT staff recognizes the importance of these routes when weight restrictions are established and lifted each spring. However, with the improvements to these routes as far off as they seem to be at the present time, the roadways and their condition will have to be monitored very closely, Wolfe noted.

Highway projects in this area scheduled for lettings during 1982-83 include:

Construction of traffic signals, frontage roads and turn lanes on highway 59 from First street to Sherwood avenue in Thief River Falls ($250,000), to be let in May of 1983;

Reconditioning of trunk highway 2 eastbound between Mentor and Erskine, 6.8 miles ($1,350,000), to be let in October of 1981; and Painting the highway 32 bridge over the Red Lake river in Red Lake Falls ($35,000), to be let in January of 1982.

Out of the immediate area but possibly affecting people in this area is the final surfacing of the Bemidji bypass ($4,400,000) scheduled for an August, 1981 letting.

Council Ponders Tax Cut For Off Street Parking

Parking lot taxes, sewer inspections, zoning, and Occupational Development center parking were among subjects covered by Thief River Falls city council at its regular meeting Tuesday in council chambers at the city auditorium.

Stan Sjoberg requested that he be relieved of paying taxes on the parking lot next to his business, Sjoberg's Cable TV, on Main avenue. He currently pays $1,066 annually on the lot, and stated that since it was used more for public parking than for his customers, he would appreciate being relieved of the burden.

Alderman William Penning was in favor of granting the request "without delay", but concern for establishing a precedent was expressed by other council members. General agreement was reached that Sjoberg's should be given tax relief, and at one point a motion was made to rent the lot for the amount of taxes. The motion was defeated, but Sjoberg was informed that it would be taken before the parking and assessment district committee to get their input.

Alderman Milan Borsheim commended Sjoberg for continuing to provide public parking and Mayor Bob Carlson said, "I'm sure we can work something out."

Building inspector Bob Bregier was questioned regarding inspections to prevent sump pump installations into the sanitary sewer system. The problem is that the extra water introduced when it rains overloads the sewage treatment plant, which was described as "already operating at capacity."

Bregier assured council that he always checked for adherance to the state plumbing code, but that "almost anyone" could run a sump pump hose into a floor drain after the inspection had been made. More specific wording on permits to hook onto city sewer lines was suggested as one way to "get some teeth into the ordinance."

Regarding plumbers who backfilled sewer and water connection trenches before they could be inspected, alderman Penning suggested "they would only have to be made to dig it up once before they got educated."

A request from Julian Gunderson for a zoning change on his property located west of Ninth street and State avenue from agricultural to R-3 with a special use permit for a planned residential development, prompted discussion on the need for additional rental units when housing demand was down in the city. Gunderson explained

TRF Man Is Charged With Sexual Assault

Criminal sexual assault charges have been filed in Polk county against a Thief River Falls man as the result of an alleged rape of a 14-year-old Thief River Falls girl about five miles north of Crookston early Monday morning.

Charles Randall Ashman, 22, of T-60, Northwestern trailer court, was taken into custody by a Polk county deputy Monday afternoon. He was scheduled to appear in county court in Crookston.

Pennington county sheriff's department, to which the rape was reported, assisted in the investigation. Sheriff Charles Richards said two 14-year-old girls reportedly had accompanied the defendant to Crookston and the alleged assault took place on the return home. One of the girls was locked out of the car during the assault and made her way to a farm home to telephone her mother.

Ashman and the other girl reportedly returned to Thief River Falls where she was able to leave the car and notify authorities.

University Zeroes In On Biomass Energy

SECOND IN A SERIES
by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Not many years ago, a major oil company promoting its search for new reserves used the slogan: "A nation that runs on oil can't afford to run out!"

Oil, in whatever quantities it exists, is a limited resource. It was formed over eons of time and once used is gone forever. This eventuality — and perhaps more importantly the impact of the high costs associated with constant supply — are leading forward-thinking researchers to study other means of energy production.

Alternative energy supply is at the root of experimentation being carried out at the University of Minnesota under the direction of Douglas C. Pratt, professor and head of the botany department. He heads the Bio-Energy Coordinating office, a five-pronged approach which includes biomass crop development, harvesting technology, biomass conversion (into fuels or chemical feedstocks), wetland inventory and land use and economic assessment.

Primary emphasis at the present time is being placed on crop development, including plant screening to select the most suitable crops, propagation, management and production. Botany, horticulture and ecology departments are involved in the research. Much of the supervision is provided by Nancy Andrews, assistant director of the coordinating office.

The common cattail, which grows in profusion seemingly anywhere there is moisture, is gaining much of the attention as an alternative energy source. The cattail is a promising candidate for wetland biomass production because it grows naturally in monocultures, is highly productive, has few insect enemies and can be grown on marginal lands.

One of the places it grows best is on peatlands of northern Minnesota — some of the same peatlands which are being proposed for gasification to provide another form of alternative energy. Where use of peat would again deplete a resource, growing energy crops on peatland would create a renewable energy supply which could go on forever.

Pratt points out that peat is essentially a fossil fuel such as coal or oil, but in a newer form. It builds up slowly — perhaps at the rate of one millimeter a year.

"In a matter of decades we could use up 3,000 years' accumulation of peat," he said. "And we don't know what might happen to our environment if the peat was all gone. Eventually we must learn to get our energy from renewable resources, just as we get our food. Properly managed, crops grown on peat and other wetlands could provide an inexhaustible supply of energy."

Minnesota has approximately seven million acres of peatlands — the most of any of the lower 48 states. Only 2.7 per cent of the peatlands are used for crop production, indicating that potential exists for producing wetland energy crops on marginal lands which would not compete with traditional

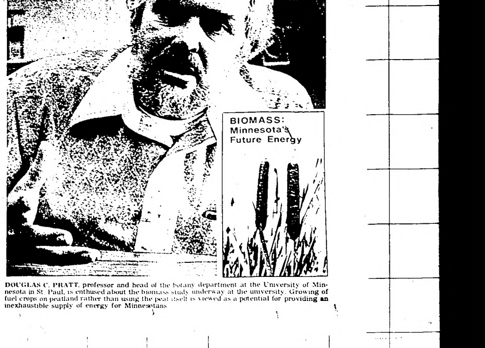
ENERGY FARMING ON MINNESOTA'S WETLANDS

RESEARCH EFFORTS of the bio-energy coordinating office in the biological sciences center at the University of Minnesota in St. Paul are largely supervised by Nancy Andrews, assistant director. She has been working with the program for several years and is most actively involved in programs to study cattail productivity and propagation.



DOUGLAS C. PRATT, professor and head of the botany department at the University of Minnesota in St. Paul, is enthused about the biomass study underway at the university. Growing of fuel crops on peatland rather than using the peat itself is viewed as a potential for providing an inexhaustible supply of energy for Minnesotans

Wigness And Williams Marriage Vows Spoken

Miss Kim Marie Wigness and Douglas Russell Williams exchanged marriage vows recently at a two o'clock ceremony at Trinity Lutheran church in this city.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Wigness and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Williams, all of Thief River Falls.

Rev. Berton R. Hushagen officiated at the double ring ceremony attended by 250 relatives and friends. At the organ was Ida Nordvall, a friend of the bride. For the processional, she played "Wedding Processional," from "Sound of Music." Prelude music, both vocal and instrumental, was provided by John Hustad and Tom Bjorkman, friends of the couple. During the ceremony, Hustad sang, "What a Difference You've Made in My Life," with Bjorkman as pianist. Later they sang "The Wedding Song," with Bjorkman providing the guitar accompaniment. Raymond Wigness of Fortuna, N.D., a great-uncle of the bride, was the violinist. He played "Bless This House," and "The Lord's Prayer," with the bride's aunt, Susan Dahl, Plentywood, Mont., as pianist. Reader was Lynn Shodin, Lombard, Ill., a friend of the couple.

Forming the chancel setting were two seven-branched candelabra with ivory tapers and large blue bows. Altar flowers were yellow gladioli, white and yellow mums and daisies.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was attired in a gown of ivory polyester with a chiffon overlay, designed and sewn by her mother. The fitted bodice of pearl embroidered, ivory lace in rose design, was fashioned with a contoured high waistline dipping in back to form a train. Matching lace trimmed the cuffs on the sheer-full sleeves; and coordinating lace appliques, also embroidered with seed pearls, graced the front of the skirt and accented the hemline. Complementing the Queen Anne neckline was her maternal grandmother's lavaliere. Her headpiece was a wide-brimmed hat appliqued with rose patterned lace, etched with seed pearls. Attached to the hat by ivory silk roses was a fingertip veil of ivory chiffon. The bride carried a bouquet of yellow Sweetheart roses, white Majestic daisies, babies' breath and asparagus fern.

Kelly Bjorkman, a friend of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Shelly Lund, a friend of the bride, and Deb Williams, a sister of the groom. Their medium blue, floor-length gowns with spaghetti straps were complenented by a deep ruffle accented with ivory lace. Ivory ribbon belted the waistline. They carried yellow chrysanthemums, white daisies and asparagus fern.

Attending the groom as best man was Brian Phelps of Brainerd, a friend. Groomsmen were Mike Wigness, Glendive, Mont., a brother of the bride, and Wayne Ortloff, Duluth, a friend of the groom. Serving as ushers were Steve Wigness, brother of the bride, and Dan Heieren, Minneapolis, a friend of the groom. They wore navy blue tuxedos, white shirts and yellow carnation boutonnieres.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Wigness selected a pastel aqua gown fashioned with a floor-length accordion pleated skirt and a fitted bodice with an overlay of aqua lace. Her corsage was of yellow roses and white daisies. A similar corsage was worn by the groom's mother who was attired in a pastel blue floor-length gown topped by a jacket of patterned chiffon sheer.

Honor guests were Mr. and Mrs. Manvil Wralstad, Grafton, N.D., and Mr. and Mrs. Porter Wigness, Fortuna, N.D., grandparents of the bride; and Mrs. Valborg Hanson of Thief River Falls, grandmother of the groom.

The bride's personal attendants were friends: Sylvia Hustad of this city and Lorey Winter of St. Paul.

A reception followed at the church with Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Restad, friends of the couple, and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Engelstad, godparents of the groom, as hosts and hostesses. Jody Dallmann, a friend of the couple, registered the guests as Mickie and Phil Wralstad, Sierra Vista, Ariz., aunt and uncle of the bride, served the punch.

Highlighting the serving table was a three-tiered "Garland of Daisies" chocolate and white wedding cake, iced in pale yellow and decorated with garlands of white daisies and green leaves. A yellow, twin bell ornament, backed by a filigreed heart, topped the cake, which was cut and served by Mae Williams, Bloomington, aunt of the groom; and Alice Munt, Bloomington, a cousin of the groom. At the coffee service were Ruth Wigness, Fortuna, N.D., aunt of the bride, and Ann Huber, Indianpolis aunt of the groom.

Waitresses were Lori Wralstad, Sierra Vista, Ariz., Kristi Wigness, Fortuna, N.D., cousins of the bride; and Jennifer and Mary Hustad, friends of the couple. At the gift table were Patti Malberg, friend of the couple; and Beth Wralstad of Sierra Vista, Ariz., a cousin of the bride. Kari Jo, Lisa and Lori DeLap, friends of the couple, distributed the rice packets.

Following the reception, the bride's parents hosted an outdoor buffet dinner at their home.

Relatives and friends attending the wedding were from North Dakota, Montana, Arizona, Indiana, Tennessee, Arkansas, Illinois, California, Maryland and numerous places in Minnesota.

For traveling on the wedding trip to the resort area in Brainerd, the bride wore a red wrap-around sundress made by her mother. Her corsage was of yellow roses and babies' breath.

The bride is a 1976 graduate of Lincoln high school and attended the University of North Dakota, Grand Forks, where she received her BA degree in 1980 and her MS degree in 1981. She is employed with House Speech-Language pathology, Inc., in Minneapolis. The groom, a 1974 graduate of Lincoln high school, received his BS degree from the University of North Dakota in 1979. He is a third-year dental student at the University of Minnesota school of dentistry in Minneapolis.

The couple is at home at 720 Old Highway 8, Apartment 301, at New Brighton. Photo, Neal Fox studio, Thief River Falls.

Jaycee Tractor And Pickup Pull Set September 5

Plans are moving forward for the truck and tractor pulling contest to be sponsored by the Thief River Falls Jaycees at the Pennington county fairgrounds in Thief River Falls Saturday, September 5, at 2 p.m.

There will be 11 classes for tractors — including seven out of field, one limited modified and three open — and three classes for pickups including one stock and two modified classes. Entry fee in advance will be $10 for each class with limited entries received on the day of the pull paying a $20 entry fee.

Weigh-in for the contest will take place September 5 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Land O'Lakes scale in Thief River Falls. Pickups will compete for first, second and third place trophies and $125, $100 and $75 in prize money for first through third places.

Out of field tractors will compete for first, second and third place trophies while limited modified class will offer prizes of $75, $50, $40, $25 and $10 for the top three finishers. In open classes the prizes will be $150, $125, $100, $75 and $50 for the top five places.

Admission has been set at $4 for adults and $1 for children under 12. The pull is sanctioned and regulated by the Red River Valley Tractor Pulling association and points won will count toward year-end placing.

In addition to the tractor pull, a teen dance will be held from 9 p.m. to midnight at the Thief River Falls curling club and an old-time fiddler's contest will begin at 7 p.m. at the Thief River Falls sports arena. The fiddler's contest will have classes for up to 34 years of age, 35 to 64 years of age, 65 years of age and older, and an open class for all ages. There is no entry fee, trophies will be awarded for the top three places and an old-time dance will follow the contest.

Classes for tractors in out of field categories include vehicles weighing up to 5,500 pounds, 7,500 pounds, 9,500 pounds, 12,000 pounds, 16,000 pounds, 20,000 pounds and 24,000 pounds. Limited modified entries are limited to 5,500 pounds or less. Open classes are for tractors weighing 5,500, 7,500 or 9,500 pounds.

Pickups will compete in a stock class of no more than 6,000 pounds and modified classes of 5,500 and 6,500 pounds.

Pickups and tractors pull a weighted skid on the competition. Called a ''bumblebee'', this skid has weight which is transferred forward on the skid as it is pulled down the track. The pulling course is generally 300 feet long, and if more than one entry pulls all the way through the course, more weight is added and a rerun is held. Winners are determined by the greatest distance they are able to pull the skid.

Modified pickups have more powerful engines, heavy duty front suspension and a beefed up drive train.

Small Business Seminar Set September 18

One day seminar for small business men and women will be held on Friday, September 18, at the Moorhead Ramada Inn, Congressman Arlan Stangeland has announced.

The second annual small business workshop, sponsored by Representative Stangeland and his small business advisory committee, will feature four lectures for individuals interested in the operation of small businesses.

Mike McKevitt, director of the national federation of independent business (NFIB), will be the featured speaker at the seminar's luncheon. He was a participant in last year's workshop.

Four lectures will provide strategies for buying or selling small businesses, advice on financial planning, outlines for retirement investment, and tactics for communicating with government officials.

"This is an exciting opportunity for people who are considering entering the business community to get some solid advice from local and national experts," Rep. Stangeland said. "But managers of small businesses will also benefit a great deal by attending this year's workshop. With all the changes in tax codes and investment credits, managers can pick up a lot of practical pointers."

Workshop is open to the public and will run from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. A small registration fee to defray the costs of the luncheon and speakers will be charged.

Anyone interested in registering for the workshop should contact Phyllis Onsgard at 218-233-8631 or toll-free 1-800-432-3770.

Minn. Nurses Association To Meet Sept. 10

Open meeting of District I Minnesota Nurses association (MNA) will be held on Thursday, September 10, at 7:30 p.m. in the regional correction center community room at Crookston.

"Basic Entry Level (BEL): Unanswered Questions: Who will assist the BSN?" will be the title of the evening's program. Bill Riley, MNA coordinator for BEL, will present current status of activities related to the basic entry level position. An informal discussion session on questions related to the second level person will follow. This open meeting is designed to offer area R.N.s an opportunity to provide input to the MNA steering committee on BEL.

Coffee will be provided.

Land O'Lakes, Midland Co-op Discuss Merger

Boards of directors of Midland Cooperatives, Inc. and Land O'Lakes, Inc., both farmer cooperatives headquartered in the Twin Cities area of Minnesota, met August 20 to discuss benefits that could accrue to their members by consolidating operations of both organizations.

Midland, based in Columbia Heights, is a regional wholesale organization owned by more than 650 community cooperatives in the Upper Midwest. Sales in 1980 were $523.5 million.

Land O'Lakes, based in Arden Hills, is owned by nearly 950 local farm supply and dairy processing cooperatives and more than 10,000 farmer stockholders. Total farmer membership exceeds 250,000. Sales in 1980 were $3.3 billion, $700 million of which comes from the sale of feed, seed, fertilizers and other farm supplies. In addition to its farm supply business, Land O'Lakes is also a major marketer of packaged foods processed from milk, beef, soybeans and turkey produced by its members.

Both organizations have a similar cooperative philosophy and a common membership territory which includes 166 local cooperatives with joint memberships.

Any plan of unification resulting from the discussion would require membership approval of both cooperatives. Successful discussion would probably result in a membership vote late this year, after a series of informational meetings with the members.

Courage Center Offers Three Top Programs

People with physical disabilities who want to live more independently may benefit from three programs offered by Courage Center in Golden Valley. The programs include the following:

Technological Work Evaluation — Severely disabled individuals can explore their interest and aptitude for computer programming and some related job fields in this one-month program offered throughout the year at Courage center. Using equipment adapted for individual handicaps, participants can get an overview of white collar, technically-oriented job areas, estimate their interest and receive counseling advocacy, referral and placement assistance in schools offering computer and technical training.

Driver's Education — Certified driving instructors using vans and automobiles with adapted foot and hand controls can teach driving skills to people with a variety of physical handicaps and help them obtain their licenses. Upon request by enough interested individuals, instructors will travel to any locality to conduct the course.

Rehabilitation Engineering — Servicee are available in the areas of vocational accommodation and non-vocal technical communication aids. In addition, a wide range of rehabilitation equipment and common household devices can be designed and-or modified for more convenient use by people with physical handicaps.

Information is available for these and other Courage center programs by calling (612) 588-0811, or writing Courage Center, 3915 Golden Valley Road, Golden Valley, Minnesota 55422.

Courage center is a non-profit United Way organization providing medical and vocational rehabilitation, recreation, sports, camping and educational programs and residential services to people with physical disabilities and speech, hearing and vision disorders.

Video Law Programs At State Fair

The question fed into the computer will ask, "What should I do if I am arrested for drunken driving?" The video screen in the Minnesota state bar association's booth at the state fair will light up with an answer designed by one of a number of attorneys knowledgeable about such cases, and one who has helped create the video law program which will be available to the public beginning August 27 — the opening day of the fair.

Visitors to the bar association booth located in the southeast corner of the education building will be able to participate in the video law program by asking the computer one of the 80 or 90 most commonly asked questions about the law, answered in understandable and non-legal terms and designed to provide more information about the law and the legal profession.

Questions will be in three "modes": true and false, multiple choice and matching answers. The participant simply reads "the menu" of modes appearing on the video screen and decides which of the three forms of the quiz he or she wishes to take. The questions will appear on the video screen and the participant will select an answer in accordance with the choices available. The computer will indicate the correct answer and keep a running score of both the correct and incorrect answers.

According to Paul Westphal, director of Minnesota continuing education for state court personnel, who helped design the video law program, "The questions and answers are not without lightness and levity. We may throw in one about the court remedy for the wife seeking a divorce because her husband paid more attention to his pet worms than he did her." "But overall," Westphal said, "state fair visitors can have a lot of fun . . . and at the same time learn some interesting and helpful lessons about the law."

In expectation of the popularity of the video law program, visitors will have access to two computers in the booth area during all hours of the fair.

Law Intended To Cut High Speed Chases

In an effort to reduce the number of high speed chases, the Minnesota Legislature has enacted a law making it a gross misdemeanor for a driver to attempt to elude a police officer signalling for a stop.

The maximum penalty for a gross misdemeanor is one year in prison and-or a $1,000 fine.

Public Safety Commissioner John P. Sopsic said the law further provides that the driver who fails to stop is liable for all property damages and-or injury resulting from a fleeing or eluding incident. The new law applies even though the fleeing driver is not involved in a collision but the law enforcement officer or another person is.

According to Col. D. Roger Ledding, State Patrol chief, a violation of the law is a felony if it results in substantial bodily injury to any person. If death occurs as a result of the attempt to flee, the penalty can be as high as 10 years in prison and-or a $10,000 fine.

Ledding said the Legislature passed the measure following testimony on the frequency of police chases caused by drivers attempting to elude a police officer. Several of the incidents related in testimony had severe consequences.

Aug. 28 — Last Day To Register For Workshop

August 28 is the last day to register for the North Country Arts and Crafts workshop to avoid the late penalty.

Workshop, which will be conducted at Concordia Language Village near Bemidji September 14-17, is sponsored cooperatively by the agricultural extension service of Clearwater, Hubbard, East Polk and Beltrami counties and the area extension office and Red Lake Indian Reservation.

Registration forms for the workshop are available at the Pennington county extension office. Earlier registration makes class choices more available.

Workshop has been expanded to four days this year to accommodate the large enrollment. Participants may register for one day or all four or just for the evening program which is different each evening. Basic daily registration is $13 which includes lunch and coffee breaks. Lodging and other meals are also available.

Crafts offered at the workshop include fiber dyeing, pinecone craft, wheat weaving, folk carving, soft sculpture, cathedral window quilting, landscape planning, plant propagation and nature appreciation (birds and small animals).

Also offered during the workshop will be a session involving use of the 35mm camera, an intermediate class for the art of stained glass and other six-hour workshops such as smocking, stained glass needlework, needle weaving, strawcraft, tole painting with acrylics and wood carving.

In the more comprehensive workshop, rosemaling in Rogalund tradition is offered in either the beginning or intermediate phase. Calligraphy will be taught in the Chancery Cursive style or the Old English style. China painting for beginners will require three days for all the painting and firings, and can be taken in the mornings or afternoons.

Evening programs will include dinner-time music, Sweet Adelines Monday, Barbershoppers Tuesday and a music demonstration Wednesday. There will be a choice between another craft instruction or a travel adventure program (Monday and Wednesday) or a judo demonstration Tuesday.

Groups Present Cooking Demos At State Fair

At the Minnesota state fair August 27 through September 7 six home economists will present unique and traditional uses of turkey, eggs, dairy products, pork and beef during demonstrations at the dairy and animal products building.

Marilyn McAlpine, home economist for the Minnesota Turkey Growers' association, will demonstrate new uses for turkey parts.

Pork steaks cacciatore will be one of many pork specialties Joanne Randen, home economist for the Minnesota pork producer's association, will be demonstrating.

Linda Carlson and Rita Juhl, home economists with the Minnesota Egg council, will be demonstrating recipes for casseroles, quiche, omelets and pies.

Barb Luehmann, home economist for the American Dairy association of Minnesota, will discuss milk refreshers and the variety of uses dairy products can play in every day food preparation.

"Making Ends Meat . . . With The Great Taste of Beef" will be the theme for demonstrations given by Maggie Brion, home economist for the Minnesota Beef council.

These five commodity groups will be demonstrating each day of the state fair beginning at 10 a.m. and ending with a 6 p.m. presentation.

Stangeland Likes Mexican Oil Agreement

Congressman Arlan Stangeland has applauded announcement of a five-year oil pact between the Mexican government and the U.S. department of energy.

"This agreement will strengthen our 'energy safety net' which protects America's economy against future embargoes or oil disruption," Rep. Stangeland said. "But more importantly, it also strengthens our ties with an important ally, oil producer and neighbor, Mexico."

Under the terms of the pact, PEMEX (Mexico's national oil company) will provide the U.S. with an additional 24 million barrels of oil for the strategic petroleum reserve during the next five years. This petroleum will be placed in storage caverns in Texas and Louisiana, to be held in reserve against future oil shortages.

PEMEX will provide over 200,000 barrels of oil a day for the rest of 1981 and will then provide 50,000 barrels of oil a day until August of 1986. This guaranteed source of petroleum will be available for general use in the event of acute oil shortfalls.

Representative Stangeland, co-chairman of the North American trade caucus, has long been an advocate of close trade ties with Mexico. "A lot of people forget that when the Iran-Iraz war broke out last summer, Mexico stood by America," Rep. Stangeland said. "Many other oil-exporting countries broke their long-term contracts with us, because they saw an opportunity to make more money on the spot market. But Mexico honored its agreements with us."

New oil which will be imported under this pact will not decrease the amount of oil which Americans import for regular purposes (6.5 million-barrels-per-day). But it will help to accelerate the filling of the strategic petroleum reserve, an important shield against OPEC manipulation, Rep. Stangeland said.

Under the last administration, we were only putting 100,000 barrels of oil in the reserves everyday. Before this pact, the new administration had increased that figure to 440,000 barrels a day. Now we will be storing nearly 640,000 barrels a day by the end of the year," Rep. Stangeland said.

Reserve is used to cover shortages caused by international disruptions, such as embargoes or the Iran-Iraq war which threatens the crucial Straits of Hormuz. If there is such a shortfall, the oil is pumped out of the caverns to cover the nation's needs. At this point, there are approximately 180 million barrels of oil in the reserve, enough to cover a complete embargo for 30 days or smaller disruptions for much longer periods.

When the reserve is adequately filled, the threat of a temporary embargo loses much of its force, because oil exporters realize that America can last without imported oil for longer periods than the exporters may be able to tolerate.

Horse Sleeping Sickness Is State Concern

Sleeping sickness (equine encephalomyelitis) has become an increasing concern for Minnesota horse owners this summer, as reported cases of the potentially fatal equine disease have already surpassed last year's total level of infection.

So far this year, 30 cases of sleeping sickness in horses have been reported in 18 counties, more than twice 1980's total of 13 cases in nine counties.

Dr. Harry Olson of the state board of animal health reports that Wright county leads the state with eight cases. At least one case of the disease has been diagnosed in horses in the following counties: Aitkin, Benton, Hennepin, Kanabec, Kandiyohi, LeSeur, Lyon, Marshall, McLeod, Nicollet, Ottertail, Pope, Renville, Roseau, Sibley, Swift and Winona.

Equine sleeping sickness is caused by a virus. The Minnesota veterinary medical association explains that the disease can be carried by any number of blood-sucking insects — primarily the mosquito in Minnesota — and can affect many species of animals besides horses, including people. The infection in horses can cause fever, depression, poor appetite and lack of coordination and may result in death.

Yearly vaccination can prevent the disease in horses and should be included in annual horse health care programs. Horse owners can also reduce the chance of their animals contracting sleeping sickness by eliminating breeding areas for mosquitoes, pasturing horses on high, open ground during the day, stabling horses at night and isolating sick animals.

Although the incidence of sleeping sickness has been higher than usual this year, the board of animal health does not consider the outbreak to be epidemic, since the disease normally fluctuates from year to year.

The MVMA reminds horse owners that vaccination against sleeping sickness is the easiest and most effective way to prevent infection and is an important part of regular horse health care.

Two-Year Study On Shorelands Begins In State

A two year study was initiated by the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) July 1 to determine how Minnesota lakes and streams have been affected by the tremendous growth during the last decade in the number of shoreland residents.

The study is funded by an appropriation of $238,000 from the legislature.

Officials at the DNR's division of waters said that during the first year of the study data will be collected on the number of seasonal and permanent residences adjacent to all of the state's lakes and rivers.

This will update information gathered during a similar study in the late 1960's. Information will also be gathered on the soils, forest cover and aquatic vegetation of shorelands, and shoreland residents will be surveyed regarding their use of the waters.

During the second year the study will focus on how development trends may influence future shoreland policies and on an evaluation of current programs that guide shoreland development.

Officials noted that counties and many municipalities have adopted shoreland management programs modeled after mandatory state guidelines enacted in 1970 and 1976.

They said that in most cases the programs have been effective and that one objective of the study is to determine if local officials need additional management tools and what additional assistance can be provided by the state.

Additional information on the study can be obtained by contacting Steve Prestin or Joe Stinchfield, DNR division of waters. Phone 296-9226.

Public Safety Displays Set For State Fair

The Minnesota Department of Public Safety (DPS) will present new and expanded displays in the state exhibits building on Machinery Hill at the Minnesota State Fair from Thursday, August 27, through Monday, September 7.

"The 1981 Public Safety area will have something of interest for everyone. I invite the public to stop and visit with the people from our divisions," said Commissioner John P. Sopsic.

Project Childsafe, a joint effort of DPS and the Minnesota Safety Council, will show its seatbelt "convincer" again at this year's fair.

A special feature will be the display of a 1978 Pontiac destroyed this past July 5 when a firecracker ignited a box of M80s, seriously injuring the driver and a passenger.

Among other public safety fair attractions will be a fire extinguisher demonstration by the state fire marshal, free fingerprinting demonstration by the BCA, a breathalyzer test (the instrument used to measure alcohol concentration of suspected drunk drivers) given by the State Patrol and a "burglar-proofing your home" demonstration by Crime Watch.

Four demonstrations will be given twice daily each of the 12 days of the fair.

Youngsters will receive Godfrey Gopher coloring books and free helium-filled balloons. Adults will be able to register for two daily drawings. Fairgoers will also be offered computer printouts of driving records, litter bags, sun visors and brochures on safety subjects.

An added feature will be films on personal protection, home security, and emergency situations.

Bankers Survey Says Farm Loan Demand Is Down

Increased interest rates in the second quarter kept farm loan demand below normal levels at many rural banks in Minnesota, the Dakotas, Wisconsin and Montana, according to a survey by the Federal Reserve bank of Minneapolis.

Despite this, many rural bankers indicated interest rates will fall and strengthen farm loan demand in the next few months. Surveyed bankers said extra stimulus for stronger farm loan demand in the third quarter will come from better prospects for crops and farm earnings.

Around half of the 129 bankers surveyed in June said the demand for short-term ag loans in the second quarter was about normal for that time of year. For the second consecutive quarter, about a third of the bankers said the demand for short-term ag loans in their areas was below normal, and almost 60 per cent said that about the demand for intermediate-term ag loans.

Rural bankers surveyed in late March indicated farm loan demand would strengthen in the second quarter because farmers faced another quarter of depressed earnings. In the late June survey, about as many bankers reported low second quarter farm earnings as had expected them, attributing it to a combination of high costs, low commodity prices, and drought-reduced 1980 crops.

Contrary to most surveyed bankers' first quarter expectations, short-term rates appear to have risen in the second quarter and discouraged farmer borrowing. Bankers surveyed in late June reported an average short-term rate of 18.04 per cent, more than a full percentage point increase over the rate reported in March.

Rural bankers seem to have retained their expectations of stronger farm loan demand ahead. Sixty-three per cent of responding to the survey in June expected short-term farm loan demand to be normal in the third quarter, and almost half of the bankers expected intermediate-term farm loan demand to be normal. In addition, fewer bankers expected short- and intermediate-term ag loan demand to be less than normal in the third quarter than have reported it low so far this year.

Almost half of the bankers reporting in June expected short-term interest rates to fall in the next few months.

About a third expected the low net farm earnings of the last few quarters to continue for another three months as farm cost, price, and moisture conditions would not improve. Farmers in these situations are likely to want to borrow about as much in the third quarter as they have been, in order to maintain minimal consumption and production activities.

About a quarter of the bankers expected the net earnings of farmers in their areas to be greater than a year ago in the next three months. Much better growing conditions and crops than last year are said to be responsible for the improved earnings outlook.

Farmers in these improved situations should want to borrow more in the third quarter than they have been bankers said, because investment in farm production inputs will look much more profitable.

Answers from the Bible by Pastor Don Peros

Q. Pastor Don, the Bible teaches that a husband and wife are to become one flesh when they are married. I am not sure I understand what it means or how to become one flesh. Would you explain please?

A. God said in Gen. 2:18 L.B. that "It isn't good for a man to be alone; I will make a companion for him, a helper suited to his needs.

Notice that God did not say companions, plural, but a companion, singular. God is referring to one wife - not several, and one wife - not several girlfriends on the side.

Many reasons that husbands and wives are not becoming one flesh is because they are not truly committed to each other and God.

It is essential that the husband realize that his wife is the complement of his life. Failure to comprehend the strategic role she plays in God's purpose for the husband will result in a breakdown in communication and intimacy.

It is the husband's responsibility to build self worth in his wife and communicate his gratefulness for God's workmanship in her life thus far. Failure to believe that her opinions are as important as his will breed seeds of resentment, and cause division between them rather than oneness.

The word companion means companionship, partnership, friendship. Sharing together in the same thing. Interchange of thoughts and interests, giving and receiving. Living in close relations with one another.

After a man and woman marry, their personal responsibility increases as they each grow spiritually. As they grow in "oneness" and continually make their priorities God's priorities, they will repeatedly yield their personal rights to one another. This is what brings a greater oneness.

Eph. 5:21 says submitting yourselves to one another out of reverence for God.

The husbands and wifes responsibility to build effective oneness in communication and intimacy are found in the following Scriptures: Eph. 5:21-33, I Pet. 3:1-7.

If you have any questions that you would like to have answered from the Bible, please write Pastor Don Peros, Box 129, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.

Mexico Opens Consulate In St. Paul

A new consulate for Mexico has opened in St. Paul, headed by consul Diana Munoz, according to Rep. LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer.

"This official contact with Mexico should be an important link for increased trade and cultural understanding with Mexico," Rep. Stumpf said, "and I am hopeful local businesses will move quickly to take advantage of this new resource for trade development."

A consulate serves the needs of citizens of the country it represents while they are working or visiting in the state. The many foreign consulates in Minnesota also provide a valuable resource for Minnesotans who are traveling or doing business in the consul's home country.

Other counties which have full or honorary consulates in Minnesota are: Austria, Belgium, Canada, Colombia, the Dominican Republic, Denmark, Finland, the Federal Republic of Germany, Iceland, Italy, Japan, the Republic of Korea, Malta, the Netherlands, Norway, Peru, Sweden and Switzerland.

U of M Zeroes In On Biomass Production

Cattail in natural stands often produces biomass exceeding 40 tons per hectare (2.47 acres) — more than totals obtained with highly fertilized and managed agricultural crops. Research indicates that total biomass from managed stands of cattail is greater than from natural stands. Even in 1977 when corn yields rose to 100 bushels per acre, comparative statistics showed that cattails produced 1.8 times the biomass of corn.

The leaf area of cattails is about double that of corn, and because of the upright leaf angle of cattails, a greater proportion of the leaf area is exposed to direct sunlight, increasing the efficiency for utilization in photosynthesis.

Questions being addressed through experimentation and research by the university include the following: How productive are cattails when planted and grown in organic soils? How do cattails respond to fertilizer application; what are the critical concentrations for the major nutrients; are there specific micronutrient requirements? What planting techniques are optimal; does planting density increase yield; is seeding a viable alternative? When and how should cattails be harvested?

Cattail harvest appears to be a two-part proposition. The emergent growth is high in cellulose while the roots and rhizomes below ground are high in starch and sugar content (50 to 70 per cent). The leaves and flowers could thus be used for burning or paper production while the remainder of the plant (about 65 per cent of the total biomass) could be used for alcoholic fermentation or other uses, such as chemical feedstocks.

Pratt and Andrews agree with Ron Visness, assistant director for alternative energy development with the Minnesota Energy agency, that biomass energy may best be used in the areas where it is produced. This would add to the efficiencies of energy expenditure in relation to energy produced and utilized.

They suggest, for instance, that cattails could be grown on plantations near sewage plants or feedlot facilities where they would effectively use effluent for fertilization while removing excess nutrients from wastewater or drainage.

Harvest could be accomplished through use of a paddy system where a fall water draw-down would allow land to firm up enough to permit machinery to operate. Or cattails could be grown in floating mats — such as in a sewage effluent pond — where there would be no underground root system. Cattails in some circumstances have a natural tendency to float free of the bottom in wetland areas.

One suggested harvest technique is to harvest the total plant in strips on alternate years. Plants left would spread into the harvested areas the following year, eliminating the need for re-planting. Open water areas created would provide room for wildlife, including waterfowl. Another idea is to conduct an incomplete harvest of the entire plant in large areas, leaving enough plant matter to replenish itself the following year.

Andrews said that a mature stand of cattails can be created from seed in three to four years. Experimentation is being conducted on how best to handle planting of he seed which is exceedingly small. Tests are being conducted in the university greenhouse on plant growth in relation to water depth, for instance, and methods of handling the seed are under study.

Pratt said that the university's research is being conducted independent of direction from the energy agency which provides partial funding but is not staffed to provide scientific expertise. Findings by the university are reported to the agency, which uses the information along with other data to make projections.

The botany department head was not reluctant to admit that scientists such as himself are not totally objective and without bias. "To pretend that we are without bias is a mistake and probably dangerous," he said.

"When we recognize what our biases are, we can deal with them so they don't interfere with results of our data analysis. Anyone would probably want an experiment to come out one way rather than another way, but if it's not coming out that way, you better be darn sure you don't make it come out that way," he said.

In discussing biomass as an energy source, he noted that biomass has an energy production capability of about 7,000 to 8,000 BTUs per pound. This compares with high quality coal of 15,000 to 16,000 BTUs per pound and to good grade fuel oil of about 20,000 BTUs per pound.

"But I prefer to look at biomass as a resource, not necessarily exclusively for energy," he said, noting that a world-renowned researcher believes biomass should take over as a substitute for petroleum product as a chemical feedstock.

"You can make a lot of things out of petroleum — plastics, paint, packaging, a long list of items — and those things are going to become more expensive just as petroleum does," Pratt said. "Right now, today, it probably makes sense to use biomass to produce some of these chemicals which are now produced from petroleum. Biomass is so valuable as a carbon compound that maybe we shouldn't be burning it, just like some people say we shouldn't be burning petroleum."

Electrical generating plants should be burning coal, many people believe, because the liquid fuels are so much more versatile and in shorter supply and should be used for things they are uniquely suited for — such as transportation and making chemicals.

In regard to energy conversion, Pratt said that production of biomass should take less than 10 per cent of the energy which the biomass will produce. This relates to simply harvesting and drying the biomass and delivering it to the edge of the field.

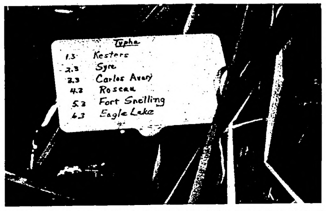
Should the decision be made to convert the biomass into high quality liquid fuel, it takes a large amount of energy to get the last few percentage points of water out of alcohol, Pratt said. "This is nothing new," he adds. "We invest more energy in making gasoline than there is in the gasoline. But we should never use petroleum for biomass conversion; part of the biomass should be used if conversion is to be done," he said.

Pratt said that the studies he is conducting are looking not only at how much biomass can be reliably produced over a period of time, but what the costs will be from the standpoints of environment, economy and energy.

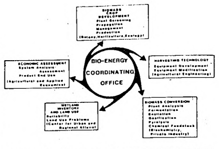
"Obviously I'm enthusiastic about it or I wouldn't be here," Pratt said. "I think that in terms of other alternatives we have, biomass looks good to me. It isn't adding to the carbon dioxide burden of the environment when we burn it, we're not adding sulfur dioxide to the air, it has low sulfur content and it's renewable. If we can learn to produce it reliably and efficiently so we won't have to invest too much of our land resource in it, we can use it year after year without destroying the soil. Developing technology takes time. We need a concerted effort for a number of years to make sure we know what we're doing."

(Our third article in the series will deal with more of the research now being done by the university.)

LUSH GROWTH of cattail under controlled conditions at the University of Minnesota in St. Paul is shown in this Times photo. The plants are grown in 4x4 foot boxes lined with plastic and filled with peat soil. Cattails taken from various parts of the state will be compared for yield of biomass. In addition to cattail, other marsh plants such as reed grass, sedges, reed canary grass and woody plants such as alder and willow are being studied. Cattail, however, appears to offer the most potential as an energy crop because it grows in monocultures, is highly productive, has few insect pests and can be grown on marginal lands.



CATTAIL STANDS being grown experimentally under controlled conditions at the University of Minnesota in St. Paul are taken from various areas of the state and identified accordingly. They will then be compared as to productivity. The plants were started from cuttings taken from the various areas and planted in peat soil. The researchers are seeking the "super" plant which will excel all others and help lead to commercial growing of cattails as a renewable energy crop. As noted on the identification plate, one of the cattail samples came from the Roseau area.



COMMUNICATION among various agencies of the University of Minnesota as they work on biomass research is provided through the bio-energy coordinating office. This chart shows the varicus areas involved in the extensive study.

LEGISLATIVE REPORT

by LeRoy Stumpf

STATE REPRESENTATIVE DISTRICT 1B

This week I would like to summarize action taken in the area of crime control. Recent federal and state statistics on the growth of crime in our country in 1980 certainly justify the attention we gave to changing some of our laws. FBI reports indicate that violent crime increased by 13 per cent last year. That category includes robbery, rape, aggravated assault and murder. While violent crime in Minnesota rose by only about three per cent as compared to the national figure, it is still a subject of grave concern.

Growing out of this concern, a felony-murder bill was passed that increases penalties for causing the death of a person while committing burglary, kidnapping, aggravated robbery or arson. If a person is killed intentionally, it will be first degree murder, not second, and the penalty will be life imprisonment rather than the previous maximum of 40 years.

If a person is killed unintentionally, the crime would be second degree murder rather than third as it was under old law. The minimum penalty for a first offense committed while carrying a gun was also increased from one to three years, and from three to five years for repeated offenses.

Another new law that was passed — one that has been worked on for several sessions — prohibits the furnishing of tobacco-related devices to minors. It also prohibits minors from using or furnishing such devices to other minors.

Minors also were the concern in a law passed to help the serious problems of drug selling on school premises. It has been determined by arrests made in the past, that many "drug pushers" are in fact not high school students, but individuals who are not associated with the schools who make a business out of selling drugs to students. To try to deter this unfortunate practice, sentences and fines were doubled for the possession of controlled substances on school premises by persons 18 years or older. This will increase the risk for these drug sellers, and if they are caught they will be sent to prison for a longer period of time.

Stiffer penalties were legislated for driving while intoxicated. For second and subsequent violations, a driver's license will be revoked for six months, not 90 days, and a limited license cannot be obtained for the first three months of the revocation period.

A new law increased from a misdemeanor to a felony participation in, promotion or sponsoring of fighting between animals. This law was used even before the 1981 session was over when police officers broke up a dog-fighting operation in Stacy. People arrested are being prosecuted under the new law.

Tear gas as a means of protection against crime is now available to ordinary users and may be used anywhere. Previously only law enforcement officers were allowed to carry or use tear gas.

Customs service and immigration and naturalization service officers have been given the arrest powers of peace officers.

As a curb to fencing of precious metals, dealers in gold, silver and platinum are now required to check picture identification of anyone trying to sell precious metals, record these transactions, pay for the metals only by check and hold the goods for 14 days before reselling them or melting them down. The new law does not apply to small antique dealers, estate sales or farm auctions.

Theft of goods has always been recognized as a crime, but using labor, hotel accomodations, professional services, advertising, computer and telecommunications services without intent to pay is theft too, and has been defined as crime by a new statute.

And finally, I would like to tell you that the controversy over when to open the Oak Park Heights prison was settled. To save money, the governor had suggested opening it in July of 1983, but the legislature decided to open it in February. State corrections officials will now negotiate with Wisconsin to house some prisoners in the new facility to help the costs of the new maximum security prison and relieve overcrowding in Wisconsin.

These are good laws passed by the 1981 legislature to help maintain a safe and orderly society in Minnesota. If you have any questions on them or other new laws, please contact me at Route 1, Box 47, Plummer, MN 56748, or phone 523-3141.

Sports Boosters Open 1981-82 Season

First meeting of the 1981-82 season for the Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club will be held Thursday at 12 noon at the Rex Cafe. It'll be an organizational meeting aimed at making final preparations for the eighth annual Sports Boosters Pigskin Preview Saturday.

Generally poor attendance at regular Sports Boosters meetings has always puzzled club officials. Coaches are cooperative about participating at the meetings and club officials have tried several different time slots, meeting dates and program formats in an effort to drum up additional interest.

Sports Boosters meetings offer parents a chance to become more actively involved in the sports programs which their boys and girls participate; it's a chance for parents of athletes to meet and get acquainted with the coaches who play such an important role in development of their children.

TRF Softball Team Enters Region Play

North Star Transport, a runner-up finisher in the Minnesota Class B state fast pitch softball tournament completed Sunday in Mankato, isn't done playing ball. The Thief River Falls team will journey to Sioux Falls, S.D. this weekend to compete on a regional level against teams from Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota and Iowa. First round opponent will be Golden Leaf Cafe of Minneapolis Saturday at 1 p.m.

North Star Transport manager Maynard Moen, who had hopes of a state championship finish in Mankato, doesn't know what kind of field his team will face in Sioux Falls. "I know we're competive with the Minnesota and North Dakota teams," he said, "but I don't know anything about the South Dakota and Iowa teams."

At the state meet North Star Transport beat West St. Paul 3-2 and got by LeRoy-Ostrander 2-1 before losing a 7-6 game to City-Wide of Duluth when North Star Transport failed to hold on to a 6-5 lead with two out in the bottom of the seventh inning. In the loser's bracket of the 16-team double-elimination tournament North Star Transport shaded Fairmont 1-0, sidelined Kahl Brothers of Maridan 3-1 and eliminated David Wong's of Bloomington 3-1 to reach the finals against City-Wide.

Thief River Falls won the first game 4-3 in nine innings to force a second championship game, but lost that one 10-1.

"I guess when you get second out of that many teams you have to be satisfied," acknowledged Moen, "but it would have been nice to win it. We had one bad inning is all," he concluded, referring to the seventh inning collapse in the first meeting with City-Wide.

Miscellaneous

+Sixty-one candidates turned out for Detroit Lakes high school football practice, including 31 sophomores — the largest turnout of tenth graders since Dick Reidberger assumed the head coaching duties at the school in 1976. "I feel we had a super week of practice," reported Reidberger after the week of conditioning drills, "and one of the reasons was the fact that we kept the sophomore candidates as a unit and the juniors and seniors as another unit." Detroit Lakes will serve as Thief River Falls' 1981 home opener opponent Friday, September 11.

+Mr. Bob's Purple of Crystal, the Minnesota state champion, added the Northern Region Class AA men's slow pitch softball tournament title to its credit over the weekend in Crookston to earn a berth in the national American Softball Association (ASA) tournament September 4-7 at Raleigh, North Carolina. Class AA is the highest level of competition in ASA play. Mr. Bob's, who drilled North Dakota state champion Chuck's Off-Sale of Wahpeton 40-10 en route to its regional crown, brought a 76-15 record to Crookston, along with a team batting average of .531. The team had scored 1,784 runs, an average of 19.5 per game. Ex-pro Dale Palm led the team with 77 home runs while teammate Wayne Kuffel had 75. Remarkably, 11 players on the team had hit 39 or more homers before arriving in Crookston.

Lincoln Volleyball Team Faces Rebuilding Year

A rebuilding year. That's the way Lincoln high school volleyball coach Sharon Stauss described the Prowlers' upcoming 1981 season.

Thief River Falls was 9-9 a year ago and just three girls who saw much playing time return: seniors LeAnn Paetznick, Karmon Espe and Joleen Gibson.

"I've got those three, now I have to find the other half to play with them," explained Stauss, whose main need is for setters, players who handle the quarterback-type role on the court. Top prospects appear to be juniors Susie Waale and Pam Finney.

"It's going to be a rebuilding year," admitted Stauss. "We're going to have to depend a lot on LeAnn and Karmon, our two co-captains." Paetznick, a strong spiker, is beginning her fourth year with the Prowlers. Espe came on strong at the end of the 1981 season, explained Stauss.

Others looking for playing time are seniors Denise Opdahl and Wendy Erickson, along with juniors Collette Thune, Lynette Huot, Gretchen McEwen, Traci Hicks and Barb Laidley.

Younger members of the team include sophomores Becky Ulrich, Andrea Ault, Missy Bondy, Michelle Kezar, Jacki Kramer, Kim Poole, Kristi Raymond, Jacki Hayes, Jill Isaacson, Mona Pederson and Melody Cooke, along with freshmen Jenny Anderson, Lisa Arnold, Pat Grabowska, Deb Opdahl, Kristi Sorteberg, Leslie Wiegand, Paula Bergan, Kelli Olson, Karla Johnson, Kristi Finney and Cindy Kain.

"We look strong in the sophomore and freshman department," pointed out Stauss, who is pleased with the turnout in the younger grades. She'll be assisted this fall by Diane Anderson and Georgine Troska, a student teacher.

The Prowlers start the year with four straight home matches, beginning Friday, September 4, vs. Detroit Lakes. The dual meets start with junior varsity games at 6:30 p.m., followed by the varsity matches at 7:30.

John Milinovich of Hibbing was named the production champion with 48 total points; Fagerness was the standing champion with 35 points; and Judy Stolp of Thief River Falls was the high lady award winner with 29 points.

McIntosh Has Hole-In-One Golf Contest

Out-of-town golfers are invited to visit McIntosh Sunday to try their luck at capturing first prize in the annual hole-in-one contest.

The event is sponsored each fall by the McIntosh Men's Action Club (formerly the Jaycees) and offers a $250 first prize. Entry fee is 50 cents a shot, or three shots for $1. If no one scores a hole-in-one, $25 shall be awarded to the golfer whose shot falls closest to the pin on the approximately 100-yard hole.

In addition to the hole-in-one competition, there will be tournaments in horseshoe tossing (two-player teams), doubles tennis and individual hot-shot basketball shooting. All events are open to all ages and both sexes.

All games will begin at 1 p.m. in the Bicentennial recreation complex on county road 8 on the north edge of McIntosh.

Prowlers Have Young Squad

Competitive swimming has always been a battle against the clock. But this year more than ever Lincoln high school girls swimming coach John Hustad will be stressing times instead of place finishes, dual meet victories or invitational meet championships.

"We've got a lot of young kids this year," explained Hustad, "and the most important thing is to improve times. This year we're going to work a lot on basics — stroke techniques," he added. "Then we'll take those kids who have the basic strokes down and work on some other things."

Thief River Falls, a recognized power in Section 3 swimming across northern Minnesota since the sport was developed here, has just three seniors back from the 1980 team: Lisa Desrocher, Robyn Dallmann and Lori Swanson.

Dallmann and junior Shari McGann will serve as the Prowlers' co-captains this fall.

Other squad members on hand for the start of practice Monday were senior Lonna Rakke, a newcomer to the sport; juniors Karen Dillon, Mary Ness, Sarah Green,

Deer Permits Must Be Filled Out Properly, Reports DNR

Department of Natural Resources is cautioning deer hunters to use extreme care in filling out their antlerless deer permit applications.

Most common error made in filling out the application is that of writing in a zone number when a permit area number should be given.

In 1980, approximately 18,000 antlerless permit applications were rejected because of various errors in completing the form, said wildlife officials.

Faculty applications will be rejected, they emphasized.

Deadline for applications is September 15.

Mary Geatz and Loudeen Flom; sophomores Kathy Reuter, Cheryl Amundson, Colleen Cullen, Karla Lokken, Jenny Pinkerton and Denise Anderson; freshmen Leslie Grisanti, Connie Geatz, Shelley McGann, Teri Clopp, Cindy Russell and Jill Lusignan; eighth graders Tammy Gunderson, Kim Kenville, Rochelle Sandstrom, Jenelle Smidt and Michelle Puetz; and seventh grader Jennifer Hustad.

Although Brenda Lund, one of the top divers in the state, was among the Prowlers' graduation losses, the team still expects to score heavily in diving with Desrocher and Swanson, a pair of proven veterans, joined by Clopp and Sandstrom, a pair of promising younger divers.

Among the swimmers, Green could be a top point-producer after a third place Section 3 finish in the backstroke a year ago.

"We're looking for the hungry kids," noted Hustad. "The ones who are hungry and who will work hard. We want to see our swimmers improve their times and we want to see consistency from our divers."

Jodi Dallmann will serve as an assistant coach this year.

Thief River Falls will begin its 1981 season Thursday, September 10, with a 5 p.m. dual meet against Brainerd in the Franklin middle school pool.

Wildlife Group Warns Against Land Transfer

One hundred and twenty years ago it was the South against the North. Today, it's the West against the East, says the National Wildlife Federation (NWF), and the land they're fighting over includes 174 million acres in 11 western states and 153 million acres in Alaska — all run by the U.S. Bureau of Land Management (BLM). Another 187 million acres are managed by the U.S. Forest Service.

On and beneath this land are half the western coal reserves, 80 per cent of the oil, high-grade tar sands and oil shale, 40 per cent of the natural gas, plus vast amounts of timber, rich grazing land and some of the finest recreational areas in the nation.

Battle over this valuable publicly-owned acreage has been dubbed the "Sagebrush Rebellion," and the Rebels are typically western cattlemen, loggers and mining companies demanding that Washington surrender the land to state ownership.

But, according to C. Clifford Young, a former Congressman and former Nevada state Senator, their demands for millions of acres of publicly-owned land are a "smoke screen" for their real objective: to wipe out or weaken federal regulations limiting the exploitation of those lands.

"Under the multiple use concept (now in effect) oil drillers can drill on wildlife refuges, and timber is cut on national forests," says Young in an interview in the current issue of National Wildlife, the bimonthly publication of the National Wildlife Federation. "It's really the regulations they object to."

Now a Reno lawyer and president of the National Wildlife Federation, Young acknowledges there is room for improvement of federal regulations, particularly on BLM lands. "However," he emphasized, "there should be no weakening of essential environmental protection laws and regulations."

Young is familiar with all the Sagebrush Rebellion arguments. He was one of only two Nevada state Senators who voted against a 1979 bill in the state legislature which claimed ownership for Nevada of 48 million acres of public domain lands run by BLM. Nevada also voted to sue the U.S. government to get this land. New Mexico, Arizona, Wyoming, Colorado and Utah passed laws claiming ownership of federal lands, and Ronald Reagan, as a presidential candidate, declared: "I am a Sagebrush Rebel."

Montana and Washington state rejected Sagebrush bills, and although Westerners are big on "states rights," National Wildlife says the Rebels are a "vocal minority" in the West.

Will the rebellion succeed? Young doesn't think so, and in fact, says that the chance that large tracts of federal lands might actually be transferred to the states is "so remote as to be almost nonexistent." So why are Young and other conservationists worried? Young explains: "The so-called Rebels may use the threat of rebellion to get restrictions eased or regulations changed that they don't like. Such things as controls on drilling for oil in wildlife refuges, cutting timber in national forests faster than sustained yield, risking destruction of wildlife habitat in pursuit of unregulated development or grazing more livestock than the land will carry."

Forest lands of the U.S. outpace the forests of Canada and the USSR in productivity per acre by three to one.

DNR NEWS

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources announced that orders for tree seedlings to be shipped next spring will be accepted starting September 1.

Orders will be taken until March 15, or until supplies are exhausted. Orders for trees to be planted in the designated 14 southeast Minnesota counties will be accepted until January 31.

Tree seedlings are sold for the purposes of reforestation, windbreaks, shelterbelts, erosion control, soil and water conservation and for permanent food and cover for wildlife. The trees may not be planted for ornamental purposes nor resold or given away.

Orders are accepted on a first come, first served basis, and the minimum order is 500 trees.

The following prices (per thousand seedlings) remain the same as last year: conifer seedlings $50; deciduous seedlings $60; conifer transplants $130.

Species available this year include white pine, Norway pine, jack pine, Scotch pine, white spruce, Colorado spruce, white cedar, green ash, soft maple, black walnut, poplar, honeysuckle, caragana, Norway pine transplants, Colorado spruce transplants.

Price lists and order blanks can be obtained from DNR forestry offices, ASCS offices, SCS offices, county extension offices; by contacting DNR-Forestry, P.O. 95, Willow River, MN 55795, telephone (218) 372-3183; or the DNR-Forestry Division, Centennial Building, St. Paul, MN 55155, (612)296-4479.

DNR FIREARMS

Volunteer firearms safety training instructors were told by the Department of Natural Resources to continue teaching even though they have not received their new instructor's certificates.

Certificates expired automatically on July 1 and would normally be renewed by that date. However, the strike by state employees held up the paper work needed to process the renewals.

Enforcement officials said the new certificates will be sent out as soon as possible.

Loss of forest cover in China has been blamed for serious climatic changes including a decline in rainfall and an increase in wind velocities in mountain regions.

School Phobia Is Imaginary Ill For School Situation

Children who often stay home from school with vague complaints of illness that disappear later in the day may be suffering from school phobia, according to Bram Drew, psychologist at a St. Paul hospital.

Also called school avoidance, school phobia is defined as unwarranted fear about some aspect of the school situation, the psychologist says. The problem can be as simple as avoiding a test or as serious as an indication of psychological problems.

School phobia occurs in students of all ages; however it is most common during kindergarten, first and second grades. When seen in teenagers it usually is an indication of serious, pathological problems. In younger children, school phobia typically occurs in conforming children who would never be purposely truant but who need an excuse like illness to avoid school.

Any kind of symptom can be associated with school phobia — stomachache, headache, nausea, vomiting, low-grade fever, recurrent sore throat or joint and muscle pain, according to Drew, who sees about 30 cases of school phobia a year in his work with the social services department of the hospital.

Children with school phobia usually have normal amounts of discomfort, but accentuate mild symptoms to get their parents' attention or to avoid school. Sometimes they focus so much on their mild discomfort that they really feel sick.

"The classic case of school phobia starts with the child complaining of a stomachache or 'butterflies' associated with nervous stomach," Drew says. "Mother pays attention and is sympathetic. The child stays home and by noon feels better and gets out of bed. By the end of the school day the child is running around, feeling fine.

"The next morning the child awakens with another stomachache. Mother says 'Maybe you should go to school and just try it. Remember you got better yesterday later in the day.' Later mother gets a call from the school that the child is doubled over with pain and nauseous, and brings the child home."

The pattern is quickly established, continuing on weekdays and clearing up on weekends, Drew says. Parents' reactions are critical at this point.

Most parents react by taking the child to the doctor, afraid that some physical illness is responsible for the recurring symptoms. "When the history and physical exam reveal no physiological cause for the symptoms, some kids will pull out all the stops — retching, refusing to eat," he says.

The roots for school phobia often can be found in the home situation, Drew says. The problem is often an exaggeration of separation anxiety, a normal process all children experience to some degree in early childhood.

"When school phobia is related to separation anxiety there is occasionally involvement of the mother," the psychologist explained. "By that I mean that mother and child are interdependent; mother needs the child at home and the child picks up the message that he or she is somehow responsible for mother's happiness. That kind of pathological relationship is hard to break and usually requires expert help."

Separation anxiety also can be brought on by other home situations, like the birth of a sibling whom the older child sees as a threat to security; or the recent illness of a parent whom the child might want to make sure is all right.

There also is an increased incidence of school phobia related to separation anxiety after summer or Christmas vacation — especially if the child has been sick. The child gets used to the routine of being home and "wants to maintain the status quo," or the child may have been ill during the vacation and begins to doubt his or her ability to return to school and cope with the work.

One study shows that children are most sensitive to competition with their peers during their first years of school. "We used to think that fears about how you're stacking up occurred later in the maturation process. This research suggests that the problem is very real to a five-year-old," he states.

The shorter the time the problem has been in existence, the younger the child and more cooperative the parents, the more quickly the problem is usually is resolved. In working out solutions, the parents' cooperation is a necessary factor.

"Parents should direct their energies toward getting the child back into the school," he says. "Somehow the child has to get back to school and stay there, regardless of how he or she feels. If the parents can't do this, sometimes outside help from a school social worker or other family member makes it possible."

Some cases can be handled with a telephone conversation with the mother who needs advice on how to proceed. Other cases require more intensive work that requires the cooperation of parents, principal, teacher, school nurse and social worker to wean the child through the separation process.

Parents who present a positive approach to school can often prevent school phobia problems. "Before the child starts school, it's important to state clearly and matter-of-factly that it's the child's job to go to school unless he or she is terribly ill. Parents who don't leave loopholes and who don't cater to their children too much when they are ill rarely have problems," he concludes.
